CITY POLITICS.

Meetings, Banner Raisings and Torchlight Displays Last Night.

FACTS CONCERNING THE REGISTRATION.

The Reformers in Council and the Tammanyites Likewise Nominations Ratified—The Candidates and Their Friends Jubilant.

TAMMANY BANNER RAISING.

Woltman and His Friends in the Seventeenth Ward.

An enthusiastic assembling of the friends of Mr. Henry Woltman and Mr. J. Tyler Kelly—candidates respectively for the Assembly and the Senate—occurred last evening at the corner of Third avenue and Thirteenth streets. An impromptu platform was erected and was festooned with flags and illuminated with Chinese lanterns. Mr. William A. Lynch presided, and the following gentlemen were among the speakers:—Colonel John R. Fellows, Judge Coate, Judge Bartmann, Senator Creamer, Algernon S. Sullivan, William C. Gover, Henry Woltman, George M. Curtis, Captain John A. Thompson, Herman Schroeder and Dr. Philip Merkle. Before the meeting commenced rockets and colored lights were discharged, calcium lights were burned and the band played the usual soul-stirring airs. The speakers were continually cheered, and the crowd, which was large enough to fill the street about the platform, manifested a great degree of hopefulness and good feeling—hope in the future and complacency in the present, like its leaders.

After several orations, the large banner—to witness the unfurling of which the meeting occurred—was stretched across Third avenue, at the same moment that rockets ascended in plentiful showers and the music swelled anew in patriotic harmonies. The banner measures twenty-five by thirty-five feet, and displays a bust portrait of Mr. Henry Woltman, seven feet in length, and the names of Henry Woltman and J. Tyler Kelly, coupled with those of the offices for which they run. The candidates were cheered by the crowd with great enthusiasm.

GERMAN-AMERICAN REFORM MEETING.

The Nominations Ratified—What We Can Expect if Tammany Wins the Election—The Roll of Drums and the Bugle Blast.

A mass meeting of the German and American citizens of the Seventeenth ward—the former most largely represented—was held last evening in the Germania Assembly Rooms, under the auspices of the Seventeenth Ward Council of Political Reform, and having for its object the ratification of the reform nominations which had recently been promulgated. Mr. Benjamin Tatham presided and made a speech, introducing the resolutions. He gave a novel illustration of the stupendity of the municipal wrongs which have been unearthed by saying that "a sidewalk ten feet wide and forty miles long would be required to hold all the dollars, laid together, which have been stolen from the people, and on that CAUSEWAY OF SILVER one million and fifty-six thousand men could stand." Mr. Tatham then put the question, "What are you going to do about it?" and the audience growled good-naturedly, "Hang 'em! hang 'em! hang 'em!" The resolutions were adopted, and the Chairman then introduced Dr. Augustus Weissman, the Senatorial candidate, who was greeted with emphatic applause. He delivered an address in German, frequently interrupted by manifest approbation. He was followed by a young gentleman named Connor, whose speech aimed at eloquence of the blood-and-thunder order. The story of our troubles was another series of Arabian Nights, of which Tweed and his friends were the "ALI BARBER AND THE FORTY THOUSAND THIEVES." This original conceit pleased the speaker mightily and he accordingly reiterated and elaborated it until his hearers out of courtesy actually smiled. Recounting the history of the "Ring," he compared the dignified and estimable public to a goose, and affirmed that, setting out to merely pluck it, the aggressors had ended by wringing its neck. Such a proceeding was not to be submitted to. The orator became warm and talked after the melodramatic method, acting on King Henry's injunction—

> Disguise fair nature with hard-favored rage.

There was enough of THE SPIRIT OF THE BOSTON TEA PARTY left to avenge this wrong in blood. "If the elections should end in the triumph of Tammany there'll be trouble, very great trouble. On the 7th of November we shall hear the roll of the drum and the bugle blast, and the bayonet will gleam in the December sun."

Mr. J. W. Hawes and Mr. Nicholas Connor addressed the meeting in English, and Herr George Kinkel and Herr Kepf in German. Mr. Connor, who is a candidate for Alderman, indulged many bitter personalities against J. Tyler Kelly, his opponent, but was supported, however, by applause from the audience.

NINETEENTH WARD BANNER RAISING.

Harry Genet the Champion of the Eight-Hour Men.

"Sixty-four of the Committee of Seventy are candidates for office, and the remaining six have been promised situations in the Comptroller's office by Mr. Green as a reward for their labors in behalf of the republican party." So said Mr. Murphy last night at a meeting of the Nineteenth Ward Labor Reform Club held on the corner of Fifty-fifth street and Third avenue for the purpose of raising the banner of that organization.

The banner, which was neat and handsome, bore the following inscriptions:—"Nineteenth Ward Labor Reform: eight hours a day's labor. Eighth Senatorial district, H. W. Genet for Senator." Mr. Murphy, in a long address, compared the men presented to the people for their suffrages. He asked the workingmen of the district to remember that when Daniel F. Tiemann was Mayor of the city of New York he refused to raise the workingman's wages from ninety-five cents to one dollar, and said, "If you don't like the work throw it up; I can get men to do the work for ninety-five cents." Compare this action of his with that of Harry Genet in working for and obtaining the observance of this Eight-Hour law, and let your conscience dictate who is worthy of your suffrages. Owing to the non-appearance of several other speakers who were advertised to have spoken the meeting dispersed.

THE NINETEENTH WARD WORKINGMEN.

Hitchman Endorsed, and After the Endorsement Pitches Into the City Fraud Makers.

At a meeting of the Henry W. Genet Association of the Nineteenth ward, held at 826 Third avenue last evening, William Hitchman was nominated by a unanimous vote as the candidate for Assembly from the Twentieth district. This organization is made up of live men, true representatives of the workingmen, and they seek to be heard from in a practical way during the election. Mr. Hitchman appeared before the Convention and bitterly denounced the frauds practised upon the people of this city, and pledged himself to use all his efforts to give the people good government. William Cushing, the President, occupied the chair. Patrick Kennedy, Vice President; John C. Ryan, Recording Secretary; Robert Kelly, Financial Secretary; Michael Hanley, Treasurer, are the officers of the association, and are true representatives of the people.

THE TWENTIETH WARD O'BRIENITES.

A Big Talk About the Candidate of the Reformers.

A regular meeting of the Twentieth Ward Independent Democratic Club was held last night at No. 212 West Thirty-third street. The room was crowded, and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested during the proceedings. Sheriff O'Brien was lauded to the skies by the speakers of the evening, and, judging from the estimate they put upon his character, he has at times been greatly maligned by his political enemies. Not only was he a friend of the poor man, said they, but he had always considered the welfare of others before his own interest. Moreover, he had never done anything during his entire life that had called or would ever call for censure on the part of honest citizens. It was all very well for men to talk about his having once been connected with Tammany Hall. There were a great many men now in the ranks of the reformers who had once been in the Tammany army; but they had had their eyes opened to the villainies of the leaders, and had, like honest men, broken from the bad company they had unwittingly been thrown in with. The ex-Sheriff had acted as he had so far in combating the perpetrators of the city frauds solely in the interest of the people; he had no other end in view than to aid in giving the people a good form of government, and if he was elected to the Senate he would be foremost among those who would fight for the people's interests.

THE SIXTEENTH WARD REFORMERS.

Meeting in Eighth Avenue Last Night.

About two hundred of the citizens of the Sixteenth ward met last evening at Temperance Hall, corner of Eighteenth street and Eighth avenue, to organize measures to preserve the purity of the ballot box at the coming election. John Castree was chairman of the meeting, and Peter McDonald secretary. It was addressed by Messrs. J. C. Jackson, S. T. Streeter, R. Proster and several others. The whole subject of inspectors, poll clerks, authority of policemen and other officers of the law on election were thoroughly discussed, many of the members of the meeting joining in the discussion. It was proposed that men of business should devote that day to standing around the polls and lend their moral support to those who were deputed to watch the voting by the committee of the Council.

All the nominations of the Reform Association were enthusiastically endorsed. Mr. Jackson, in his remarks, referring to the nomination of James Haley in the First Assembly district, said that he was always known as a temperate man and a steady and confirmed opponent of Tammany Hall, and that he was running in an Irish district. As for the Seventh Senatorial district, the Committee of Seventy endorsed James O'Brien, because, when in the midst of such a tough fight, any reliable ally who could bring 10,000 votes to their aid was and ought to be acceptable. After the addresses the following resolutions were offered by Mr. W. Palmer and unanimously adopted:—

> Resolved, That we, the citizens of the Sixteenth ward, irrespective of party, most heartily endorse the action of the Committee of Seventy in presenting for the suffrage of all honest voters a ticket upon which all parties opposed to Tammany Hall can enthusiastically vote, and we hereby pledge our united and earnest efforts to insure its success at the polls.
> Resolved, That we will individually attend at the polls on the 7th of November and see to it that no frauds be perpetrated even by officers of election or by fraudulent voters.

THE NINTH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT.

Republican Ratification Meeting Last Night.

A large and enthusiastic concourse of republicans filled to suffocation the spacious hall corner of Morton and Bleecker streets last evening to ratify the nominations of Erastus C. Benedict for Senator and Stephen Pell for Assembly, under the auspices of the Ninth Ward Republican Association. A set of resolutions was offered and highly welcomed by Mr. McFarren Appleton, anent the Syracuse Convention, endorsing the reunion between republicans and reform democrats, heavily slating the Ring, praising Grant for reduction of debt and taxation, Ku Klux acts, &c., advocating "pure" nominations and recognizing the republican victories in Maine, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa as incentives to struggle here. William M. Peebles, a "hemlock republican," raised in the backwoods, reviewed his ancestry and the state of affairs. He was severe on "Mike Norton, a consort of thieves," and encomiastic on Erastus C. Benedict, the nominee of the evening. Mr. Charles S. Spencer entered amid an enthusiastic outburst of patriotic voices. He gracefully acknowledged his welcome; hailed the Ninth Ward as the sole resting place for the old Knickerbockers, the "golden elements," the carmen, mechanics and honest men who had a stake; spoke of the emancipation of 4,000,000 slaves; that the republicans conquered the rebellion; sustained the "quiet, stern and able" Grant; congratulated the brains of his hearers and announced an intention to GRIND TAMMANY 'TWIXT MILLSTONES, upper and nether. Every gray hair on E. C. Benedict's head was an honor. He was a half century denizen of the Ninth ward. Severities were heaped on the "straggling" republican candidate, who was promptly named from the auditory—Thomas B. Stewart—and his coquetting with the democracy exposed. Then were the city frauds handled without gloves (Tweed scarified), and the press laudatorified. The Tammany "Big Injuns" were compared with the last of the Mohicans, by which it appeared they drink of bad whiskey instead of pure springs, and smoke bad cigars instead of calumets, and instead of bringing scalps to their wigwams bring pocketbooks stuffed with greenbacks, and stuffed ballot boxes. Mr. Spencer spoke very warmly of the Twelfth of July, was a personal friend of the little girl shot by a blood-thirsty democrat for wearing a yellow ribbon, and appealed against any union between Church and State. Here TROMBONING FENTONS TRAMPED solidly in, being the German republicans of the Ninth ward, with a band. Mr. Spencer proceeded to mention that the German vote made the great West, and that it was all a mistake their being democrats here; endorsed the Bible, and said that Protestants accepting State help for charitable or religious institutions—sops to Cerberus—were disgracing themselves, and mentioned that he had an angel in the shape of a wife to keep him straight. He thought adopted citizens should have equal rights with the native born, and that the latter should not be ostracised for the misfortune of having been born out of Europe. Mr. Spencer concluded with an exhortation to vote, to "squelch" repeaters, reminding his hearers of General Dix's order to "shoot down any man who pulls down the American flag," and Mr. Evarts' recommendation at the Cooper Institute, "to revolt rather than succumb to democrats." Mr. Spencer was received and parted from with the wildest enthusiasm.

"A young man from the Eighth ward," Mr. P. H. SHURTZ, here filled up a gap with some humorous and withal earnest remarks.

Mr. FRED. H. GEDNEY declared the issues of the day, which were between corruption and fair dealing, too well understood to need discussion, and that arguments did no good, referred to "Honest Old Abe," said our Aldermen were MEN OF MARK because they couldn't write their names, their cottages by the "sad sea waves" were paid for by robbery, and their delegates were cleaned up before and harried the country like locusts. Sam Tilden lost his watch, and said the time was out of joint, and every one knew the value Tammany set on a repeater. Mr. Gedney, in a manly way, excluded the "war democrats" from his strictures, and was very generally applauded for a very straighforward, inornate and tolerant speech.

Mr. LAMBERT, President of the Committee of Arrangements, then took the rostrum, and the séance concluded with the expected addresses of Silas B. Dutcher, the great Grant man of Brooklyn, and the Senator elect, Erastus C. Benedict.

RENOMINATION OF CHRISTOPHER FLECKE.

The Tenth Assembly District Convention met last evening at Wilberger's Hall, corner of Fifth street and Second avenue, Commissioner John J. Walsh presiding; Alderman Nicholas Segar, Vice President; William Ehehalt and John Zahn, Secretaries. Mr. Christopher Flecke was renominated and a committee appointed to proceed to his residence and notify him of the fact. The committee soon returned, accompanied by the candidate, who returned thanks to the Convention for the honor conferred on him in a graceful and eloquent speech.

THE YOUNG MEN IN COUNCIL.

Important Meeting of Judge Ledwith's Friends at Delmonico's.

One of the most influential meetings connected with the present campaign was held last evening at Delmonico's, Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue. The company present comprised a large number of prominent professional gentlemen, including lawyers, doctors, journalists, brokers, bankers and others, representing, to a great extent, the wealth and intelligence among the rising young men of the metropolis. Mr. Robert M. Waite was called to the chair, and, on accepting the position, he gave his impressions as a lawyer in regard to the nomination and elevation of Judge Ledwith to the Supreme Court bench. Dr. E. B. Murtha, Dr. John Lynch, Dr. Clark, Dr. Conway and Dr. Finnell, Mr. George Walsh, Mr. Joseph Kernan, Mr. L. M. Cohen and others endorsed the remarks of Mr. Waite, and, after the appointment of appropriate committees and the adoption of a resolution to form a permanent young men's organization, the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening.

THE FOURTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.

The Regular Reformers on Rossa's Renegades.

The members of the Reform Democracy Senatorial Convention, as originally and regularly called, under the chairmanship of Mr. James Monaghan, met last evening, and repudiated the nomination of O'Donovan Rossa as Senator. The gentlemen present claimed that the Convention had regularly nominated Mr. Anthony Miller for Senator. The name had been selected by a committee of nine, had been reported to the Convention, had been adopted by the Convention, and the Convention then adjourned sine die. They claimed, therefore, that no person had any right to reconvene the Convention without authority of the regularly elected chairman of the Convention, and that the nomination of Mr. O'Donovan Rossa was irregular, and could not be supported by the true members of the reform democracy in the district.

THE REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Duties of Inspectors—Who May Register—Votes May Be Sworn In—Penalties for False Registering or Voting.

As the day for holding the fall election draws near the public who are in the habit of exercising the elective franchise are awaking to the exigencies of the hour and arraying themselves for or against the party of so-called municipal reform. Nevertheless, on the first two days of registration, held the last week, much apathy was exhibited, and the number of names enrolled was largely below previous years. This was doubtless owing to the fact that the places of registry were not advertised as in previous years and the circumstance that UNREGISTERED PERSONS CAN SWEAR THEIR VOTES IN on election day if they have a valid excuse for not registering.

To-day is the first for reopening the registry books and names can be entered to-day, Friday or Saturday. After Saturday next no names can be added to the books.

That the voters may clearly comprehend the law governing registration we append a summary of its main features:—

THE MEETINGS OF INSPECTORS.

The persons elected or appointed inspectors of election and registry are to meet annually on the Tuesday three weeks preceding the election and organize at the place where the poll is to be opened, and proceed to register all who are found to be qualified. In election districts where the vote last preceding was over four hundred they can in their discretion sit the following day as well. The law makes it imperative upon them to reopen the registry on the Wednesday preceding the election and continue in session Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, from nine A. M. until ten P. M., at which second meeting they shall revise, correct, add to and subtract from, and complete the lists and add to them the names of all persons who on the first Tuesday of November are entitled to exercise the right of suffrage.

THE LISTS TO BE POSTED.

The law provides that when the registry is completed one copy is to be posted in the room in which the registration and elections take place, so that any voter may examine or make copies of it. This is a provision of the law that is violated every election.

OMITTED NAMES TO BE ADDED.

In the event of the name of a qualified voter being left off the list he can appear on or before Saturday and require the register to place it upon the roll by complying with the act.

PENALTIES FOR FALSE REGISTRATION AND VOTING.

The offence registering twice, or when the voter is disqualified, or registering in another name, or assisting in such illegal act, is felony under the law, and false swearing is made perjury. A party who refuses to give his residence loses his right to register or vote. Any person whose name is upon the registry of a district from which he has removed may have it changed to the one in which he resides by proving that it has been erased from the first registry.

ABSENTING INSPECTORS.

While the law makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $100 nor less than $25, for an inspector to absent himself from his duties, leaving less than a majority of the board present, it has been in the past a common occurrence. No inspector is qualified unless he be a voter of the district in which he acts.

WHO MAY REGISTER AND VOTE.

The qualifications for a voter are—First, twenty-one years of age; second, a citizen by birth or naturalization, and, if naturalized, it must have been accomplished ten days before election; third, a resident of the election district where the vote is tendered; fourth, for the preceding four months a resident of the county; fifth, a resident of the district where he offers his vote for thirty days preceding the next election; sixth, he must not have been convicted of bribery or of an infamous crime deemed felony by the State laws, or, if so convicted, must have been pardoned and restored to citizenship; seventh, persons born out of the territory of the United States, whose fathers, having been residents of the United States were, at the time of the birth of such persons, citizens of the United States; eighth, children born out of the United States, but residing here and being under age when their fathers were naturalized are citizens by virtue of the father's naturalization, with all foreigners who have served two or more years in the army and navy of the United States and can produce an honorable discharge.

The registry opens this morning at nine, and as the inspectors must remain on duty until ten at night no citizen can have a reasonable excuse for not having his name placed upon the list.

COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY NOMINATIONS.

In addition to the nominations already announced the Committee of Seventy have now endorsed the following nominations for the Assembly in all the districts:—

Dist.	Candidate.	Dist.	Candidate.
1	James Healy.	12	Henry E. Crampton.
2	Henry G. Leaske.	13	George H. Mackay.
3	Henry P. West.	14	John A. Foley.
4	John Hecker.	15	Frederick Killian.
5	David S. Paige.	16	Nicholas Houghton.
6	Isaac Wood.	17	Charles A. Flammer.
7	Horatio N. Twombly.	18	Samuel J. Tilden.
8	Conrad Geib.	19	Horatio Seymour.
9	Stephen Pell.	20	Severn D. Moulton.
10	Henry H. Haight.	21	William A. Whitbrok.
11	Rush C. Hawkins.

The committee will formally present their entire list of nominations to the public at the mass meeting to be held at the Cooper Institute on Thursday evening, and will request for them the united support of all citizens who are honestly in favor of reform.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

Action of the Republican General Committee.

A special meeting of the Republican General Committee of Kings county was held last evening at the headquarters, Washington street. Supervisor S. B. Dutcher occupied the chair and the attendance was quite numerous. Two or three communications were handed in charging that fraud had been perpetrated at certain republican primaries. The complaints were, however, laid on the table, as it was declared that it was desirable to maintain harmony and concert of action in this contest. The Executive Committee reported that the arrangements for holding the grand ratification mass meeting at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening next had been completed, and also that the ballots for election day would be ready for delivery on Monday next. It was resolved that a number of Deputy Sheriffs should be appointed to serve at the polls on Tuesday next, and that each candidate should be allowed to name a person who shall be present at the polling places on election day and watch the counting of the votes. The declination of the nomination of J. B. Smith for Coroner was accepted.

Democratic General Committee—A Vile Aspersion and an Explanation Demanded.

A meeting of the Democratic General Committee was held last evening, Tunis G. Bergen in the chair. The Aldermen and Supervisors nominated by the primaries were endorsed by the committee. Register Hugh McLaughlin remarked that certain charges had been made against the nominees of the regular organization, and thought it but proper that these should be answered. District Attorney Morris, on being called upon, addressed the meeting, advocating the claim of Samuel S. Powell, the nominee for Mayor, in the strongest terms. He then spoke of Mayor Kalbfleisch in no very laudatory language, though he knew him to be honest. The Mayor, he said, gave the world to understand that the city of Brooklyn was bankrupt, while he himself bought up the bonds to the amount of $1,400,000, giving his checks for $200,000 and over at a time. This, the speaker said, was "bearing the stocks to buy them and bulling the market to sell them." Mr. Morris then read an extract from a local paper run by the leader of the "reformers," in which it was charged that the female teachers in the public schools of Brooklyn were engaged "not for educational advantages, but for vile purposes by the Board of Education." On motion of Mr. McLaughlin a committee of five was appointed to wait on the Mayor requesting him not to allow the author of this libel to frequent his office. The following committee was appointed:—General Dakin, W. C. Kingsley, Hugh McLaughlin, Alderman Nolan and John Pyburn.

CHEMUNG COUNTY POLITICS.

The Democracy in the Ascendant—A Reasonable Majority for Their State Ticket—A Family Quarrel Over District Attorney—Probable Election of the Republican Candidate—The Question of an Honest Legislature—The Fight for the Assembly—Expected Re-election of the Democratic Member—Close Contest for State Senator in the District—Advantages of the Respective Candidates—Both Parties Anticipate a Victory.

ELMIRA, Chemung County, Oct. 30, 1871.

Both political parties are quite active here, which increases the interest of the canvass. It is conceded that the democracy will carry their State ticket in this county, the only question being as to the majority. There is great difference of opinion on that point. The republicans take several hundred off the democratic estimate. The county was very close in 1868. It gave just one majority for Grant, the vote being 3,709 to 3,708. At the same election Hoffman had 132 majority over Griswold for Governor. Returns of subsequent elections show that the democrats have been gaining in the county. The republicans, however, claim that in reality both political parties are very evenly divided; that a light vote tells more against them than against the democrats, and that on occasions of national interest, like a Presidential canvass, when the full strength of their party is brought out, the race is about neck and neck, with the chances rather in their favor. Last year Hoffman had 580 majority over Woodford. The democrats declare that their majority this year for State officers and for members of the Legislature will be at least 500. With a single exception all the democratic candidates for local offices are pretty certain of election by greater or lesser majorities. That exception is District Attorney for the county, and the success of their candidate is a matter about which the democrats themselves are very much in doubt. In the Convention there were two prominent rival aspirants for the position, and after the proceedings opened a lively scene ensued. Finally both of them were thrown overboard, and a new man was nominated. But both the disappointed lawyers and their friends are still at loggerheads. They are displeased with the action of the delegates, and seem determined to retaliate. They seek satisfaction in some way, and are likely to find it in the defeat of the democratic candidate. Seeing that the democrats were divided and demoralized the republicans, who held their county convention afterwards, made a very judicious nomination, and they feel quite confident that their man will be elected. The republicans believe there are enough disaffected democrats who will either not vote at all or will vote on the other side to secure the election of their candidate. Beyond this the republicans do not expect to carry the county for any of their State or local officers. But they hope the disaffection in the democratic ranks will have some effect on the majorities. They do not think the democratic majority for the State ticket will run higher than three hundred.

The interest in this election is more especially confined, first, to District Attorney, and next, to Member of Assembly for the county and Senator for the district. The county is democratic, but the Senatorial district is republican. For four years successively the democrats have elected their Assemblyman. Their last successful candidate, David B. Hill, is up for re-election. His opponent is James McCann, who ran in 1868 and was defeated. Hill's friends say he is popular in the county, even among members of the other party. He prides himself upon having made active efforts, and with some success, to secure legislation for the local interests of the people of the county of Chemung, and especially of the city of Elmira. There is a third candidate in the field for the Assembly, Mr. Cowen, who represents a small organization known as the labor reformers. Its voting strength amounts to about two hundred. Hill and his friends hope he will get nearly all the votes of the labor reformers this year on the ground that his efforts at Albany were calculated to promote the interests of the class of persons who principally compose that little party. On the other hand the republicans set up the battle cry of integrity and honesty. They remind the electors of Chemung that Hill was a member of last year's Legislature and voted for the swindling schemes of Tweed and his co-conspirators of Tammany. The leaders of the Tammany Ring are denounced as criminals of the deepest dye, and the plan of the republicans is to show, at least by implication, that all the democratic candidates for re-election to offices at Albany were participants in their crimes, and should share their obloquy. They argue that in the absence of any important political issue having special reference to this State it is essential to the interests of the taxpayers to have in the Legislature a majority distinguished for integrity and honesty. Such majority, they say, should necessarily be republicans; for all the republican candidates are honest, if all the democratic are not otherwise. But their wholesale denunciation of the democrats are not swallowed by many outside the ranks of the republican party. Hence they will not have much effect in this election, even in the fight for member of Assembly. Hill may not run so well as he and his friends anticipate, but it is likely that he will be re-elected by a reasonable majority.

There is some excitement in the district over the contest for State Senator—not so much in Chemung, perhaps, as in Steuben, the adjoining county. Both the candidates are citizens of Steuben, and more interest is manifested there than in either Chemung or Schuyler. Each nominee has considerations in his favor. The democratic candidate has the advantage in personal popularity, and the republican has the greater advantage of a traditional majority. George B. Bradley, of Corning, is the democratic candidate. He has secured an excellent reputation in this section as a lawyer of ability, and, with many friends, and few, if any foes, he is personally popular. It is acknowledged that he will get the full democratic vote in both Chemung and Schuyler, and that, especially in Steuben, he will make more or less inroads upon his republican competitor. The democrats believe the republicans are frightened, and hence they have hopes that Bradley may possibly be elected. He will run ahead of his ticket; but the republican majority is usually about a thousand in the district. The republicans have nominated Colonel Gabriel T. Harrower. Although there is more or less objection to him on the part of individuals on account of his political antecedents, his positive character and the freedom with which he expresses his opinions about persons, there is no organized opposition to him in his party. Indeed, seeing Bradley's friends so sanguine, the republicans are displaying an activity which signifies that they intend to make Harrower's election certain. The vote for Senator in Schuyler county will be nearly even. On an important political issue the county is republican, but in the present case, while it may give a small majority for Harrower, the majority will be less than usual. So even is the vote there expected to be that by common consent both parties seem to count Schuyler out as having any practical influence in the election of Senator. This county will give four or five hundred majority for Bradley, so that the contest is principally confined to the remaining county. The republicans of Steuben claim a majority of 1,000 for Harrower, but it is more than doubtful that it will reach anything near that number. Last year the republican majority for Governor was only 768, and with the prospect of a lighter general vote this year they could not reasonably count on a larger majority than that for Senator, even if their candidate was personally more popular. As the matter now stands Bradley has a very fair prospect of success. The odds seem slightly in favor of Harrower, but, taking all the circumstances and the arguments of the democrats into account, Bradley's election does not seem to be so very difficult a matter.

GEORGIA REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31, 1871.

BERMUDA.

By steamship San Francisco, Captain Reynolds, at this port yesterday, we received newspaper files from Bermuda, dated to the 27th of October.

The St. Georges (Bermuda) Colonist of the 27th ultimo says:—The swinging bridge at the Causeway was opened for commercial purposes for the first time on Thursday, when it was swung to admit the English brig Clara, of 187 tons burden, which vessel was brought through without accident, and entered the harbor of Bermuda amid a cloud of bunting.

The companionship of the Order of Sts. Michael and George was conferred on John Harvey Darrell, late Chief Justice of Bermuda.

The French gunboat Castor, Commander Huet, left Bermuda for France. The Castor, from Santiago de Cuba for France, arrived in Hamilton harbor to obtain a supply of coal, water, &c. One of her stewards, who had been unwell for nearly three weeks from fever and ague and greatly prostrated in strength, suddenly became very ill and died on the following evening. The man was named Louis Dutel, a native of France, aged thirty-four years.

William Mott had his skull badly fractured while getting on the Harlem cars at Forty-fifth street. He was taken up and sent to Bellevue Hospital.

A number of Germans got into a difficulty last night at No. 98 Willett street, and three of them, were seriously injured. One Knopf, who is supposed to have done the most damage, was arrested.

Stephen Coughlan, of Dutch Kills, L. I., was severely injured yesterday by the falling of a wall in Thirty-second street, near Fourth avenue. He was sent to Bellevue Hospital in an ambulance.

The case of Captain McDonnell, of the Thirtieth precinct, was dismissed by the Commissioners yesterday for want of evidence. It was satisfactorily proved that the captain was not in the liquor store at the time they charged he was, and could not possibly get up the difficulty imputed to him.

At a quarter-past six o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the workshop of the establishment 97 Greene street. The tools and stock were damaged $700. Insured for $2,300 in the Kings County and Relief Insurance Company. The fire was caused by sparks from a stove which was used for drying purposes.

Coroner Herrman yesterday took charge of the investigation in the case of James Lyons, the man who was killed on Monday evening, at the corner of Tenth street and avenue A, by being run over by car No. 7 of the Forty-second and Grand street ferry line, as heretofore published in the HERALD. Permission was given to the relatives of deceased to remove his remains to his late residence, 58 Scammel street, for interment. Coroner Herrman yesterday released the driver of the car, who had been arrested, and an investigation will take place at the City Hall on Thursday morning. Deceased was attempting to jump on the front platform of the car at the time of the accident.

HEAVY SNEAK ROBBERY.

Last night the robbery of the residence of Mr. Robert Shultz, No. 132 Amity street, Brooklyn, was reported at Police Headquarters, corner Court and Livingston streets. It appears that the dwelling in question was entered by a sneak thief through the hall door, which had been left unlocked while the family were partaking of the evening meal in the basement. The rogue made his way up stairs to the apartments on the second floor, where he procured the following booty:—A lady's neck chain and locket, set with diamonds and pearls, valued at $300; two breastpins, value $150; two diamond rings, $125, and two cuff buttons, $45—total valuation $620. The chances of recovering the stolen property are exceedingly slight.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

Address of the Democratic State Executive Committee.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 31, 1871.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the State, of which ex-Governor Bragg is chairman, has issued an address to the people, in which it is denied that the recent defeat of the call for a Convention was a republican success. The committee say the election was not in favor of or against any political party, and that it turned on collateral and immaterial issues, and not upon the merits of the issue submitted to the people. After suggesting the legislative mode of amending the constitution and designating the various features—numbering ten in all—in which it should be amended the committee thus arraigns the constitution and its republican framers:—

> Under this organic law the people are subjected to an intolerable misrule at the hands of the radical party. By means of notorious fraud, force and the sword that party had absolute control of the Convention that framed the present constitution, and like control of the first Legislature that assembled under it; and, although the people were impoverished, this radical Convention and Legislature increased the public debt from $2,000,000 to near $20,000,000 in less than eighteen months. Of this $20,000,000 less than $500,000 have gone into the public works or to the benefit of the people. This party placed in office a Governor who absolutely suspended the constitution and laws of the State. He arrested scores of innocent citizens without warrant or any authority of law. He suspended the writ of habeas corpus and defied the Chief Justice of the State. He made his warrant from time to time on the treasurer for large sums of money, without the sanction of law. He raised a lawless and mercenary horde of desperadoes and armed them at the public expense to execute his despotic will. This party elected to the State Convention and the Legislature scores of men notorious for their ignorance, licentiousness, dishonesty and corruption, who, at the behests of their party and knavish speculators, increased the public debt to the enormous sum already stated. This party degraded and disgraced the judiciary by electing to high judicial stations men shamefully ignorant and corrupt and others who have not scrupled to manifest the most blatant partisan feelings while holding their offices. This party have ruined the credit of the State; they have blasted the hopes and prosperity of the people in the most shameless and defiant manner; they have made every department of the government a byword and reproach. To establish the truth of these charges we need but to point to the history of the State for the last three years and appeal to the observation of every intelligent citizen.

The address attributes most of the crime and outrage that has recently occurred in the State to the prostitution of legislative and judicial departments of the government by radical partisans, and charges these with endeavoring to fasten on the democratic party the connivance at and encouragement of such crime and outrage. This the committee unqualifiedly denounces as false and infamous in the last degree, and urges its friends to set their faces against all lawlessness and violence, and to be especially active in preventing secret outrages by disguised persons of any and all political parties. On the subject of the national politics the address says:—

> It is to be regretted that the people of this State have failed to take any very active interest in national politics since the close of the late war. In our judgment this is unwise. The people are of the Union. It is our government and to it we must look, as we have the right, for support and protection in our rights, liberties and property at home and abroad. We owe it allegiance and support and it is a patriotic duty to yield these. It is as much our duty to join our fellow countrymen in shaping and controlling the policy and destiny of this great common national government. We have all the rights that any of the American people have, and we are false to the country and ourselves if we fail to recognize, exercise and act upon them. The people have rights; let them exercise them firmly and respectfully, and when need be assert them as freemen and American citizens in the councils of the nation, in political assemblages and everywhere. If we consent to be dwarfed and ignored nationally, then, indeed, we may expect to be for all time to come.

It then enumerates all the political evils and grievances of the country, which it charges to the republican party, and says:—

> It is essentially a party inimical and dangerous to the constitution and public and personal liberty. It is founded upon the despotic dogma that there is a "higher law" than the constitution; it is emphatically and essentially a higher law party. This dogma is its life and soul, and it proceeds on the Jesuitical maxim that "The end justifies the means." Hence it is the head of this party, the President, does not hesitate to send the army to New York and elsewhere at the North, to this State, Texas and all over the South, in violation of the letter and spirit of the constitution, to control the elections and prepare the way for his and his party's continued ascendancy and his own election. Hence too, we find him for like purposes suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in a time of profound peace, arresting the citizen without warrant or lawful authority, but only by lawless force. Hence, too, we find this party in Congress avowedly, and in the most riotous manner, passing laws at one time to oust jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the Union, to prevent that great tribunal from declaring its acts and assaults on the constitution unconstitutional and void; at another time passing a similar law to "pack" that Court with partisans to alter a solemn decision already made, but distasteful to this higher law party. Hence, too, hundreds of other similar acts done by this party illustrate the principles, policy and practices which we have attributed to it, and which, if not arrested and suppressed must result in the absolute overthrow of the system of our government, framed and handed down to us by Washington and his compatriots. That such a party has been allowed to spring up on American soil is monstrous and alarming.

The address concludes as follows:—

> There is but one other political party in the country—that is the national democratic party. In our judgment it is the patriotic duty of every lover of liberty and free government to co-operate with that great and powerful party to arrest the tremendous evils to which we have adverted, and which will, sooner or later, if not suppressed, destroy freedom and establish despotism and the sword. To accomplish this great measure of reform in our State and national governments we cordially invite the zealous co-operation of every patriot, without regard to his hitherto party affiliations. We stand in determined opposition to the crimes and evils to which we have briefly directed public attention, and we ask all good people to stand with us, trusting that such common patriotic effort, through the blessing of God, may save us and our country from impending danger and ruin.

RANDOLPH'S REMONSTRANCE.

The Executive of New Jersey in Collision with the Court of Chancery—The Railroad Monopoly at the Bottom of the Trouble.

A very important case came before the Court of Chancery of New Jersey at Trenton yesterday. At the latest session of the Legislature an act was passed incorporating the German Valley Railroad. The Governor did not sign the bill, but counsel for the company maintain that inasmuch as five days intervened before the Governor sent any notification of his objections the bill became a law. The Chancellor said that owing to the gravity of the questions raised in the case he would reserve his decision. Governor Randolph addressed a letter to Courtland Parker on the subject, in which he says that under pretext for a short local railroad in a rural and somewhat isolated part of the State this single charter gave, in consequence of its ingenious wording, all the powers hitherto wanting for the completion of a road between the cities of New York and Philadelphia, with such powers for expansion and increasing the capital that he deemed it right to veto it.

In stating the case Governor Randolph observes that persons interested in the privileges of the German Valley Railroad bill, failing to obtain his official sanction to its provisions, have instituted a suit in the Court of Chancery of the State, the whole object of which is manifestly to test the validity of the Executive action. "Twice," says the Governor, "have I declined to obey subpœnas from a Master in Chancery to appear and give evidence in the suit. The Chancellor, to whose attention these documents and my non-attendance has been called, has caused to be served upon me as a citizen a summons directing me to show cause why I should not appear and testify, and at the same time to bring the official papers referred to.

This act of the Court of Chancery presumes, therefore, to define when the Executive prerogative ceases and the liability of the citizen begins.

The Governor then desires it to be stated to the Court of Chancery—which was done—that "I deny the authority of the Court of Chancery to compel my attendance before it, to answer for any official act of mine."

It follows that no authority (save through charges of impeachment) can suspend the Executive functions; and, if this be true, preliminary steps by judicial summons are, at least, useless.

The mere attempt to exercise the power of one branch of the government against the other seems to me both unfortunate and dangerous; and, with a view of having the whole question promptly decided by our highest legal tribunal, I have deemed it desirable, for the public good, to take this course—to place the engrossed copy of the bill in the office of the Librarian of this State. Within this office the bill will be subject to the Chancellor's order and mine alone.

If the Chancellor holds to the opinion that the paper is a proper one to be considered by this Court his order will now obtain it from the librarian.

The Chancellor evidently does think so, as the argument yesterday testifies, but the Governor intimates that he deems it right to employ counsel to test the constitutionality of the interference here attempted. Those who know the Chancellor are well aware that he is categorical to an extreme in his judicial opinions, and very sensitive at every encroachment of the Court of Errors on what he considers his domain. A remarkable probate case, two years ago, provoked a collision between the Court of Chancery and the Court of Errors. The Chancellor resisted the assumption that his decision could be reviewed by the Tribunal of Errors, but the latter nevertheless overruled his judgment in the case and settled the question of co-ordinate jurisdiction. It is very probable that the issue now raised by the Governor will come before the Court of Errors whether the Chancellor decides it to be purely a question of equity or not.

ALEXANDER'S BOY.

Will Not the Autumn Winds Hurry Him Along or Carry the Murmurs of the Fair Citizens to Him?

Alexis, the long looked for imperial scion of the House of Alexandrovitch, is still hidden from the eyes of the anxious belles of New York. If he could only realize the extent of the preparations made and see in his mind's eye the fair faces and elegant forms engaged for the reception and the hearty and enthusiastic welcome these will extend to him he would surely send to the engineers of the clumsy old hulls, and bid them pile up the coal in the furnaces and hasten forward to this city. If he cannot give such an order himself perhaps the respected old Vice Admiral would for once dispense with the customary red tape and say, "Certainly, pile it up."

Everything being completed so far as the Executive Committee is concerned, the delay now seems monotonous and intolerable. Their office yesterday, contrary to the general rule, seemed quite deserted and the surroundings appeared to partake of the dulness of the day. There were a good many inquirers. Paterfamilias says his wife and daughter are quite vexed with the Prince, and that if he does not soon come along the new costumes will be packed away and the young Muscovite forgotten. The most annoying part of the affair is for Jullien, who has to keep his band in waiting until one o'clock every day; but if they have to wait much longer on their present stipend it is doubtful if they will have wind enough left in them for a blast on the day of the arrival of the Grand Duke. The military are getting impatient and want to have their parade over before election day. By the way, this is another consideration. The election law prohibits any parade in the city on the day of election, and custom has made that clause almost obligatory also on the day previous to the meeting at the polls. Thus, if many salt water prophets are correct in their judgment that the Russian fleet will not be here for a week yet, the Prince would be just in time to be too late, as the saying goes, as he would not be landed on either the 7th or 8th of November. If he should arrive here on or about the 6th he would most certainly have to wait on the ship until the 9th or "waive" the reception, to employ legal phraseology. Madeira is a long way off and the Atlantic is extremely treacherous; hence the probabilities are that the fleet will not be here until a week has elapsed.

COMMODORE ASHBURY'S DEPARTURE.

The British Yachtsman Homeward Bound—The Livonia Fitting Out for Her Ocean Voyage.

Mr. James Ashbury, Commodore of the Royal Harwich Yacht Club, leaves for Old England to-day in the steamship China. His new clipper yacht Livonia, which has attracted so much attention here within the past two or three weeks will follow him in a day or two, although, of course, with no sanguine hopes of overhauling the Cambria on the way.

Mr. Ashbury was, as usual, seated in his room at the Brevoort House last evening, up to his eyes in newspapers, mails and carpet-bags, having a considerable amount of packing to do prior to clearing for Brighton. He was visited by a HERALD representative, who, appreciating the pressing condition of affairs, forbore entering into any lengthened conversation upon yachting matters. In reply to a question as to whether the Commodore was satisfied with the result of the series of international contests for the possession of the "Queen's Cup," the gentleman briefly stated that he was disappointed. He had, he said, come over in hopes of winning the cup, but was dissatisfied at the manner in which the arrangements had been carried out. "What I complain of," continued Mr. Ashbury, "is the fact that the committee completely disregarded my protest. Moreover, I objected to the course, when it was in the power of the committee to have all the races outside. Again, I protested against the committee's naming the vessel against which the Livonia was to contend on the morning of the race. With these exceptions, I do not complain of any unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the committee."

"Well, Mr. Ashbury, do you intend to claim the cup when you return to England?"

"Oh, certainly not; the cup has been sailed for by me and lost, and, of course, that's the end of it, so far as I am concerned. What I shall simply do when I return is to set forth the facts as they stand."

"What was your idea in 'going it alone' over the course?"

"Merely to show that I was entitled to sail again according to my protest. You see that I might have won the other race. But as it was ruled by the committee that my protest was useless so the matter ends."

Mr. Ashbury then added that he had nothing further to say in connection with the races. When the Livonia returned to England she would be overhauled prior to a trip to the West Indies. Mr. Ashbury intends building a cutter for racing purposes, but will not come back to America next year, having already made arrangements for a trip to India, by the regular mail steamer.

THE EIGHTEENTH WARD MARKET.

Stand and Stall Holders Resolve to Resume Business—The City Authorities to be Asked for Help.

A number of stand and stall holders of the Eighteenth Ward Market, located at the foot of East Sixteenth street, met last evening in the market building to consider how business might be resumed by them. Mr. George Moore presided and explained the object of the meeting. From his remarks and those made by others it appears that the market proved an utter failure within a very few months after it was opened; so much so that about June last—eight months after the opening—nearly every stand and stall holder had to desert it. This, it was said, was due to the combined influences of the small traders in the neighborhood, who continued to circulate damaging reports concerning it. It was determined last evening that another trial should now be had, and for this purpose a committee of five was appointed to wait to-day on the Comptroller and City Chamberlain for the purpose of getting all back rents wiped out and a promise of free use of the building until such time as business would begin to pay. The sums of $3 and $5 are charged for stands and stalls, and such rent, it was said, is more than is charged in any other market in the city. The stand and stall holders are prepared to lose money for a time now, with the hope of being ultimately the gainers.

YOU SEE DAT WOMAN DAR?

The Thunderbolt's Constituents—Marriage of One of "Mike's" Sable Friends at the City Hall.

Yesterday afternoon the attachés of the offices of the Board of Aldermen were somewhat amused by the entry of a sable citizen, accompanied by a somewhat lighter colored female. He walked with a proud step into Mr. Hardy's room and asked:—

"Am Mr. Norton in dar?"

"No, sir, he is not," said Mr. John Hardy.

"Whar kin I fine um?"

"He does not come here now, except very seldom. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"You see dat woman dar? Wot you tink she's dar for? We's agwine fur to get morrid; dot's it."

"All right, sir; I think you can be obliged."

Hereupon Alderman Plunkitt was called. He went through the form in most solemn style and with his most weighty tones. When the usual formula had been concluded the sable groom said:—

"Well, sar, how much yam dat?"

"Oh, that's all right, sir. Mr. Norton will settle all the necessary charges for you."

The hero then tucked his bride's arm under his own and strutted out of the room, regardless of the smiles of the loungers whom he was obliged to pass.

TODD'S TROUBLES TERMINATED.

In the United States District Court, at Trenton, yesterday, Lewis L. Todd, who has been in prison some time in connection with the charges associated with the Fireman's Insurance Company, of Jersey City, was liberated on his own recognizance of $1,000 to appear and answer at any time he may be needed questions which counsel for the creditors may wish to put concerning the late fire company in Jersey City.

The King of Spain and His New Ministerial Advisers.

A DIFFICULTY BRIDGED OVER

The Meaning of the Recent Elections Throughout France.

SPAIN.

The Ministerial Crisis—The New Cabinet will Carry Out Zorrilla's Programme—Excitement in the Capital—Demonstrations in the Streets and Before the Palace—The King Receives a Delegation.

MADRID, Oct. 10, 1871.

After an immense amount of unsuccessful effort in other quarters, including many denials from Señor Zorrilla, His Majesty, at the instance of Señor Sagasta, entrusted the formation of the new Cabinet to Vice Admiral Malcampo, whose best qualification, perhaps, is that he has mixed almost less than any one in politics. He is a Senator in the present Cortes. He was commandant of the frigate Zaragoza on the day of the rising of the fleet at Cadiz. Since then he has spent the most of his time on service in Cuban waters. As might be expected, the Ministry he has formed, is entirely of adherents of Señor Sagasta. He made many overtures to friends of Señor Zorrilla, but in every case received the cold shoulder.

THE NEW CABINET.

War—General Bassols.
Gobernacion—Señor Candau.
Grace and Justice—Señor Alonso Colmenares.
Fomento—Señor Telesforo Montejo.
Ultramar—Señor Victor Balaguer.
Finance—Señor Santiago Angulo.
State—Señor Cantalapiedra.

The new Ministry are all professedly of the progresista party, and all equally unused to the life of the Banco Azul. Their deeds must prove them. At present they give it to be understood they purpose carrying out Señor Zorrilla's programme in all its integrity. In political circles it is hinted that they are only formed as a bridge to pass over the two months wanting to complete the minimum of legal Parliamentary life, at the end of which time a dissolution, and then new elections will take place.

THE SITUATION.

When I last wrote you the King had telegraphed an offer of the Premiership to Espartero. As I expected, the old hero telegraphed a refusal on the ground of his age and infirmities. Immediately he received this answer His Majesty sent for Señor Sagasta. Sagasta again urged the calling on Señor Zorrilla to continue with the same Cabinet, in the assurance that to carry out his policy he could count on all, or the greater portion, of that part of the progresista body which had voted in his (Sagasta's) favor. If this was not deemed sufficient guarantee by Señor Zorrilla, let him, said he, reorganize his Cabinet, giving place in it to some of the dissident progresistas, by which means union would be reestablished and a governing majority formed. Accepting these indications the King sent again for Señor Zorrilla and begged him to continue at the head of the government in one of the forms indicated by the President elect of the Congress. Señor Zorrilla replied in terms very affectionate to His Majesty that having been defeated in Parliament he could not return to power with the same Ministry and the same policy without experiencing a defeat at every step. After what had passed he had no faith in the power of Señor Sagasta to control the votes of those who had elevated him to the Chair, while, as respected the modification of his Ministry, that would signify a modification of his policy, which he would not make in one jot or tittle.

A DILEMMA.

His Majesty then sent for Señor Sagasta and Señor Santa Cruz, President of the Senate. They suggested Zorrilla's Minister of War, General Cordova, who had accompanied the King in his journey, as a suitable person to form a Ministry. Cordova was accordingly sent for. He lost no time in presenting himself at the Palace, and declined the honor, giving as his reasons that, apart from all other difficulties he might experience in forming a Ministry, he was determined to represent no other policy than that of the Ministry of which he had formed a part, and he would not expose himself to be defeated by those who had defeated himself and his friends in the Congress on Tuesday.

ANOTHER APPEAL TO SAGASTA.

Sagasta was then called a third time, and suggested Vice Admiral Malcampo, to whom he said his friends would lend all their support. Malcampo, summoned, accepted the task conditionally, and at once set to work, of course under Señor Sagasta's inspiration to form his Cabinet. At four this afternoon Admiral Malcampo reported to His Majesty the names I have given you, with the exception of Señor Cantalapiedra, who, being in the provinces, had been telegraphed to with the offer of the Ministry of State, and whose answer had not been received. Since then he has accepted, and to-morrow the new Cabinet present themselves to the Cortes.

HOW MADRID FEELS ABOUT IT.

I must give you an idea of the ferment created in Madrid by the upset of the Zorrilla Ministry. Let me take things in their order. The Tertulia Progresista, or Progresista Club, had arranged for a meeting on Tuesday night, at the instance of the Vice President, the Deputy Señor Llanl y Persi, who, with another of its members, the Deputy Señor Salmeron, had made the tour of the provinces with the King. The meeting had been summoned merely to hear from those gentlemen an account of the principal events of the royal journey; but, in view of the turn of political matters, they agreed to discuss the attitude they ought to take in view of the crisis. Señor Llanl y Persi remarked that he thought the Tertulia ought to express its sympathies with the Zorrilla Ministry, as it had fulfilled the programme it presented to the country the day it took office. They ought to respect and uphold a Ministry which had revived the national credit, regulated the finances, levelled the estimates, made public administration moral, and sustained public order. The Tortulia accorded to go en masse to felicitate Señor Zorrilla "for his glorious fall." All present, about two hundred, started off immediately. About two hundred others joined them in the streets. In due time they reached the house. Señor Llani y Persi made an eloquent, or, as one of the papers calls it, an "inspired" speech, in which he felicitated him on his fall, remarking that in his conception a fall so honorable was of greater worth than fictitious triumphs due to declared enemies of the constitution and of liberty. Señor Zorrilla was deeply moved. He thanked them for their visit and for the words they had addressed. He said his policy ever would be the same; that he would ever be with the liberal party, and that he left office with the satisfaction of an honest man, who believed he had done his duty. He passed eulogies on the King, and expressed his confidence that His Majesty would resolve all the crises which might occur in a constitutional manner. He ended giving a "Viva el Rey!"

MOVEMENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS.

Early yesterday morning the greater part of the University students turned out to make a demonstration against Sagasta and in favor of Zorrilla. They paraded the streets for some time, passing the houses of both, and giving the vivas of "Life" and "Death," respectively, before each. The most important manifestation was the one held in the Prado in the afternoon, under the shadow of the Dos de Mayo Monument. Invited by handbills, posted early in the morning on the walls, a multitude of some ten to fifteen thousand persons gathered there at three o'clock—most of them of what we should call the middle class. They carried many a banner with a strange device, but all bore some reference to the politics of the hour. One of these was, "Viva el Gobierno radical, economico y moral." A long interval elapsed ere any one attempted to address them. Vivas to "Zorrilla and his Cabinet" and vivas to the "King and constitution" kept the crowd alive until one Señor Sanchez opened the ball by addressing them. He is a republican. He made a fierce attack on the conservative party, whom he accused of being at the bottom of Señor Sagasta's schemes. He declared that their history was written with "our blood and that of our fathers and grandfathers." He eulogized Zorrilla and his policy, and declared that, though a republican, he would support any monarchical government that was as liberal, as tolerant and as reformist as that of Señor Zorrilla. He concluded with "Viva la Soberania nacional!" "Viva el Gobierno radical!"

RADICALS TO THE DEFENCE.

Señor Garcia remarked on the necessity of union between progresists radicals and republicans at periods like these. The crowd was now joined by a deputation from the Tertulia Progresista, who brought with them, exhibited from an open car, adorned with national flags, &c., a large portrait of General Prim, surmounted by the words I once heard him use in the Cortes when attacked by the unionists, "Radicales à Defenderse!" (Radicals, to the defence!). Señor Martos was the next speaker. He said the government presided over by his worthy friend Señor Zorrilla, honorably fulfilling its radical programme, demonstrating to the country and to the world that in Spain liberty and order were compatible things and raising the national credit to an attitude nobody believed possible, had conquered for itself the support of public opinion. In proof of which the people of Madrid had spontaneously met together and given an initiative which doubtless would be seconded by the provinces. Their object was in no way to coerce the King or to interfere with his faculty to resolve the crisis, but simply to show the popular desires. He recommended the greatest order, and concluded with vivas to the King and to the national sovereignty. Cries were then raised of

"AL PALACIO!" "AL PALACIO!"

(To the Palace! to the Palace!) and in the most orderly procession ever seen in Madrid the crowd moved toward the Royal Palace. When they passed the house of Señor Sagasta, in Calle Alcala, they gave vivas to "Zorrilla," to the "Radical Ministry," &c., while some few cried out, "Abajo Sagasta!" "Muerte a los traidores!" (Down with Sagasta! Death to the traitors!) In front of the Puerto del Sol, at the Principal or Ministry de la Gobernacion they repeated the vivas to Zorrilla. The manifestation by this time having attained great proportions, part took the Calle Mayor and part took the Calle Arenal, uniting again in the Plaza Oriente, under the windows of the palace. There they gave repeated vivas to the King and Queen, to Zorrilla, to the Ministry of Economy and Morality, &c., and delegated a commission to seek an interview with His Majesty. Señor Chacon, a deputy to the Cortes, presided over this commission. Without any difficulty the commission were instantly for Amadeus has already proved himself the King of the people. Señor Chacon briefly explained that their object was to present to His Majesty the sentiments of respect of the people of Madrid, and at the same time the lively sympathies the nation felt for the Ministry presided over by Señor Zorrilla, and how deeply they regretted its disappearance from power. His Majesty answered with expressions of his appreciation towards the Spanish people, and the regret he felt at not being able to go out on the balcony to salute them. Their own sense, however, would show them the necessity of depriving himself, in this instance, of that pleasure, as theirs was a political demonstration. They might depend on his acting constitutionally in the solution of the crisis.

RECEIVED BY THE KING,

THE MEETING DISBAND.

The deputation then reported the result to the meeting, which immediately retired from the palace and proceeded in the greatest order to the Plaza de la Villa, in front of the house once occupied by the famous Cardinal Ximenes. Here they peacefully dissolved, after a neat speech from Señor Llani y Persi, who closed by "saluting the respectable and imposing majesty of the people of Madrid."

MORE MANIFESTATIONS.

A little before this manifestation assembled some of the University students set off in procession to the house of Señor Zorrilla, in front of which they gave many vivas. They sent a deputation to express their sympathies with him and to ask him to address them. He thanked the deputation, but declined to make a speech in the present phase of affairs, though, in response to their salutations, he said he would show himself to them from the balcony, which he did, and was loudly cheered. Off the students then marched to the palace, where they sought an interview with the King. This was very properly, but very courteously, denied them by General Rossells, the Chief of the Cuarto Militar del Palacio, who told them that His Majesty was occupied, but that any document they prepared in writing would be instantly presented to him. They retired and broke up their procession in the greatest order. There has been no breach of the peace, but the greatest possible excitement in Madrid by day and by night ever since Tuesday.

FRANCE.

The Present Condition of the Country—Meaning of the Late Elections—A Reign of Terror—Fears and Surmises—The Agents of Bonapartism and Bourbonism Active.

PARIS, Oct. 9, 1871.

No commentary upon the condition of things in France could be more eloquent and instructive than the result of the elections to the Conseils Généraux. The features which have marked all the elections—and they have been numerous—since September 4, 1870, have been successfully reproduced, with a more heightened color and deeper effect. The triumph of the worst elements in the country has been each time more decided, because each time the abstention from the polls of the honest and order-loving classes has been more and more marked. The proof that terrorism exists is found in the fact that it is precisely in places most seriously threatened by revolutionary violence that this abstention is most observable. Thus in the city of Marseilles, where over seventy-five thousand voters are inscribed, the total of votes polled yesterday was less than thirty-five thousand. The consequence was that the "red" ticket was elected by a majority of two-thirds of the votes polled; and among the elected for the department is Baragnon, fresh from his trial before a court martial for attempts to excite civil war. To show how utterly helpless is government authority and the profound contempt entertained for it by the radicals, the very lists condemned as dishonest, only two weeks ago, by the Ministry of the Interior, were the lists used yesterday. The conservatives in the meantime expend their energies in mere protests, which are as harmless to the victorious enemy as the paper they are printed on.

GIVING AN ACCOUNT OF THEIR STEWARDSHIP.

Last week the newspapers of Lyons amused their readers by an account of what occurred on the return home of the Deputies of the second city in France. Messieurs Millaud and Ordinaire are the elect of the radicals, and as such had to go before the Revolutionary Committee of the Rue Grolée to render an account of their stewardship. Millaud, while giving certain explanations, appeared to protest against the mandat impératif, or imperative orders, of his masters. His violent denunciation of the Assembly could not save him. In vain he called his legislative colleagues "old fools," "idiots," "tyrants," "drivellers," &c., in order to appease the wrath of the friends and brothers.

The president of the club, one Favier, a bookbinder, stopped him in the middle of his speech, and, referring to his remarks on the mandat impératif, said, majestically, "We are accustomed to see our will obeyed and respected; do not forget it." The other Deputy, Ordinaire, took warning and said nothing about the obnoxious mandat, the precise meaning of which is that the Deputies shall vote upon no question without first consulting, by telegraph, the will of the revolutionary club.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

There is a dread upon men's minds. All the cities and towns are patrolled all night long by cavalry and infantry. The constraint is so irksome that it must produce reaction. In fact, a beginning of reaction is plainly perceptible in certain quarters. The Figaro is not perhaps a double-turreted monitor, throwing very heavy metal, but such metal as it does throw, when in a serious mood, can make its mark. In its issue of last Friday, the 6th, it makes an appeal on behalf of the legitimate monarchy under Henri V. in a two column article, written with considerable power. It has been extensively copied and commented on, and in these comments the monarchical party show that they are reflecting on their moral and material strength. The London Times falls into error when supposing the monarchists are completely paralyzed and idle. There have been, it must be admitted, ample grounds for such a supposition; but within a month, even, things have assumed new features. All honest men are anxious to have done forever with the present state of affairs, and even the Bonapartists would accept the old Bourbon monarchy with pleasure rather than see themselves threatened in their persons, families and property by the great tidal wave of anarchy which every one fears is gathering strength to submerge society in France.

FEARS FOR THE FUTURE.

The following article from La Patrie will better illustrate the meaning of the preceding sentence, while it conveys an admirably correct idea of the state of men's minds in France and the general condition of affairs.

The Liberté of the 6th having said, "The Patrie is a prey to a political misanthropy, wherein personal regrets too complacently magnify the shadows of the picture," that ex-semi-official imperialist paper thus defends itself:—

> "If by personal regrets," the Liberté means a bitter or morose chagrin in recalling what is no more, and a craving desire for a return of the past, the Liberté runs a risk of deceiving itself. * * *
> Our regrets are of another nature, and they are so constant and so ardent that we could not, even if we would, tone down our expression of them. We regret, and bitterly, the time lost since the defeat of the insurrection to the repairing of our social disasters, and bringing back and strengthening order in the country. We regret, and bitterly, to see a government appointed by conservatives repel both their aid and their friendship in order to ally itself with those to combat and reduce whom to nothingness was its mission. When we see M. Jules Simon, a member of the International, keep the inside of the Ministerial track we cannot mitigate the bitterness of our regrets; when M. Dupaure, followed, or rather preceded, at any rate guided, by M. Durrier, carries into the councils his corroding ways, protects the members of the Commune and allows the revolutionists of Paris to load M. Ranc with honors, our regrets become still more acute; when we know that liberty is granted or given to the insurgents of March our regrets redouble; when the prefects of M. Gambetta are caressed, when one fears to disturb a fold in the robe of Cremieux' attorney generals (procureurs), our regrets cannot become set at rest; when we are told on all sides that in the election the government favors the radicals rather than the conservatives, and that an official propagandism is made in favor of the former, our regrets are boundless; but not so without just and righteous reason. What regrets are ours at seeing a whole situation capriciously lost by nerveless and decayed academicians! What regrets when we see clearly that through apathy and a strange error of appreciation
> FRANCE IS BEING BROUGHT STRAIGHT BACK TO GAMBETTAISM,
> and that there is found neither in the government nor in the Chamber a man of sufficient vigor, of sufficient energy to throw under our feet, once and for all, anarchy and Jacobin dictatorships, there to be immolated and prevented forevermore from reuniting their fragments! You say that we magnify the shadows of the picture. Alas! no; we do not magnify them; we no more magnify them to-day than in those dolorous hours of gloom when we foresaw, together with you, both the insurrection of March and the triumph of the wretches already even facilitated by the weakness of a Picard, a Favre and a Ferry. * * * The 18th of March came, then the Commune, then the civil war, then the assassinations and conflagrations. Then those who had the conduct of affairs experienced regrets—personal regrets—alas! more than regrets—inextinguishable grief; but their tears have been powerless to wash out the bloody traces of our misfortunes and our shame. Well, at this moment, with their amiability, which is a fault—with their hesitations, which are so many dangers—with their compromises, which are sources of peril—our Ministers are preparing another catastrophe, brought on in a different manner, but inevitable. Well, once more, we have gloomy regrets—the regrets which the plebiscite, the declaration of war, the 4th of September, the dictatorship of Gambetta, the softness of a Picard and the incapacity of a Ferry in February and March have by turns inspired us with. And now, if you do not take care, you, government and you, conservatives, those regrets will again change into profoundest sorrow, and your uneasiness into pain undying and irremediable.

Yes, it is quite true, and it is not for Bonapartism that La Patrie is alarmed, but for France. There is not an honest man in the country who does not feel that the question of the hour is not a party question in any form, but one wherein even his own insignificant personality is involved. The time has come for a reaction, and that reaction has begun.

FOREIGN TOPICS.

Confiscations of the Convents at Rome—Driving the Nuns into the Open Streets.

The Rome correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD, writing under date of October 8, gives the following account of the expulsion of the nuns from their convents in the Eternal City:—

There is a general law of the kingdom suppressing all religious orders. This law so far has remained a dead letter in Rome, where convents, religious institutions and orders pullulate only through the deference which Minister Lanza wishes to show for the Holy Father and the Holy See. There have been exceptions to this general indulgence. The authorities appropriated the Quirinal Palace and all the other buildings which were absolutely needed to run the new machine here, and to the great disgust of the monks and nuns, although they were indemnified by certain moneys to be drawn and paid out of the national treasury. The fraternities looked upon Italy as a bad payer and protested; but nevertheless the strong arm of power turned them out of their property and they were forced to make the best of their surroundings. Day before yesterday expropriation fell upon the two convents already mentioned; their buildings were wanted for military hospital purposes, and so the public force went to take possession of them. As early as half-past six in the morning the slumbers of the nuns were disturbed at the Convent of Santa Teresa by loud knocks at its door, and upon its opening by the pastor of the establishment the government commissioners, accompanied by a posse of royal carabineers and a notary, were ushered in. In all these operations the government sends a notary, on the idea that the thing must be done in accordance with all the forms of law, although it strongly smacks of a piece of irony to the ousted parties, who declare that confiscation law is no law, but mere might. The invaders of other people's houses being introduced in the parlor, a priest asks their business and informs them that he has been charged with the direction and the keeping of the convent by no less a personage than His Holiness himself by positive and direct orders from the Vatican. Those orders are for the occupants to be put out of doors only by force, and not to consent to any mere calm walking away. In this we have an inkling of that strong, uncompromising will which animated the old temporal sway over the city and which animates still the spiritual sway over the faithful. Three nuns, completely veiled, are visible. The first solemnly and impressively enjoins upon them to retire into their private rooms, where the balance of the sisters are, and this they immediately proceed to do, after piously kissing the hand of the Pope's agent. They are to go and wait to be shoved out of the house; nor do they have to wait long, for the mere inspection of the apartments by the royal carabineers effectually drives the pious ladies into banishment into the outer world of the streets, the priests following at their heels. The notary, by order, makes a process-verbal of the operation, and lo! Victor Emmanuel has another convent, but without any nuns. No one can tell where they went, or who took them in, weary and abandoned; but it is generally believed that they scattered and took refuge in other convents which have not yet been "expropriated." A similar operation was gone through with at the monastery of St. Antonio Abate.

Another Great Tunnel in Prospect—Switzerland and Germany Hand in Hand.

The correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD in Frankfort, writing under date of October 12, has the following:—

The convention between Switzerland and a combination of German banks and firms for the construction of the Gothard line was perfected the day before yesterday. The various governments grant a subsidy of 85,000,000f.; the company to find the remaining 102,000,000f. It is a momentous risk, for there is a tunnel to be dug twice as large as the Mont Cenis Tunnel, and there is a very dangerous point with regard to the water at the height of Andermall. Rich people may risk it, but those of small means must keep aloof. The promoters rely on the subsidy of 85,000,000f. and the opponents turn the cards, saying the risk must be fearful if Prussia and other governments prefer risking their money altogether than doing the work themselves. It reminds me of a conversation between Mesdames von Stael and Recamier, when both exiles at London; the first liking English life, the second longing for the Parisian saloons. "What a miserable place London is where there are 40,000 pickpockets!" said Mme. de Recamier. Mme. von Stael retorted, "What a place London is, where 40,000 pickpockets are enabled to get a living!" All depends on the view taken of such an undertaking; still the experience made with regard to costs at the Suez Canal and the Mont Cenis Tunnel ought to deter from investments therein.

FOREIGN PERSONAL GOSSIP.

—The ex-Empress of the French while in Spain led a very quiet life at her mother's house in the neighboring village of Carabouchel.

—Babick, the illustrious "prophet of the fusionist god" and ex-member of the Paris Commune, has reappeared in the streets of Berne, Switzerland, on a donkey decked in red trappings. He proclaims he is the "prophet of the Eternal" on earth.

—Some of the Continental journals say that the betrothal of the Princess Mary Elizabeth of Prussia to the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia will ere long be officially announced. The Grand Duke is twenty-two years of age; the Princess is the eldest daughter of Prince Frederick Charles and the Princess Mary of Anholt. She was born in 1855.

—Gambetta is the hero of the following story:—"It is asserted by some, who say they know what they are talking about, that at Le Mans, during the war, Gambetta and six others held a council of war, at which it was decided to arrest and shoot the Prince de Joinville, then a volunteer doing good service against the invaders. Among the six persons at the council were the notorious Ranc and Spuller."

—The Gazette de France, having erroneously announced the arrest of Mme. or Mlle. Rose Lacomte, a streak-lightning lady and late Presidentess of the Club of Revolutionary Women, she thus informs the editor of his errors:—"I will let you know, citizen editor, that my arm is as free as my body, for they will give themselves a holiday treat in distributing over you a volley of blows from a cane if in to-morrow's number you do not retract. You know that I keep my word." No harm has come of it that we know of.

—An old lady who, at the mature age of eighty-seven, has not got done sowing her wild oats, is among the latest arrests in Paris. She is charged with having petrolized the church of St. Augustine on the night of May 23. So long ago as 1823 she was sent to prison for five years, and again in 1839 for ten years. In 1855 she and her husband were tried for murder. She escaped for want of sufficient proof, but her worthy spouse was guillotined. She acquired her education as a child among the dreadful scenes of 1792 and '93, when her mother was in all probability one of the famous tricoteuses of the period. She has not forgotten her early lessons.

FOREIGN MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The tri-color of France still flies from the spire of the cathedral at Metz.

It is rumored that the French government insists to free the Roman funds of the income tax.

The whole of the shipwrights on the Clyde who have been on strike for an advance of wages during the past six weeks were formally locked out by the masters.

There are in Paris 2,360 streets, 113 avenues, 84 boulevards, 46 quays, 133 places, 25 principal churches, 22 theatres, 38 hospitals, 8 railway termini and 27 bridges.

The colonels of the various regiments garrisoned in Paris have informed the officers that any one of them seen walking in the streets with women of bad character will be put under arrest.

The French Treasury bonds, endorsed by the leading bankers, which are to be handed to the German government in payment of the fourth half milliard of the war indemnity, will be payable in London in April and May next.

It is said that a considerable number of Communist prisoners on the hulks at Lorient died of dysentery and typhus fever last month, the average mortality being seven per week out of 1,200 prisoners. Much fear is entertained that the first cold weather will cause many deaths from inflammation of the lungs.

The committee of the International Society of Workmen at St. Gall, Switzerland, have just published a declaration ending with a rather remarkable confession:—"After reflection and the experience of the past we have come to the conclusion that all these strikes of the workmen rarely obtain the end proposed by those who engage in them."

The Avenir Liberal announces a project to found an Imperialist club, for which already 7,000 signatures have been received in Paris. In an article of the new Bonapartist journal, edited by M. Clement Duvernois, the latter says that the welfare of France can only be assured by the restoration of the empire, and he tries to show that no government has done more for the people nor given greater security to property.

DIFFICULTIES OF INVASION.

The Network of Strategical Railroads Throughout the Czar's Dominions.

AMERICA ALWAYS FRIENDLY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 20, 1871.

General Fadejew, an officer who has grown gray in the service of his country, published, soon after the close of the Austrian campaign, a book, purporting to expose several errors in the fundamental system of the organization of the Russian army, and suggesting suitable reforms. The book, as may be imagined, created great surprise and brought down quite an avalanche of opposition. The General, nothing daunted, has further exposed his opinion and replied to his critics in a series of pamphlets, which serve at the same time as supplements to his first work. Both the book and these pamphlets were originally printed in the Russian language; consequently General Fadejew has failed to attract much attention beyond the limits of the Russian empire. One of the pamphlets, entitled "THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ORIENTAL QUESTION," deserves especially to be mentioned, as nothing seems better calculated to convey an idea how far this interesting question dominates the popular mind. I have extracted therefrom a few of the more salient points and transmit them herewith. The General says that his object had not been to treat the mere abstract question touching the number of soldiers that Russia can send into the field, but that he desired to expose the more practical portion of the question, namely, what forces are required or necessary to take the field, and then he goes on to expose the popular error which led to the belief that the western borders of Russia needed not to be taken into account whenever the Czar should be called upon to make an end of this Eastern question. In refuting the assertion that the campaign of 1854 afforded sufficient evidence to prove the absence of all danger in the west the General advances the following

POINTS.

First—A coalition was proposed by the Emperor Napoleon—Austria hesitated during a few days only. It required, however, but little additional pressure at that time and we should have seen France, Austria and Italy united against us, not to speak of Prussia, whose government was at that period in a state of unconsciousness on the Eastern question.

Second—England alone was determined to keep the Polish question separated from the conflict in the East; if, therefore, the seat of war has been transferred to our Eastern borders, that change was not solely due to the resolve of the great Powers in the West. It depended on Austria to open the gates, since the road lay through her territory, where alone the allied forces could reach us.

Third—We desisted from opening hostilities in the West from the moment when we accepted the ultimatum proposed by Austria. We submitted to a sacrifice; otherwise the main battles would have been fought on our western frontiers.

CALCULATIONS.

"In making my calculations," continues General Fadejew, "I did not consider what has been done, but what ought to have been done provided we had not waived the hold we had on Austria and therewith withdrawn our demands."

HISTORICAL EVENTS.

He then refers to the alliance made in 1786 between Joseph II. and the Empress Catherine II., for the purpose of conquering, dividing and regenerating Turkey. Following historical events up to the year 1851, he says that to all appearances—at least outwardly—no change had taken place in the position which the old alliances so clearly depicted. Prussia, although disposed to be dissatisfied with the provisions of the Treaty of 1851, did not forsake her old ally. But it is more than questionable whether Napoleon would have dared to come forward in the bold manner he did unless he had possessed the certainty of being backed up by Austria. The incendiary demonstrations made by the French Emperor, which tended to incite other great Powers, would have been answered by a march on Chalons; but Napoleon knew full well that the "Holy Alliance" would offer no opposition, and that the Vienna Convention would be trampled upon. If at that period a word in season had fallen from the parties adhering to the Holy Alliance, England would have instantly withdrawn from the contest. "In the absence of a guarantee, the French demonstrations in 1853 would have appeared senseless, and, taking all into consideration, it is not difficult to come to the conclusion that on Austria alone and not on France the blame attaches of having brought about the coalition of 1854. Whatever may be said to the contrary, the facts, unless frauds introduced, cannot be changed. Austria deemed it prudent to keep her own fingers out of the fire; she released the allied Powers from their obligations towards her, and by doing so compelled the Russian forces to retire behind the line of the Pruth."

The Austrian government, General Fadejew says, showed the greatest amount of opposition at the conclusion of peace. But he asks, "What if it should now come to a decisive blow and end forever that everlasting question in the East? It may be permissible to deceive us twice, but no more than twice in the same manner, and it is for the second time that Austria has made attempts in that direction."

THE FATE OF TURKEY.

"To decide conclusively the fate of Turkey it suffices, irrespective of what may be done by the maritime Powers, to march with 150,000 men straight to the Bosphorus, and to place 250,000 men along the line of the Danube. There would be no difficulty in executing these operations, provided we have a force large enough to co-operate on the Baltic, on the borders of the Black Sea and in the Caucasus. We can steal a march on the armies of the Western Powers in reaching not only the Balkan, but even Constantinople, before they are aware of it. Suppose it were possible—and it seems very difficult to believe it possible—to meet us under the walls of Constantinople with a force such as they assembled in 1854—namely, 60,000 men—they could not defeat 150,000 Russians, no matter how large the Turkish army, for at such a juncture no regiments of Turkish regulars would exist. Long before the European allies could arrive the Turks would be scattered to the winds." * * * * * *

PUBLIC OPINION IN RUSSIA.

I need not extract more than the foregoing to show plainly the spirit of General Fadejew's argument. The language he holds is a fair sample of public opinion among Russians. A certain portion of the press follows in the same strain, while others are using every endeavor to gloss matters over. No one knows the resolve of the Emperor, nor does any one know whether, in a military point of view, the country is prepared to wage war. Sooner or later it must come to blows. General Fadejew, you perceive, lays all the blame on the shoulders of Austria, while he exonerates France. And what of Germany, it may be asked?

HOW GERMANY MIGHT ACT.

The answer is simple. Prussia—the late Prussia—in her limited sphere of action was compelled to side with Russia, but, acting as she does now, in behalf of Germany and as a great Power, there is necessarily a change of front. The great German empire will claim a right to put her veto on record. Prince Bismarck, it is generally believed, has the greatest ambition to meddle with the Eastern question, and likewise to show his authority as the German Chancellor in the religious ultramontane movement, which is so closely connected with the solution of matters concerning the East. One of the most alarming symptoms, it strikes me, consists in the conciliatory (?) tone of the Berlin press. The other day a regiment of Guards, bearing the name of the late King of Prussia, Frederick William IV., celebrated an anniversary. The German Emperor sent a telegram from Gastein to St. Petersburg congratulating the officers of the regiment, adding that he was pleased to observe that the anniversary happened to fall on the same day when he, a year ago, chastised the French at Gravelotte on the 18th of August. To use the Emperor's own words, "when I gained a victory with my army."

The incident is, I perceive, much commented on by the Berlin press as a sure sign of the complete entente cordiale which exists between the two countries. All these matters look so farcical that I cannot help thinking they are only intended to throw dust into the eyes of the people. Another farce, one of the many to which the German public is freely treated, is a report that the Czar, immediately on his return to St. Petersburg, had given orders that the German language should henceforth replace in public schools that of the French. That incident also furnished the means of assuring the people of the friendly relations which existed between Prussia and the Court of St. Petersburg. It is just possible that a different construction could be placed on the order given by the Czar, if, indeed, it was given, which is very doubtful. It recalled to my recollection that I have often heard Prussian officers make mention that it might soon be necessary to take lessons in the Russian language. Time will show what we have to expect from this Eastern question. In the meantime it will be interesting for you to receive a summary of our military position, which I endeavor to convey in the following:—

THE MILITARY POSITION OF RUSSIA.

The War Department absorbs nearly one third annually of the national income. In round numbers the receipts of the Treasury Department for the year 1871 were estimated at about three hundred and eighty million dollars; of that sum $121,000,000 are expected to be required for military purposes, while the navy absorbs a further sum of $14,000,000. During the last decade the number of persons employed in the war office has been nearly doubled. At present there are upward of eleven thousand employés, including 2,700 officers of all grades, and 120 generals. But General Militntor, the Minister of War, is firmly resolved to introduce a thorough reform in the prevailing system, and to reduce red-tape tape to the smallest possible minimum. Much has been done already in the way of ameliorating the condition of the common soldier. Schools have been established for the men, and praiseworthy efforts are being made in various directions to raise the soldier to a proper standard of self-respect. Bribery and corruption, which hitherto have deprived the soldier of much comfort—nay, even of the common necessaries of life—have not disappeared, but the pernicious system has been greatly reduced. The soldier is now protected in his rights, and the influence on his moral and physical condition is plainly visible throughout the whole army. The red-tape system involves another great evil which is now greatly on the increase. Formerly each regiment formed, so to speak, one large family. Officers and men became attached to each other, and the former felt a just pride to be in course of time at the head of the regiment. At present officers are subject to arbitrary removals, which, without looking into the case, are suddenly and irrespective of any necessity decreed from the bureaus. It follows that the esprit de corps suffers; there is nothing, now, so they contend, to bind officers to the regiment, and consequently moral influence is lessened, and, with it, a certain degree of discipline.

Moreover, there is a great scarcity of officers. While there ought to be, at the very least, a staff of 21,000 officers, there are at this moment no more than 15,000. The scarcity is explained by the miserably low salary and the low-lived existence in small garrisons. On the other hand, there is a large surplus of officers of high rank. There are upwards of one thousand generals in Russia, and almost daily fresh appointments are made, while from two hundred to three hundred would meet all and every requirement of the army. How far these complaints are justified we have no means of ascertaining; the country is so large, so vast, that you cannot possibly learn the truth of all you hear. And, unless you have an opportunity of investigating matters personally, there is every chance of your being deceived, inasmuch as the grievance of a single individual is made applicable to a host of cases.

THE GERMAN ELEMENT IN THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

Much has been said about the preponderance of the German element which prevails in the Russian army. From a statement on which I believe every reliance can be placed I have ascertained that in the ranks the proportion does not exceed two in a hundred. There is, however, a much larger proportion among the officers. Among the generals, I am told, the percentage is seventy-four—that is to say, of one hundred generals there are no less than seventy-four of German origin. Among other grades the percentage is stated to be fifty eight, and in the ranks of subalterns there are twenty-four per cent. It is difficult to foresee what influence the German element can exercise in the event of a war with Prussia or Austria. It seems more than probable that a large number of officers would retire from the service.

OBLIGATORY MILITARY SERVICE.

An imperial ukase, dated November 4-16, 1870, authorizes obligatory military service throughout Russia. The proposed measure has not given universal satisfaction. It is argued, among other objections, that the number of intelligent and educated men in Russia is proportionately very small when compared with the great mass of the people and that the withdrawal for military purposes of a certain number of educated men would press heavily on the middle classes and their vocations, while the number of those young men would, on the other hand, prove too insignificant for purposes of exercising any degree of moral influence on their less gifted brethren. The gulf, it is contended, which separates the working from the middle classes is so broad as to render it possible that while under arms they could fraternize with each other. Arguments of a similar nature are brought forward, but, I confess, they seem altogether of a weak character. The system works well in Prussia, and there is no reason to believe that it would be otherwise in Russia. However that may be, the obligatory service is not, as yet, the law of the land. A commission, under the presidency of the Minister of War, has the matter under deliberation. The draft of a bill is about to be submitted to the Emperor, and it will, as a matter of course, take some time before the new system comes into operation. In the meantime matters remain much in a state of transition. It does not, however, it appears, prevent Minister Milintin from steadily persevering in his resolve thoroughly to reform the army and prepare for any emergency that may arise.

GREAT MILITARY ACTIVITY.

The greatest activity prevails in every branch of the department. People living outside of Russia are little aware of the enormous preparations now in progress. Even those living in the country have a very imperfect knowledge of what is going on under their very noses. The fact is the government desires no controversy, no discussion, in order to avoid an unnecessary show of their actual strength, nor to expose their weak points. The vast resources of the Russian empire are little known abroad, and still less are they appreciated by foreigners. If, therefore, the military strength is undervalued outside of Russia, it is not for the government to take active steps with the view of making foreigners any wiser. I should not at all be surprised to learn that false reports are disseminated abroad for purposes of leading people into a belief of military weakness in the Russian army. The foreigner, says the Russian, may be my friend to-day and he may be fighting me on the morrow; why should I lead him into the secret of my arsenals? When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise. That is about the argument held by many Russians, and in the meantime they continue spending money and are improving their condition every day.

THE STRENGTH OF THE ARMY

which Russia could bring into the field under present arrangements is estimated at 830,000 men, independent of the troops in the Caucasian provinces, which number an effective force of about 200,000. Add to this the troops stationed in Turkestan, Orenberg and Siberia, which, in round numbers, give 100,000 more, and it will be found that the aggregate grand total of which the Czar can dispose in time of war foots up 1,130,000 men of all arms, with 1,600 cannon and 400 mitrailleuses.

That figure comprises the following details:—

Guards and grenadiers	82,900
Other infantry	477,855
Riflemen, guards and others	22,712
Total infantry	582,400

TROOPS FOR LOCAL PURPOSES.

It is unnecessary to say that from these forces must be deducted the troops required for local purposes; again, from seventy to one hundred thousand are necessary for the protection of the Baltic provinces, and an equal force must remain on the line of the Vistula. Still it is safe to assume that, under present arrangements, Russia has a force of 510,000 men ready to face the enemy at any given moment.

HOW THE ARMY IS ARMED.

The Russian is armed mostly with a breech-loader known as the Krnka rifle; several divisions, however, have the Carle rifle, likewise breech-loader, and the marines are armed with the Barancow rifle, while for the rifle corps the Berdan (American) gun has been chosen. The total aggregate of breech-loaders possessed by Russia is given in the following figures, viz.:—

Berdan	30,000
Krnka	400,000
Carle	209,000
Barancow	30,000
Total	669,000

The Berdan rifle has a calibre of 4.85 millemetres; the Krnka rifle, 6.11 millemetres. The length of the latter, with bayonet, is 7' 1'', length of cannon, 35'' 7.98''; the weight, without bayonet, 7 pounds 12 ounces; with bayonet, 8 pounds 6 ounces. The Russian infantry always carry fixed bayonets. All breech-loaders are calculated for a distance of 1,200 yards.

RUSSIAN FORTIFIED PLACES.

There are twenty-six fortified places in the Russian empire which are kept in a state of defence. They are divided into three classes, as follows, namely:—Sixteen first class, seven of the second and three third class.

FIRST-CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

St. Petersburg, Cronstadt, Sveaborg, Wyborg, harbor defences; Dunaborg, Bobruisk; Warsaw, Nowogeorgewisk, Brest-Litewski, Kiew, Bender, Nikolajew, Kertsch, Alexandropol, Tiflis, Nikolajew (Amoor).

SECOND CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

Dunamünde, Ivangorod, Terek, Dagesthan, Taschkend, Wiernoge, Class.

THIRD CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

Perowski, Achaleych, Kuban.

NAVAL STATIONS OF THE EMPIRE.

The following is a list of the various naval stations:—

BALTIC.

St. Petersburg, Cronstadt, Sveaborg, Reval.

ARCTIC SEA.

Archangel.

BLACK SEA.

Nocolajew, Sebastopol, Noworossijsk, Suchum Kale.

CASPIAN SEA.

PACIFIC.

Nicolajewsk, Wladiwostok.

RUSSIAN FLEET.

The fleet in the Baltic numbers 68 ships, 65 steam gunboats and 52 yachts, schooners, river steamers, &c. The details of the first named are enumerated as follows:—8 frigates, iron-clad; 12 monitors, 6 turret ships, 6 liners, screws; 6 frigates, screws; 5 frigates, side wheel; 10 corvettes, screws; 9 clippers, screws. The aggregate total of guns carried by the fleet is stated at 1,500 of various calibre.

THE RAILROAD SYSTEM.

In the event of war it is important to consider our new railroad system. At the close of the year 1870 Russia possessed a network comprising 6,400 miles of road, and upwards of 2,300 miles were in course of construction. The railroad mania may be measured by the fact that in the course of the year 1869 the government accorded grants for constructing new roads to no less than 160 different persons or corporations. A glance at the map will show that all our roads are constructed in a manner to suit the strategy of military operations. This will enable us to move large masses of troops from one point to another with rapidity, while, in case of invasion, we have the advantage over the enemy thus far, that he cannot run his own trains over our track. In the late Franco-German war troops and horses were carried from the eastern frontiers of Prussia right into the heart of France. Our enemies will be compelled to leave their cars behind when they reach the frontiers of the Russian empire, owing to the fact that the gauge of our roads differs from the German roads. The Russian track measures five feet (English), while the Austrian and most of the Prussian lines are four feet eight and a half inches.

ENEMIES AND FRIENDS.

Before I conclude my letter I must again revert to the pamphlet of General Fadejew and extract the following passage:—He says, "We have but two enemies in the world, with whom it is impossible to agree; these enemies are Hungarian Austria and Turkey. On the other hand it depends on us to have at least one strong friend, a friend with whom we have thus far gone hand in hand in all matters where our interests have been nearest to our hearts—we mean America."

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Defeat of the White Stockings by the Mutuals—Score 11 to 3.

The White Stockings, of Chicago, and the Mutuals, of this city, played an exhibition game on the Union Grounds, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon, the result of which was an easy victory for the New York club, the score standing at the close 11 to 3 in their favor. Martin pitched for the "Mutes," as will be seen by the score, and in the absence of Start Pike played second and Hatfield first. The "Whites" were short-handed, too, besides which they had to play Hodes in centre field, owing to his having hurt his hand, and Foley behind the bat. The Chicagos were unable to hit Martin's peculiar delivery for more than six first bases, and to this fact alone must be attributed their defeat, for they played a fine fielding game.

At the bat Hatfield led the score for the Mutuals by making four first and six total bases. Ferguson also did well in the batting line, but was peculiarly unfortunate in throwing to first base. In fielding Eggler led off and clearly sustained his reputation as being without an equal in his position. Of the six flies he caught two were as brilliant as one would care to see. Pearce also made several fine plays at short, and Charley Mills "picked up the ball behind the bat" in his usual excellent manner.

Treacy, on the part of the Whites, made one beautiful catch of a short fly ball, and Pinkham attended to his position most admirably. The following is the score:—

MARVELLOUS MADNESS.

Shocking Results of a Bite in Westchester County—The Bitten Party Attacks His Companion—Both are Simultaneously Affected—Awful Condition of the Sufferers.

At Yonkers, Westchester county, considerable excitement and alarm have been experienced during the past forty-eight hours, owing to a shocking and almost unaccountable form of madness which has simultaneously seized two young men who have been companions for some years past. The names of the apparently doomed youths are respectively Albert Jones and Augustus Howard, each of them being about eighteen years old. It is said that, although living some four or five blocks apart, the youths appeared to be inseparable on or off the streets.

The first intimation received by the authorities regarding the truly unfortunate young men was on last Sunday evening, when a physician having proceeded to the house occupied by the parents of Jones, found him in violent spasms,

BARKING LIKE A DOG

as he wildly tossed his head from side to side, occasionally snapping at some of those who were holding him on the floor by dint of force. Having administered an opiate, which in a brief time produced sound sleep on the part of the patient, the physician was invited to another apartment of the house, where Howard was suffering from symptoms precisely similar. The same treatment was adopted, followed by like results, and quiet again reigned in the neighborhood. Most singular to relate, Howard was on a friendly visit to his friend Jones, and although in an adjoining room both were struck down in at the same instant. The attending physician stated that the symptoms indicated were not those of hydrophobia, but were rather superinduced by nervousness. He also gave strict orders that the patients should not be allowed to see or speak to each other. Both men felt very much debilitated during the following day, until Monday evening, when they were again attacked more violently than before at their separate homes. Those who witnessed their rabid actions and terrible contortions were in the latter's malady is that immediately on recovering consciousness after one of his agonizing fits of madness he eagerly asks, "Where's Gus?" and then adds, "Gus is in a fit now." The patients, although greatly weakened, felt tolerably comfortable yesterday, but it is on the approach of night the malady seems only to develop itself.

SHOCKED BEYOND UTTERANCE.

It is asserted in the village that Jones was bitten by some man with whom he was quarrelling a few weeks ago, and that the untoward circumstance has taken a tenacious hold of his mind. When he was first seized with one of those terrible paroxysms, last week, he, it is said, inflicted a savage bite on his companion (Howard) while the latter was endeavoring to aid him. The parents of both young men are in humble circumstances and the condition of the unfortunates was kept concealed for some days after Jones was first attacked.

A STRANGE FEATURE

A POSTMASTER ARRESTED FOR DEALING IN COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Spurious Twenty Dollar Bills on the Bank of Utica, N. Y.

[From the St. Paul Dispatch, Oct. 26.]

Charles Lamb, a prominent citizen of Mower county, formerly postmaster of Frankitu and Justice of the Peace, and at present a large wheat buyer on the line of the Southern Minnesota Railroad, was arrested yesterday by Major McIlrath at Grand Meadow, in that county, on two charges—one of passing counterfeit money; the other of selling it. He was brought up on a preliminary examination before Commissioner Cardozo to-day.

Mr. Benjamin Hicks testified to having had various dealings with the defendant in the buying and selling of wheat, and exhibited five or six $20 bills on the Bank of Utica, New York, which he had received from him in the way of business, which were pronounced to be undoubtedly forgeries.

A boy named George L. Clarke, about eighteen years old, states that he was engaged by the defendant to receive packages of money from him as his agent and pay them over to Hicks for the purchase of wheat, and that all of these packages contained counterfeit money.

MARYLAND JOCKEY CLUB.

Closing Day of the Annual Meeting at the Pimlico Course.

Fine Attendance and Capital Racing.

Dick Jackson Winner of the Hurdle Handicap, Joe Daniels the Central Stakes, Alroy the Consolation Purse, $500, and Conductor the Handicap Purse, $1,200, Two-Mile Heats.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Maryland Jockey Club races terminated to-day most brilliantly. There was a fine attendance and everything passed off satisfactorily. The meeting, it is pleasant to mention, has been a financial success. Four races were run to-day in good time, considering the heavy state of the track, the first being a hurdle race, the second a mile dash for two-year-olds, the third a dash of a mile and a-half by beaten horses, and the fourth a two-mile-heat race.

THE FIRST RACE

was a hurdle handicap for all ages, two miles, over eight hurdles; $450 to the first horse and $100 to the second. There were two acceptors of the weights imposed, these being A. Taylor's chestnut horse Dick Jackson, by Revenue, dam Victoria, six years old, 140 pounds, and R. Shea's bay colt Astronomer, by Asteroid, dam by Sovereign, three years, 118 pounds. There was no betting on this race, as both horses belonged to the same stable, and the public did not care about investing on either of them. Dick Jackson won by half a length. The following is a summary:—

HURDLE HANDICAP—For all ages; two miles, over eight hurdles; $400 to the first and $100 to the second horse.

A. Taylor entered ch. h. Dick Jackson, by Revenue, dam Victoria, 6 years, 140 lbs............ 1
Richard Shea entered b. c. Astronomer, by Asteroid, dam by Sovereign, 3 years, 118 lbs........ 2

Time, 4:17.

THE RACE.

Astronomer took the lead, and was three lengths in front at the first hurdle, which was stationed 100 yards from the judges' stand. The second hurdle was placed across the middle of the backstretch, and Astronomer led one length when he went over it, both horses making clean jumps. The third hurdle was near the bend into the lower turn, and when Astronomer made that jump he was three lengths in advance of Jackson. The horses ran pretty sharply around the turn and up the homestretch to the fourth hurdle, Astronomer still showing the way, three lengths ahead. As they passed the stand Astronomer was five lengths in front, and he jumped the fifth hurdle about three lengths in advance. Dick Jackson then moved up, and when they came to the sixth hurdle Astronomer led only one length. He kept his advantage over the seventh hurdle; but on the lower turn Jackson took sides with him, and they ran head and head to the eighth hurdle, and jumped it together. A very pretty race to the stand terminated the contest and gave the victory to Dick Jackson by half a lenth. Time, 3:47.

THE SECOND RACE

was for the Central Stakes, for two-year-olds, one mile, $50 entrance, play or pay, the club adding $500. For this there were thirty-one entries, three of which came to the post. These were R. W. Cameron's brown filly Inversnaid, by Leamington, dam Floride; D. McDaniel & Co.'s chestnut colt Joe Daniels, by Australian, dam Dolly Carter, and Governor Bowie's chestnut filly Rebba, by Jack Malone, dam Sally Woodward. Joe Daniels was the favorite over the field at the long odds of 100 to 20. He won in a canter.

CENTRAL STAKES—For two-year-olds, one mile, $50 entrance, play or pay, club to add $500; closed March 1, 1871, with thirty-one nominations.

R. W. Cameron entered br. f. Inversnaid, by Leamington, dam Floride.................. 2

THE RACE.

Joe Daniels jumped off with the lead, Inversnaid second, Rebba third. Going around the turn Joe Daniels led two lengths, which advantage he carried to the quarter pole, Rebba being four lengths behind Inversnaid. On the backstretch Inversnaid made an effort to pass Joe; but when she reached his saddle girth the colt was let loose, and he instantly dashed away from her, and was two lengths in front at the half-mile pole. Rebba was outpaced, and was six lengths behind at that point. On the lower turn Inversnaid made another effort to overtake Joe, but she only reached his tail. He galloped strong up the homestretch, pricking his ears all the way, and won the race by four lengths, in 1:54½. Rebba was fifteen lengths behind Inversnaid.

THE THIRD RACE

was the Consolation Purse of $500, for horses of all ages beaten during meeting, one and a half miles. There were five entries, comprising W. R. Babcock's chestnut filly Nellie Ransom, by Jack Malone, dam Vesper Light, three years old; M. H. Sanford's bay colt Preakness, by Lexington, dam Bay Leaf, four years old; Jos. Donahue's chestnut colt Alroy, by Australian, dam Nelly Gray, three years old; Stringfield & Stanhope's bay colt Frogtown, by Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington, three years old, and A. Belmont's chestnut colt By the Sea, by Thormanby, dam Bernice, three years old. Preakness was the favorite, selling in the pools for about as much as all the others together. Alroy won the race in clever style, proving himself a capital race-horse.

CONSOLATION PURSE—$500, for horses of all ages beaten during the meeting; one and a half miles:—

Time, 2:49½.

THE RACE.

Frogtown took the lead, By the Sea second, Alroy third, Nellie Ransom fourth, Preakness fifth. Alroy ran to the front around the lower turn, Frogtown second, By the Sea third, Nellie Ransom fourth, Preakness fifth. They swung into the homestretch in this way, and when passing under the wire at the stand Alroy was half a length ahead of Frogtown, who was two lengths in advance of By the Sea, Nellie Ransom and Preakness side and side. Going around the upper turn Alroy opened a gap of three lengths, Frogtown second, Nellie Ransom third, Preakness fourth, By the Sea fifth. The racing was now very exciting, as all the horses were doing their best. Going down the backstretch, Preakness ran into second place and made a desperate effort to overtake Alroy, but the latter galloped away from him and opened a gap of six lengths around the lower turn, Frogtown third, four lengths further off, By the Sea fourth, and Nellie Ransom fifth. Alroy ran under a pull up the homestretch and won the race by eight lengths, Preakness second, three lengths in front of By the Sea, who was the same distance in advance of Frogtown, Nellie Ransom being pulled up far down the stretch. Time of the mile and a half, 2:49½.

THE FOURTH RACE

was a handicap purse of $1,200, for all ages that have run during the meeting, two mile heats; $900 to the first horse, $200 to the second and $100 to the third. There were eight acceptances, comprising W. R. Babcock's bay colt Conductor, by Australian, dam Nettie Viley, four years old, 90 pounds; P. W. Doswell's bay filly Midday, by Eclipse, dam Ninette, four years old, 104 pounds; F. M. Hall's bay colt John Merryman, by Eugene, dam La Rose, three years, 90 pounds; W. W. Glenn's chestnut gelding Vanda, by Vandal, dam Slipper, six years old, 90 pounds; E. S. Rogers' chestnut colt Hanover, by Planet, dam Lucy Haxall, three years old, 80 pounds; T. B. & W. R. Davis' bay horse Allie Hunt, by Vandal, dam Nora Creana, five years old, 95 pounds; Stringfield & Stanhope's chestnut filly Catina, by Australian, dam by Lexington, four years old, 90 pounds, and A. Belmont's chestnut filly Finesse, by Lexington, dam Filligree, four years old, 100 pounds. Midday was first choice in the pools, Finesse second. Conductor won the race after three closely contested heats.

Time, 3:50½—3:51¼—4:02¼.

THE RACE.

First Heat.—John Merryman took the lead, Midday second, Finesse third, the others in a bunch. When they reached the quarter pole Catina was in front, Finesse second, Midday third, John Merriman fourth, Vanda fifth, Conductor sixth, Allie Hunt seventh and Hanover eighth. They ran in this way down the backstretch, and as they went into the lower turn Catina led four lengths, Midday second, Finesse third, John Merryman fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, Vanda seventh, Hanover eighth. The horses ran sharp up the homestretch, and as they passed the stand Catina led four lengths, Midday second, John Merryman third, Finesse fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, Vanda seventh and Hanover eighth, the last two being a distance behind. There was no change around the turn, and when they passed the half-mile pole Catina still led four lengths, Midday third, two lengths in front of John Merryman, Finesse fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, the others out of the race. Going down the backstretch Allie Hunt worked up to third place and Finesse fell back. Catina continued to show the way around the lower turn, Midday second, Allie Hunt third, John Merryman fourth, Conductor fifth. The pace up the homestretch was brisk, Allie Hunt making a gallant run and taking second place. Midday fell back one hundred yards from home, when Conductor passed her and took third place. Catina went under the wire a winner by two lengths, Allie Hunt second, six lengths ahead of Conductor, John Merryman fourth, and Midday just inside the distance stand. Finesse, Vanda and Hanover were distanced. Time of heat, 3:50½.

Second Heat.—Catina cut out the work, John Merryman second, Midday third, Conductor fourth, Allie Hunt fifth. At the quarter pole Catina led two lengths, Merryman second, Midday third, Conductor fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, the last four as close together as they could possibly be. At the half-mile pole Catina still led two lengths, Midday second, one length in front of John Merryman, who was one length ahead of Allie Hunt, the latter being one length in advance of Conductor. They were the same around the lower turn, but coming up the homestretch some changes were made. As they passed under the string at the completion of the first mile, Catina led one length, John Merryman second, Conductor third, Allie Hunt fourth and Midday fifth, one length apart. Going around the upper turn Conductor made play for Catina, and took sides with her on the backstretch; then John Merryman made a dash, and as the two passed the half-mile pole they were head and head. Catina now began to quit and fell back, leaving the affair to be settled by John Merryman and Conductor. They fought a splendid battle all around the lower turn and up the homestretch, but Conductor lasted the longest and won by three lengths. Allie Hunt was third, eight lengths behind John Merryman, Catina fourth and Midday fifth. Time of heat, 3:51¼.

Third Heat.—John Merryman was first away, Conductor second, Midday third, Catina fourth, Allie Hunt fifth. They ran in this way around the turn, but when they passed the quarter pole John Merryman and Conductor had their heads together, two lengths in front of Midday, who was one length in advance of Catina, with Allie Hunt close up. At the half-mile pole John Merryman led half a length, Conductor second, two lengths in front of Allie Hunt, who was a length in advance of Catina and Midday. The horses ran around the lower turn without changing their positions, and as they passed the stand at the completion of the first mile Conductor and John Merryman were yoked, two lengths in front of Allie Hunt, who was one length in advance of Catina, the latter leading Midday four lengths. The struggle around the next mile to the three-quarter pole was between John Merryman and Conductor, but at that point Merryman began to quit and Conductor showed in front. He led nearly a length into the homestretch. Allie Hunt on the lower turn ran well and closed on the two leaders finely, and was only two lengths behind Merryman as he entered the stretch. Whip and spur were applied, to which he responded gamely, passing John Merryman and challenging Conductor for the heat; but Conductor was too much for him and won the heat and race by a length, Allie Hunt second, three lengths ahead of John Merryman, Catina and Midday distanced. Time of the heat, 4:02¼.

And this closed the meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club for the year 1871.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

First Day of the Autumn Meeting—The Gray Gelding Lottery the Winner of the 2:29 Purse.

Seven or eight hundred persons assembled at this favorite course yesterday afternoon, to witness the first day's amusement of the extra autumn meeting, which is to continue to-morrow. Friday and Saturday. The event which called them together was a purse of $1,000 for horses that had never trotted better than 2:29, divided so that the winner should receive $500, the second horse $300 and the third $200. The speculation over the contest was quite spirited, owing to the several rumors that this or the other animal was in the finest possible condition and would make a capital struggle. Entered for the trot were Dan Pfifer's gray gelding Lottery, G. P. Carpenter's bay mare Lady Ross, Alexander Patterson's chestnut gelding Dreadnaught, M. Roden's brown gelding James H. Coleman, George T. Freeman's black mare Lady Wheeler and C. Predman's black gelding Denmark. The latter was withdrawn. In the pool sales Lottery was a great favorite, selling at the rate of $155 to $70 against the field. The horses were promptly called at the hour named, and the sport conducted in a manner that greatly pleased the spectators.

First Heat.—Lady Ross was on the inside, then Coleman, Dreadnaught, Lottery and Lady Wheeler. There were eight ineffectual attempts before the horses received the word. At last they were sent off, with Coleman in the lead, the others in Indian file. They went to the quarter in thirty-seven seconds, with Lady Ross in the advance, Lottery second, he having done excellent work from the send off, Coleman third, Dreadnaught fourth and Lady Wheeler in the rear, the latter three dancing in the air like Cheyennes on the warpath. The order was about the same at the half mile in 1:14½, with the exception that Lady Ross led two lengths and Lottery was eight lengths in front of Coleman. Lottery put on a spurt as they went along to the three-quarter pole and entering the stretch was on the wheel of the leader, and Pfifer, finding her easy to beat, set sail in earnest at the drawgate, and, sending Lady Ross to a break, passed under the wire winner of the heat by two lengths. Lady Ross was second, Coleman third, Dreadnaught fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:31½.

Second Heat.—Lottery was now the favorite, 100 to 20. The start was good. Coleman was first away, but as they went around the turn to the quarter Lady Ross had taken first place, with Lottery second, and Coleman, Dreadnaught and Lady Wheeler as named. They passed the quarter in thirty-eight seconds, and Lottery, making the pace hot for Ross, went to the front, and at the half mile, in 1:15, had half a length the best of it, Dreadnaught was third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler last. As they went along to the three-quarter pole Lottery opened the gap to two lengths, with Lady Ross, Lady Wheeler and Coleman dancing in the air. They could not get near the gray gelding, and he came home an easy winner of the heat by three lengths, Ross second, Dreadnaught third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:32½.

Third Heat.—There were no pools sold. Four attempts were made ere they got away and then quite unevenly. Lottery worked himself to the front, and at the quarter, in thirty-seven seconds, was half a length in advance, Lady Ross second, Dreadnaught third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler last. Down the backstretch Lottery put on more steam and at the half mile, in 1:13, was a length in advance, and the others as named. From this point all interest in Lottery being the winner was lost in the struggle for second place. Dreadnaught came with a rush on the way to the three-quarter pole, passing Ross on the ascending ground, and at the head of the stretch was two lengths in advance of her. Lottery was now leading six lengths and came home on a steady trot, winner of the heat and race by four lengths. At the drawgate Lady Ross went all to pieces and Dreadnaught rushed under the wire second, Ross third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:30. The first prize was awarded to Lottery, the second to Lady Ross and the third to Dreadnaught.

SMALLPOX IN NEWARK.

A Priest Stricken with It—Law-Breaking Physicians—The Authorities After them.

The demon smallpox has again put in an appearance in Newark, and this time in no less a place than the episcopal residence adjacent to St. Patrick's Roman Catholic cathedral. The victim is Rev. Father A. M. Sleets, one of the lately ordained clergymen. It seems that in the pursuance of his sacred calling he visited a poor person's house on the Hill, one of whose family was afflicted with the disease, and there caught it. One physician, Dr. James Elliot, attended both cases and failed to report either, as required by city ordinance under a penalty of $50 each. Suits to recover this amount in both cases have been commenced against the doctor. He was greatly mortified on discovering that the Health Inspector had discovered the case of Father Sleets. Rev. Father Doane was surprised that the case was not reported, and at once said that the clergy ought to set the people an example, and not otherwise, in obeying the law by placing on the house the usual notice.

Suit has also been brought against Dr. William O'Gorman for remissness in reporting a case in Prospect street. This conduct of medical men in persistently failing to comply with the law has considerably aroused public indignation, and should the disease spread this indignation would not be mollified much, of course.

THE FRIENDS OF POOR LO.

What the Indian Peace Commissioners Think of the Red Men.

The Noble Savage Does Not Want to Fight, but Would Like to Eat—No Necessity for War—The Cherokees and the Broadbrims—Friend Lang on the Situation.

The Indian Peace Commissioners, who are the special providence of Poor Lo, assembled at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday. A brace of HERALD reporters called upon the distinguished gentlemen in the afternoon and talked with them on the present aspect of Indian affairs. Mr. Vincent Collyer, who is a meek young man and fanatically reticent, told what he knew about Indian farming, and Mr. John D. Lang, a Friend, discoursed on the Cherokees and Choctaws. The latter was very communicative—for a Commissioner. The conversation had with Mr. Lang was interesting, and was as follows:—

REPORTER—I understand you are making your report of the condition of the Indians, Mr. Lang?

FRIEND LANG—Yes, we will have it ready to-night. It will show that President Grant's policy in dealing with the Indians has been quite successful. There is no occasion whatever for levying

WAR ON THE RED MEN.

Of course there are a great many people interested in getting up a war—the Indian Ring, for example. It is the business of the contractors to foment disturbances. It has been our business to prevent them from indulging in these wickednesses. Thee must know that the policy of the border people is shoot, shoot, all the time. They think no more of killing an Indian than a dog or a deer. Now we believe that it is better to conciliate the Indians than to murder them.

REPORTER—But a number of people in Arizona believe with General Crook that the only way to conciliate our mutual friend Lo is to kill him.

FRIEND LANG—No doubt. It always was the policy of the army hangers-on to make perpetual war on the tribes. They are trying the same game now, but they won't succeed.

REPORTER—But the Indians are said to be given to throat-cutting, scalping and making burnt offerings to the Great Spirit of luckless whites?

FRIEND LANG—The Indian is merciless when wronged. Most people are savage when outraged; but I am certain to war at all times. Of course there are some in the mountains very hard to control, their chiefs having but little influence over them, but even these can be reclaimed.

REPORTER—Then instead of running them down with cavalry, you would awe them into submission with Quaker guns?

FRIEND LANG—There is no occasion whatever to use force with the Indians. I travelled 20,000 miles with them last year and 15,000 this year, and I am quite satisfied that Lo, as thou named him, likes fighting as little as most men. He demands the right to live, and thou wilt admit, I think, that that is but reasonable. The Indians, as a whole, are a sorry set; ill clothed and ill fed. What they want is food and shelter and protection against lawless whites.

REPORTER—Then, Mr. Lang, you think that the Indian difficulty may be summed up in a sentence?

FRIEND LANG—Thee intended to say that——

REPORTER—Bellies and blankets summed up the entire matter.

FRIEND LANG—Thee comprehends the situation. People who are properly fed and clothed don't care to fight much; but starving wretches have sometimes

NO OTHER RESOURCE THAN MARAUDING.

It will cost several millions of dollars every year to fight the Indians. A few thousand dollars judiciously expended will suffice to feed them. A few years of a peace policy will, I think, settle the Indian difficulty.

REPORTER—So, then, it would seem that Lo has been misrepresented. He doesn't hanker after scalps any more?

FRIEND LANG—It would be rash to assert that the Indian nature can be changed at once; but thee is aware that time and patience will work wonders. Consider the case of the Cherokees. Thee is doubtless aware that after our revolutionary war the Cherokees were placed in North Carolina on a reservation. Little provision was made for their protection, and they were ultimately swindled out of their lands. The history of that unpleasant matter thou knowest. Well, the Cherokees in North Carolina were in a most wretched condition. I went down to them and selected the most wretched and transported them to the Cherokee Nation. They were received with open arms and advantageously placed. They have and will prosper. They are law-abiding and easy to govern.

REPORTER—Semi-civilized?

FRIEND LANG—No, the North Carolina men are not very civilized; those in the Nation are. The latter have a State House, public offices, schools, and so forth, and are most eager to advance their material interests and become good citizens. We have made arrangements for the transportation of all the North Carolina Cherokees out West as soon as possible. They will prove good and useful citizens, I have no doubt. Certainly they will have all they want in location and climate. And what has been done with the Cherokees can be accomplished with the other tribes. A merciful policy, friend, is the only policy worth following; a murderous policy is always a mistaken policy.

Mr. Vincent Collyer, who was present during the above conversation, vehemently nodded his approval of Friend Lang's remarks.

ALL SAINTS' DAY.

This is All Saints' Day, a festival during which the saints in general, and especially those for whose veneration no particular day has been set apart, are honored. Its observance is common to both the Roman and Anglican churches. It was established in the year 610, at the time of the conversion of the Pantheon at Rome into a Christian temple. This edifice, the date of whose erection is a cause of contention among antiquarians—some arguing from the inscription on its portico that it was built by Agrippa during the reign of Augustus, and others averring that the portico was alone at that time constructed, and that the body of the building was much more ancient—is still in a state of perfect preservation. The dedication of it by the Romans to all the gods and the assignment to each of a place in it were probably the causes, through the association of ideas, of the institution of the present festival. Pope Boniface IV., having consecrated the temple to the service of God under the protection of the Virgin and the martyrs, proclaimed "because we cannot particularly commemorate every one of those saints in whom God's graces have been eminent, for that would be too heavy a burden, and because, in those particular feasts which we do celebrate, we may justly be thought to have omitted some of our duty through infirmity or negligence; therefore the holy Church appoints this day in commemoration of the saints in general." Its celebration was at first upon the 1st of May, but was altered to the present date. In this country the celebration is no more than the performance of a high mass; but in Southern Europe and South America the day is kept as a public holiday.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

A Circus Chariot Toppled Over a Precipice—Two Men Killed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Oct. 31, 1871.

A terrible accident occurred in Columbia county yesterday morning, between Bain's Corners and Copake, by which two men lost their lives. The accident occurred on what is known as "Williams' Hill," a steep declivity. Just before daylight the band wagon, or chariot, attached to Howe's European Circus left Bain's Corners for Millerton, drawn by eight horses, which were driven by an experienced driver, but who did not know the road. The morning being dark he came upon the hill before he was aware of the fact. He attempted to gather up his reins and put on his brake, but he was not quick enough. His eight-in-hand got the start of him and dashed down the hill at frightful speed, when suddenly one of the wheel horses fell. He, with the chariot, was dragged to the side of the road by his now frantic mates, where the chariot upset and tumbled down a precipice. On top were five musicians, the rest having gone to Millerton by rail. The chariot made two complete somersets, the first throwing the musicians off, and, in turning the second, fell on two of them, killing them instantly. The other three and the driver escaped as if by a miracle. The names of the killed are J. A. Emlby, Jr., aged twenty years, a single man, and a native of Liverpool, and Wem Fetzer, a Swiss, who leaves a wife and child behind. They were both steady, reliable men, and much esteemed by all of the company. Their remains were taken to Millerton and their friends and relatives notified of the sad occurrence by telegraph. The company were to give only one more exhibition before they went into winter quarers.

THE SCHOONER HORTON CASE.

TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Globe telegraphs that the policy of the government is not to demand the restitution of the schooner Horton, as she has not been condemned by the courts. The point of the argument seems to be that as the vessel has been taken possession of by the original owners and carried out of the jurisdiction of the Courts of the Dominion there is no case.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Several communications making donations to the Park Museum collection were received, and, having been acknowledged, were ordered on file.

From William H. Smith, Edwin Dobbs and others, requesting a change of grade on 152d street, between the Boulevard and Tenth avenue, which was referred to the Executive Committee to examine and report.

From Mr. Calvin T. Hulburt, Superintendent of United States Post Office and Court House building, requesting permission to depress the pavement on the southwest corner of Park row and New Park street, and to pave the streetway of Park row, and to construct a new receiving basin, to connect with the sewer, at the government expense, which was referred to the Treasurer, with power.

From Frederic De Peyster, calling attention to two stone balls of historic interest in the war with Tripoli and removed from the south gate of City Hall Park, stating that they were presented by Captain Nicholson, United States Navy, and desiring that they be preserved and placed in a conspicuous position. Ordered filed.

From the Chief Engineer of the Department, transmitting topographical survey and study plan for improvement of Morningside Park. Referred to the Executive Committee, with power.

A resolution was adopted, giving permission for the erection on Printing House Square of a statue of Benjamin Franklin, the location and space being referred to the Treasurer, with power.

Resolutions were adopted calling upon the towns of Yonkers, West Farms and Westchester for moneys necessary to be raised in said towns respectively, for carrying on the surveys and mapping therein.

The Treasurer reported that work had been discontinued on the draw of Macomb's Dam Bridge, in consequence of the funds for that purpose being exhausted.

A report was received from the Auditing Committee recommending the payment of bills and claims for tools, materials, &c., furnished, which was approved.

At the request of the Trustees of the American Museum of Natural History the Board designated Monday and Tuesday of each week to be reserved for the said trustees, persons contributing or desiring to contribute to the Museum, those wishing to examine the Museum specimens for the purpose of special study, the teachers and pupils of public schools, and the inmates of charitable and benevolent institutions in the city. The admission on those days to be by tickets issued by said trustees, and to be obtained at the Department of Public Parks, or of the Secretary of the Museum.

On motion the Board adjourned.

THE HOBOKEN MURDER.

Continuation of the Trial of Moses Henry for the Murder of Thomas McMahon.

The trial of Moses Henry for the murder of Thomas McMahon, at Hoboken, was resumed yesterday at Jersey City, before Judge Bedle.

The first witness called was Mrs. Moore, who testified as follows:—On the night of October 14 last I was sitting at my window, at No. 36 Adams street; the hour was about eleven and a half; within five minutes after I had gone there I saw Mr. McMahon on the sidewalk; saw no one else at that time; McMahon went on the stoop before Connor's store and said he was in there; an officer sent him into the house; he came right out again and leaned back against a coal box before Connor's store; two young men went into Connor's store, at McMahon's invitation, to get a drink; McMahon came right out; whether put out or not I don't know; he said that his money was all gone, speaking to himself; he then went to his own house, and soon came out again with a pipe in his mouth, without his coat; he sat on the stoop; Gillingham came out of Connor's store and sat by his side; Moses came out soon afterwards and stood for a few minutes leaning against a post before the store; he was eating; then he went for McMahon, who sat flat on the stoop; I saw Moses Henry pull him down on to the sidewalk; McMahon made no show of fight, but called for the police; when an officer came Moses ran up stairs into his father's room; McMahon's mouth was bleeding when the officer picked him up; they sent him into the house; ten minutes afterwards I heard some one going down stairs again, shut the front door and then walked back through the hall; then I heard a moan, then a cry of murder was raised, and then McMahon hallooed, "Henry, don't kill me!" this noise came from the back yard; when I heard these noises I went to the head of the stairs; all was quiet then; I cried "Murder!" and assistance came; I did not go into the yard; I have had some trouble with Henry's father, and had him arrested last Saturday for abusing me; his sons had had him arrested; McMahon once threatened to kill the old man Henry for bringing a bottle of wine to treat his wife.

Dr. Pendergast, the County Physician, next sworn—Testified that he had made a post-mortem examination of the remains of the deceased; what he discovered led him to the conclusion that the deceased had died in consequence of internal hemorrhage, produced by stab wounds; found two wounds one to the left of and three inches above the navel, went upwards and inwards, penetrating the covering of the intestines; this wound was the fatal one; it was necessarily fatal; his second wound was between the tenth and eleventh ribs, six inches left of spine; found in the abdomen cavity one-half to a whole gallon of blood, and clots of blood near the peritoneum; all the other organs were healthy.

The trial will be resumed this morning.

ANOTHER HOBOKEN SQUABBLE.

The Common Council Orders the Rails of the Track to Union Hill To Be Torn Up.

At the meeting of the Common Council last evening a resolution was passed over the Mayor's veto imperatively ordering Mr. J. C. O'Sullivan, Street Commissioner, to tear up the rails of the North Hudson County Railroad Company, anywhere between the ferry and Union Hill. By this time the commissioner will be at work in Washington street destroying the road, under the protection of the police authorities. The cause of the passage of the resolution is the non-payment of license by the company for the right of way through the city. The contest between the company and the corporation has been of long standing. Much excitement prevailed after the adoption of the resolution, inasmuch as traffic may be considerably impeded between Hoboken and the Hill. The difficulty will probably be settled by the issuance of an injunction against the pulling up of the rails.

CUSTOMS SEIZURES IN VERMONT.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 31, 1871.

Eighteen hundred sheep and six horses, brought through from Canada by Rugg & McFarland, were seized last night at White River Junction by Customs Officer Goff, of St. Albans, for undervaluation. The train on which they were loaded had backed over from West Lebanon and was about to start. Twelve car loads were seized at Roxbury. The work was done so quickly and quietly that none but the owners and railroad men are aware of it.

THE COURTS.

Important Counterfeiting Case—Alleged Counterfeiting of Gold Coin—Violations of the Internal Revenue Law—Question of Receivership—Interesting Will Suit—The Bonard Will Case.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oct 31, 1871.

No. 184. Sharp et al vs. Hammond et al.—Appeal from the Southern District of New York.—The libellants, owners of the schooner Brothers, brought suit per sousen against the respondents, owners of the schooner R. H. Huntly, to recover damages suffered by the former in a collision with the latter off the Jersey shore in February, 1860. The libel alleged unskilfulness and neglect in the management of the Huntly as the cause of the collision. The captain of the Huntly was on board and had charge of her at the time of the collision, and he was part owner. The Court found that the captain had the exclusive possession and control of the Huntly, and that he manned, victualled and navigated her at his own expense, and held that such being the case he must be deemed a charterer within the meaning of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, which exempts the owner from personal liability and leaves the injured party to seek his remedy against the colliding vessel and those who carelessly and unskilfully handled her. As he was sued merely as part owner, and not as charterer, wrong-doer or an active cause of the disaster, the statute was held to be a bar to the suit and the libel was dismissed. It is here insisted that the evidence failed to show that the vessel was so much under the exclusive control of the captain as to relieve the general owners from their liability; but that if so, then under the local law of New York, under such an arrangement, the general owners were responsible for the engagement and misfeasances of the master; so under the general Admiralty law if the navigators were at fault. D. McMahon for appellants; R. H. Hunt for appellees.

No. 180. Woodsworth vs Warren—Error to the Circuit Court for the Northern District of Illinois.—This was an action of covenant on a lease brought by Woodsworth vs. Warren and another, who was not served. The defence of Warren was that he never accepted the lease. Another jury, by their verdict, found such to be the fact. This is the only question in the case as presented here, where it is contended by the plaintiff in error that the weight of evidence was the other way. The defendant in error submits that the Court very rarely disturbs the verdict of a jury where there is evidence to support, as it is insisted is the case here. Case submitted on the printed points. John Von Arman for plaintiff in error; Elliot Anthony for defendant.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Alleged Counterfeiting—Charge Against Joshua D. Minor.

Before Commissioner Davenport.

The United States vs. Joshua D. Minor.—The defendant is charged with having counterfeit plates of national bank notes in his possession. The prosecution of this case has excited much interest, owing to the fact that the defendant is a prominent contractor under the city government, and, therefore, supposed to possess considerable social and political influence. Yesterday the examination was proceeded with before Commissioner Davenport. The office, though small, was pretty well filled with the friends of the accused, who was represented by his counsel, Mr. Charles S. Spencer, and Mr. Benjamin K. Phelps. General Davies, Assistant United States District Attorney, appeared on behalf of the government. Colonel Whitley, Chief of the Secret Service Department, and a number of his detectives were closely watching the proceedings. The first witness produced yesterday for the prosecution was an officer of the Secret Service. He deposed that on the evening of the 25th of October he, with other officers of the Secret Service, went in a carriage to the neighborhood of Sixty-seventh street and Ninth avenue for the purpose of arresting Minor and others, who were alleged to have been concerned with him, in the imputed crime of counterfeiting; they left the carriage some blocks off from Sixty-seventh street and walked up to the latter locality, where they stationed themselves around for the purpose of watching such developments of the affair as might transpire. The testimony of the witness at this point was to the effect that he saw Minor on this occasion, and that he also saw a man named Thomas Ballard, who is alleged to be the printer of counterfeit notes, approach Minor and hand him a package. Minor took the package, and, as the witness believes, was about to start with it across the street for the purpose of handing it to a man named Harry Cole, who was stationed at the opposite side of the way; but before he could carry out his supposed purpose he was laid hold of by the officer. Just at that moment, according to the testimony, some plates dropped from the hands of Minor. Two of them turned out to be counterfeits of national bank notes—one of the Ninth National Bank, of this city ($2), and the other of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, of Poughkeepsie ($10). There was some confusion at the time and a "muss" between the officers and the accused.

The witness was cross-examined at considerable length with much minuteness by counsel for the defence, with respect to the positions he and those with him had occupied at the scene of this arrest, and as to the opportunities he had for seeing all that transpired. He adhered to his original statement.

Another officer of the

testified as to the manner in which the arrest had been effected. He testified, on cross-examination, that he came down some distance from Sixty-seventh street, and saw Harry Cole standing on the opposite side of the street, under a lamp, with an umbrella over his head; he was alone; witness could not see Cole's face; he could only tell him from his form and shape; Cole had not come down from Sixty-seventh street more than three or four blocks when witness saw him stop under the lamp; witness had not been there since, and when he saw Cole under the lamp he (witness) was on the extreme west of the street; was on the other side of the avenue when Cole stopped; he stopped in the street opposite a pile of dirt; Minor came up, but was not in sight when witness stopped.

BAIL IN ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS DEMANDED.

Counsel for defendant said:—This is a case that will be defended, and, I believe, successfully. Mr. Minor may forfeit a contract for $40,000 if he is not admitted to bail, and the bail ought not to be oppressive. There has been a lot of sensation about this thing and a great deal of humbug in it so far as Mr. Minor is concerned.

The COMMISSIONER—The government requires $100,000 bail in all these cases, and in the present case, as advised, I am not going to make it very much less.

Counsel said that he would bring the question of bail before the Judge with a view to reduce it to $75,000 or $50,000. He guaranteed that there would be reasonable bail.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned to Thursday (to-morrow).

Indictments Against Minor.

Yesterday the Grand Jury filed in the United States Circuit Court several indictments against Minor, charging him with having been engaged in the printing of counterfeit money, in the engraving of plates for the printing of the same and with having had in his possession counterfeit money and with uttering the same. He will be called upon to plead to-day.

Alleged Counterfeiters of Gold Coin.

Before Commissioner Shields.

The United States vs. Moralez, Montenegro, et al.—The defendants are charged with having counterfeited gold coin of the United States of the denomination of $20. The leading facts of the case have appeared already in the HERALD. The evidence offered yesterday was principally that of Lewis Delemo, a detective in the Secret Service Department. His statement was that on the 24th of October he was introduced, at 76 East Fourth street, to Moralez, who, it was alleged, wanted some person who would give $1,000 for making $20 United States gold coin. Witness said to Moralez that before he could do anything he wanted to see something for making the coin, whereupon Moralez showed him some pieces of a die. Witness then said he thought he could advance the money. The officer met the defendants next day, and then, and upon subsequent occasions, they entered into arrangements for the purchase of a press and materials for the production of the coin alluded to. According to the testimony Moralez had intimated to the detective, whose character he did not, of course, then know, that he did not like to keep the dies about him, so he handed them over to Delemo, and on a subsequent occasion, in Broadway, he met Moralez, who had more dies in his handkerchief. He was thereupon arrested.

Some further testimony was taken, after which the examination was adjourned to the 2d of November.

Charge Against a Cigar Manufacturer.

The United States vs. Moses Halleran.—The defendant, who does business in Rivington street, was held in $500 bail for examination on a charge of not having given bonds for the purpose of enabling him to conduct the business of a cigar manufacturer.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Who Is the Receiver?—A Question of Time.

Before Judge Cardozo.

Elisha Brooks vs. The Astor Fire Insurance Company, and Albert C. Eage vs. The Same.—On the 18th inst. Elisha Brooks commenced an injunction suit against the Astor Fire Insurance Company, and had James Yearrance, Secretary, appointed receiver. The order was made on the 28th, and the receiver's bond given to Judge Brady for approval at twenty minutes to nine on the 30th, and retained by him until ten o'clock of that day, when it was handed to Mr. Beamish, the Clerk, to be filed.

On the morning of the same day Albert C. Eage commenced a similar suit, had Francis M. Bixby appointed receiver, and entered the order and had it approved and filed with the clerk at half-past nine in the morning.

Then arose the question as to who had the priority and which receiver was entitled to the charge of the company's affairs, one party having commenced the suit first by two days, and the other having filed the receiver's bonds in advance by half an hour. The matter came up before Judge Cardozo for settlement, the point being raised that by placing the bond with Judge Brady it was filed.

OPINION OF JUDGE CARDOZO.

On this motion the only question to be determined is, who is the receiver? That depends upon the question who perfected the title as receiver first. It is perfectly plain that the receiver appointed in this action did. The order in the action of Brooks against these defendants, made on the 18th of October, provided that the receiver before entering upon his duties should execute a bond and file it with the Clerk of the City and County of New York. It is too plain to talk about, that leaving a bond with a judge is not filing it with the clerk. The importance of the bond being actually filed is too obvious to permit such a strained construction as to deem the requirement satisfied by anything except an actual filing in the clerk's office. That is what is meant by filing and nothing else will answer. The plaintiff in this case having proceeded regularly, the receiver appointed in this suit having perfected his appointment by filing his bond before the gentleman designated in the order in Brooks' suit is clearly first in point of time and is entitled to possession. I cannot say if the application were an original one to appoint a receiver, that the fact that the directors, or even a large portion of the stockholders, want an officer of the insolvent company, should have much weight. I have heretofore written an opinion showing that, in my judgment, the officers of any insurance company ought not, no matter how reputable, to be appointed receiver of it. Some disinterested person, who will represent and care for the interests of creditors and of all the stockholders, not only those who seek his appointment, but those who do not join in the request, should, in my judgment always be selected. But that point is not material here. Motion granted, declaring Bixby receiver.

Fordham Property in Litigation—Decision.

Before Judge Brady.

Francis McMahon and Charles Hoey, Executors of Thomas Kerr, vs. Silas C. Bates.—"If the trust to sell the Fordham property," thus the Judge concludes an elaborate opinion in this case, "was created for any legal purpose or separable from the prohibited design it could be maintained; but it is not. The object of the trust is not separable from the trust itself, and is, there are a part of it, mingled with it, inseparable from it, and void."

Decision.

By Judge Ingraham.

Susan T. Rice, Administratrix, vs. William B. Hollister et al.—The motion is denied, with leave to plaintiff to renew the motion within twenty days, and the inquisition to be continued for that time.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

One of Life's Hidden Mysteries.

Before Judge Jones.

Eliza S. Donnell vs. Ezekiel Donnell.—This is one of those peculiar cases that not unfrequently find their way into court, underlying which are life mysteries which otherwise would have remained hidden. Many years ago there lived in New Jersey two bachelor brothers, James and Ezekiel Donnell. They had accumulated wealth and were tenderly attached to each other. In 1853 the brother James went to Europe, and before leaving made a will giving his property to Ezekiel—a timely precaution to meet the contingency of his death during the trip. But James did not die then, but lived on till 1869, when he died. Meantime the brother Ezekiel hung on to the will. But in 1859 James formed the acquaintance of a young lady, the plaintiff. They were not married, but agreed to live together as man and wife; and while thus living together had three children, two of whom are still living. She now comes in as the alleged wife of James, and seeks to recover her portion of the property he left, and which the brother Ezekiel still retains under the will referred to. Her story is that they boarded at various places as man and wife; that he always introduced her to his friends as his wife, and upon this she claims to have been his wife as fully and legally as though they had gone through the formality of a marriage ceremony. On the other hand Ezekiel presents her as having been the mistress of his brother and in no way entitled to call herself his wife. The property involved is said to be about one hundred thousand dollars. The case came up on a motion to have it placed on the calendar for trial at an early day. After a brief argument the case was adjourned until next Monday.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

The Metempsychosian Miser—A French Priest's Opinion of Transmigration—Louis Bonard's Peculiarities.

The Bonard will case came up for further hearing before Surrogate Hutchings at noon yesterday. At the hour appointed the numerous counsel engaged in the case were present. A recess, however, was taken to await the arrival of a witness called by Mr. Gerry. At twenty minutes past one P. M. Rev. Father Aubril the witness in question, arrived, and the case proceeded.

FATHER AUBRIL

took the stand and testified as follows:—I am a priest of the Roman Catholic Church; have been for thirty years; am now attached to the Church of St. Vincent de Paul; attended lately at the hospital of St. Vincent; recollect Mr. Bonard; cannot say what date; saw him there last winter; he was friendly and polite to me; expressed no aversion on account of my being a priest; I administered the sacrament to him before his death, also extreme unction; a man believing in metempsychosis is not a Catholic. In reply to a question of Mr. Coudert the witness stated he did not think a man believing in transmigration of souls was rational.

was the next witness called. He stated that he was a physician; has been in practice for twelve years; was a surgeon for seven years in the army; was connected with New York Hospital, and for the last year and a half had been attached to St. Vincent's Hospital; on the 3d of last February Louis Bonard was admitted there; attended him until death (the record of his case was introduced and objected to by Mr. Coudert); I recognize the record as substantially the treatment pursued.

Considerable argument took place among counsel at this point in regard to the evidence to be admitted.

The witness went on to say that the nature of Mr. Bonard's disease required a physical diagnosis, and explained the manner of making it; if had been on his back I would probably have seen it; he suffered from difficulty of breathing; there was no indication of his having been a drinking man; the immediate cause of his death was exhaustion; I did not observe any cloudiness of his intellect.

In reply to Mr. Coudert the witness testified that Bonard was a very sick man when admitted; I had but little conversation with him; he was very weak.

A question of Mr. Boyd's was overruled on account of Mr. Porter's absence.

The Court at this point adjourned the case until November 8, at twelve o'clock.

A FRACTURED SKULL.

Struck with a Belaying Pin—Brutality on Shipboard.

Coroner Young yesterday morning received information that Sebastian Junio, employed as cook on board the bark Lucy Francis, recently arrived from Matanzas, was lying in Bellevue Hospital in a delirious condition, caused by a compound fracture of the skull, the result of a blow on the head with a belaying pin in the hands of a man named Ray, mate of the Lucy Francis. The violence, it is alleged, was inflicted at Quarantine about a week ago, and subsequently Junio came up to the city and went to his residence, 23 Allen street. On Monday evening Junio, while in a deranged state of mind, beat his wife most terribly, his arrest being the result. The prisoner, on being examined by a surgeon, was found to have a fracture of the skull, and by recommendation was sent to the hospital. In case of his ability to make an intelligent statement it will be taken by Coroner Young. In the meantime a warrant has been issued for Ray's arrest. It is further stated that the mate in June or July last struck Junio on the head while the vessel was in Marseilles, France.

General Sherman is going to Europe on the United States steamer Wabash next week. He will be a grand old lion among the Moltkes and MacMahons.

Sixty Miles of streets in Chicago burned and laid waste tell the tale of that city's desolation more fully than all the glowing comments in the world.

Radical Conspirators and explosive bombs and firearms concealed in Barcelona must tend to render Amadeus uneasy in Madrid. The Spanish officers blame the members of the International. The conspiracy may be national notwithstanding.

The Bonapartist Officers serving in the French army are actively engaged in shaping an expression of military sympathy for the fallen Emperor. An address, signed by those who served under the empire—men and commanders—will be forwarded to Chiselhurst. The free traders of England will not object to its presentation.

The Political Fight in Jersey waxes warm. The Democratic State Central Committee have issued their last address, urging the party to renewed action in the approaching election. The address is not of the most cheerful character, and is about the best specimen of buncombe that has been inflicted upon the public during the canvass.

A Square Definition.—Without distinction of party, Mr. Evarts defines our present city and State contest to be a contest "in defence of the property and earnings of the great mass of our people against the rapine and plunder of a greedy combination of rogues in office," which is a very brief statement of the case for a long-winded lawyer.

An Important Cabinet Meeting was held yesterday, at which the Ku Klux in the South and the Mormons in Utah were discussed. It was determined to leave the Ku Klux prisoners to the discretion of Attorney General Akerman, and to send no more troops to Salt Lake unless things looked more threatening than at present.

A Model Parson—Parson Brownlow, who says, God willing, he will stick to his place in the United States Senate to the end of his term, if he has to be carried in and out of the Senate Chamber, because, as long as he can, he is bound to keep out Andy Johnson. The Parson's one great object in life is to disappoint Johnson.

The British Press on the Financial Consequences of the Chicago Fire.

We have the comments of the British press, some of which were published in our issue of Monday, on the probable financial consequences of the Chicago fire. On the whole they do not express much fear, and take a hopeful view of the ability of the American people to overcome soon the great disaster. One journal, remarkable for its sound financial reasoning, estimates the total loss, supposing there be no material salvage from the fire, between a hundred millions and a hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Others make even a larger estimate. The impression of such a heavy loss was given, no doubt, by the first exaggerated estimates published in many of the newspapers on this side the Atlantic. We have said all along, after having made the most careful investigation and comparison of the value of the property destroyed with the total value of all the property in Chicago, that the loss, probably, would be under a hundred millions. At the best it is a fearful destruction of property and entails serious consequences.

At first the shock was seriously felt in the money and stock markets of this country, particularly in New York, which is the heart of the commercial and financial system of the American Continent. There was considerable alarm, and stocks fell rapidly. There was, in fact, for a short time some fear of a crisis. But as the facts became known and the worst realized capitalists, stock operators, banks, insurance companies and business men generally began to measure the resources at hand with the disaster, and found there was no cause for a general revulsion. Beyond the inevitable suspension of a few insurance companies and a few failures commercial and financial affairs moved on as usual. Stocks began to recover again from the first surprise, and gold, which rose only two per cent or so, has declined to the average market price previous to the fire. Our British contemporaries, in their usual cautious way, sounded a note of warning to be prepared for the worst. It was a question, they said, how far New York would be affected by the losses and the failure of Chicago to pay this city for goods received, and, again, how far Manchester, Leeds, Lyons and other manufacturing towns in Europe might be affected by the difficulties here. They apprehended a drain upon England and an unusual overflow of securities to that country to meet such difficulties. But we suppose there will be a better feeling in England as capitalists and manufacturers there learn how temporary and slight the effect has been here. By this time, no doubt, the telegraph has diffused information of the state of things here and allayed apprehension. Happily this mighty agent of our modern civilization arrests financial disasters, equalizes the burdens of any catastrophe and brings speedily aid from one commercial community to another.

The London Times in its comments concludes by saying:—"Still, in the midst of all the confusion and loss, it is necessary to bear in mind the vigor and elasticity with which the American people meet and repair every adversity. The consequences of the two fires which within the last thirty-five years have devastated the business portions of New York were encountered with a promptitude which soon effaced their traces, and at a later period a like visitation at San Francisco caused a still greater development of indomitable energy. Hence it is some satisfaction in the midst of the present disaster to predict that whatever may be its magnitude there will be nothing more astonishing in connection with it than the way in which the sufferers will effect the work of restoration." How fully this flattering but just picture of the recuperative energy of the American people is exhibited to-day in the herculean efforts now being made at Chicago to restore that city, in the extraordinary subscriptions from all parts for the Chicago sufferers and in the elasticity of our financial and other resources! Old Europe begins to understand the facts of our situation, to learn that we have a vast Continent, productive in everything to sustain life and that commerce demands, with real, substantial wealth, growing beyond all precedent and faster than our rapidly increasing population, and that no people have ever been so distinguished for energy, industry and enterprise. We have attained the first position as a nation, and it will not be long before this country will become the commercial and money centre of the world.

This destiny, however, may be accelerated or retarded by the legislation and policy of the government. The way we are drifting along at present, losing the commercial advantages of the position which nature has given us, does not present as favorable a prospect as might be desired. The great future of our country, though inevitable, is seen only through the hazy atmosphere of the present state of things. Eleven years ago we could claim to be the rival of the first maritime nation in the world, if, indeed, we were not the first. Now where do we stand? See what strides England has made during that period and how far this country has fallen behind. Her tonnage has increased wonderfully, while ours has decreased in a greater ratio. Worse than that: we are going more and more behind in time of peace, and while the nation is fast recovering from all the other disastrous consequences of the war. Out of all the numerous steamship lines between Europe and America the United States has not a single vessel. The largest and most valuable portion of our commerce is done by foreigners, and, consequently, the profits go abroad. Six years after the war we are relatively in a worse position as a maritime nation than we were when peace was restored.

We call attention to this state of things because the surplus or available capital of a nation and the financial power of a nation in the world depend greatly upon commerce. A country may be rich in agriculture, may have the greatest abundance and variety of products of the soil, and yet be poor with regard to its commercial liabilities and financial standing to other countries. Yes, the richest nation in the world, as far as internal products or resources go, may be kept in debt and tributary to a flourishing maritime and commercial one with comparatively limited natural resources. This, in fact, is much about the relative position of the United States and England at the present time. While our protectionists are intent on fostering certain local and limited interests, such as those of a few manufacturers of New England and Pennsylvania, they lose sight of that which is of far greater importance and national in the broadest sense of the term. Maritime and commercial growth affects all interests. The greater the tonnage and carrying trade of a country the larger will be the balance of capital coming to it. A change of a few millions of profits from this source out of a trade aggregating hundreds of millions annually will turn the current of exchange and tend to give financial supremacy. The first thing, then, that Congress ought to turn its attention to is the depressed shipping interest. A remedy for our decayed and still declining commercial marine should be found without delay. Let smaller interests, if necessary, be sacrificed for that which is paramount to all others. If we can build ships as cheaply as foreigners by taking the duties off materials let us apply that remedy. If we cannot then let our merchants and capitalists buy vessels wherever they can get them on the best terms. We can easily recover from any internal disaster, however great, even such a fearful one as the fire at Chicago; but to recover our maritime importance and to make the United States the financial centre of commercial nations there must be a radical change in the policy of the government and wiser legislation on the subject.

The Reception of the Russian Prince.

Should the Grand Duke Alexis arrive within the period which intervenes to election day the reception ceremonies would have to omit the feature of a military display, because, under the laws of the State, no parade of the soldiery may take place during election or during the five days previous thereto. It is to be hoped, therefore, that His Imperial Highness may be so guided by the fate which has so long retarded his voyage as to defer his visit for a few days longer, in order that in our reception of him we may add the pageant of a military procession to the many honors which our people desire to show him. The law is so explicit that a parade must be dispensed with until after next Tuesday. The section of the Military Code, as enacted by the Legislature of 1870, says:—

> No parade or rendezvous of the National Guard shall be ordered on any day during which a general or special election shall be held, nor within five days previous to such election, except in case of riot, invasion or insurrection, or of imminent danger thereof, &c., &c.

In this connection it may be proper to remind the Committee of Reception that no provision has been made for the payment of the bands of music which are to accompany the regiments whenever the parade comes off. The militia, in turning out at this busy season of the year, feel that they contribute enough when they sacrifice their valuable time, without being subjected to the heavy expenses attending the provision of music for their several regiments.

Women's Rights in the Four Parties of Massachusetts.

There are four parties in the field in Massachusetts—the republican party, the democratic, the labor reform and the prohibition or teetototal temperance party. Mr. Washburn, the republican candidate for Governor, has a decided leaning towards women's rights, though he has not as yet defined exactly his position on the subject. Mr. John Quincy Adams, the democratic candidate, as to his position on "woman suffrage," says, "You may, perhaps, gather all the information which you require from a bold statement that I am, after careful thought and some study, unequivocally opposed to woman suffrage, and I shall feel it my duty, in the very improbable contingency of my ever occupying any considerable public office, to stand by the old immemorial division of activities and functions which seem to me to lie at the foundation of society." Very good.

Judge Pitman, the liquor prohibition candidate, goes for woman suffrage, and is sorry it is not in his party platform; but he says to the women's rights women, "Your greatest, I might say your only serious obstacle, is the indifference of woman herself to your movement;" and this is a fact "which nobody can deny." Mr. Chamberlin, the labor reformer, says that he is "in favor of woman suffrage, which is in the platform I stand on;" and so Chamberlin, after all, is the regular out-and-out woman suffrage candidate. It is possible, moreover, with these two strings to his bow—labor reform and women's rights—that he may poll a pretty stout vote in the State election of Tuesday next, inasmuch as General Butler was strongly inclined for some time to go in with the labor reformers and women's rights women on a "new departure." At all events, we look for some curious results in this coming Massachusetts election.

Latest from Great Salt Lake.—Our latest advices show that the excitement and consternation among the Saints of Utah, raised by the vigorous war of the United States authorities upon Mormon polygamy and Mormon murders, has subsided, and that the spirit of entire submission to the law prevails among the Saints. The case of another polygamist, William Clayton, will come up before the Court to-day on the appeal of his ninth wife for alimony and divorce. The defence will enter a demurrer against the jurisdiction of the United States Court, and before this Court, it is contended, this divorce suit cannot be maintained. It is probable, however, that for adultery, or "lewd and lascivious conduct" the aforesaid William Clayton can and will be brought to grief by Mrs. Clayton number nine, who is doubtless so far disgusted with the saintly abominations of Clayton's harem as to be resolved to break it up. It will require only a few such examples as this in the official exposure of the reeking vices of Mormon polygamy to bring the great nuisance to a speedy dissolution.

The Half Has Not Been Told, it would appear, of the extent of the human sufferings resulting from those Western forest fires. The Chicago Tribune, in an appeal to the country and the charitable world in behalf of those sufferers, says that "probably fifty thousand persons in Northern Wisconsin and Michigan alone have been stripped of every earthly possession by these fires." This report from the ruins of Chicago is surely entitled to respect.

It Appears the Canadians don't want the Horton restored to them. They see at once that the gallant Gloucester captain has tied her up tighter than their courts could have done.

The Theory of Political Reform and the Practice of Pretended Reformers.

In his letter declining the nomination of the democratic reformers for Assemblyman Charles O'Conor advises all honest citizens throughout the State to lay aside party interests and affiliations and, with singleness of purpose, to devote themselves at the ensuing election to the choice of sound lawgivers as the only peaceful remedy for existing or impending evils. "A corrupt majority in our Legislature possesses vastly more power than the English Parliament," says Mr. O'Conor; "few, feeble and utterly inefficient against robbery of the public treasure are the restraints of our fundamental law, and such a majority can render practically powerless the judiciary and the Executive." If the warning should be heeded and the advice followed we might hope for a return to the days when the Van Burens, Marcy, Wright, Bouck and Young were the leading politicians of the State; for, as Charles O'Conor truly says, "if for even a single year a majority of incorruptible men could be elected to the Legislature effectual measures of relief might be initiated, and such a beginning would be the dawn of a hope for our city and for the cherished institutions of our republic." But, unfortunately, selfishness and corruption have so eaten into our political system that the people cannot expect honest aid in reform from any existing party organization. The cry raised occasionally against official dishonesty is caught up and echoed by all the struggling cliques and factions that have their own interests to promote and their own schemes to carry out, and in the end those earnest men who have sincerely desired to effect a reformation in the government find themselves detached from one set of political knaves only to be fastened to the chariot wheels of another.

The present movement against our city peculators is a case in point. The people, startled and indignant at the conclusive evidences of the unfaithfulness of some of their public officers, were ripe for such a political revolution as might have swept the dishonest officials from power. But the popular uprising was hampered and checked by the intrigues of politicians, and soon degenerated into a mere scramble of outside cliques, ward clubs and individual adventurers for office. There was no direct honesty of purpose in the movement—no desire to bring the guilty to a speedy accounting. The object of those who managed to control it was to raise as much excitement as possible and to feed the public with sensational accounts, day after day, until after election. The only offices having any direct bearing upon the New York municipal question are the Judgeship of the Supreme Court, the Senatorships and the Members of Assembly. For the former of these the reformers overlooked the names of the many eminent jurists and distinguished citizens who were at their command, and put in nomination a respectable lawyer who had enlisted in the cause, it is alleged, in consideration of a heavy fee, and who, no doubt, hoped to be further rewarded with the prize he has obtained. For legislative offices we find the reformers trading and bargaining with all the factions notorious in the several districts; and while some good nominations have been made, enough of the vile element of the ward politician and the professional office-seeker has crept in to taint the whole batch of nominees. A party that unfurls the banner of legislative reform should not allow itself to uphold a single questionable candidate for Senate or Assembly; yet we find the Committee of Seventy the open supporters of ex-Sheriff O'Brien, the original organizer of the repeaters, and, probably, the most unscrupulous politician in the length and breadth of New York, not even excepting Tweed. The same tampering with corrupt men is found throughout the State on the part of the organization alleged to be opposed to Tammany, and the advice given by Mr. O'Conor is unheeded. At one end, in Chautauqua county, M. P. Bemus, whose record is notorious, receives the republican nomination for Assembly, and at the other end, in Queens county, L. B. Prince, an old member of the Assembly grinding committee, the most monstrous instrument of legislative corruption, is supported by republicans for Assembly, although his opponent, Edward A. Lawrence, has been known all his public life as a relentless enemy of Tammany. The truth is, there is no choice between the present political organizations; one is as corrupt, unreliable and rascally as the other. Both are under the control of dishonest men, who make politics a profession for the sake of the profits they may realize by unscrupulousness and peculation. The loudest political denouncers of Tammany to-day have their price, and would become allies of the "Ring" to-morrow if that much denounced circle would regard them as worth buying. There is only one hope for the thorough purification of our body politic and the return of parties to the integrity and pecuniary honesty that existed before the days of Fernando Wood, and that is in the entire wiping out of all the old organizations, together with the political hacks who have fastened themselves upon them, and the formation of a new party upon broad, liberal and enlightened principles, with the watchword of reform inscribed on their banners, and the determination to support none but honest men for office engraved on their hearts.

A Strange Case of Madness has appeared in Yonkers. Two young men, inseparable companions, have been attacked with what seems to be hydrophobia, but which a physician says is not. One of them was bitten by a man with whom he quarrelled some weeks ago, and in one of his paroxysms bit his friend, who is now afflicted like himself. The case is a remarkable one, and, notwithstanding the declaration of the physician, it hardly seems probable that it is aught else than hydrophobia.

Changes in the important military divisions of the Union and in the commanders thereof are known to be under discussion by the President, Secretary of War and General Sherman. It is not known just what they are, and except to the commanders themselves, they can be of little moment. The country is at such profound peace, except in Utah and the South, that the changing of the geographical definitions of military districts cannot affect its peace or security.

The Present Condition of the Russian Army.

We print in another part of this morning's issue a letter from the correspondent of the HERALD in St. Petersburg. The communication is one of considerable interest at the present time, now that rumors of army reorganizations and military changes throughout the empire of the Czar are startling and frequent. The correspondent quotes freely from a pamphlet published by General Fadejew at the close of the Austrian campaign, whose object evidently is to show that for years back Russia has been watchful and energetic, and that when the time comes it will be found that the imperial government has studied well the lessons of the past. From the general tenor of the correspondence it would seem that Russia is preparing, and preparing energetically, too, for war. How it is to be brought about is another question. It is scarcely necessary to refer to the Hohenzollern affair at Ems to call to mind the deadly conflict in which France and Germany were so recently engaged. Without any very great stretch of the imagination one can perceive how another Prince of the House of Hohenzollern might kindle a flame which would set all Europe ablaze. Be this as it may, Russia is arming to the teeth, and in a short time will be ready for any emergency.

A little reflection will call to mind that for long years previous to 1870 Prussia was quietly pursuing a peaceful policy towards all her neighbors. Under this mild garb her statesmen and her generals were close observers of the events and changes going on all over the world. The Schleswig-Holstein and Austrian affairs were but slight evidences of what Prussia would eventually undertake and successfully accomplish. The time at last arrived, France cast down the gauntlet and Prussia, accepting the challenge, took it up. How thoroughly the little kingdom was prepared the world has already ascertained. The policy of Russia since the Crimean war furnishes us with a somewhat similar parallel. When we consider the vast extent of the Czar's dominions, the immense difficulties of transporting troops from the frozen regions of the north to the shores of the Black Sea, we can readily realize the force of the assertion that the Russian soldiers were beaten long before they reached the Crimea. From that day to the present—now nearly twenty years—Russia has been quietly pursuing a vigorous policy towards the internal development of the country. An immense network of railroads, constructed in a manner to suit military operations, is spread all over the empire. These lines are run right up to the frontiers, and by these means troops can be transported as rapidly as occasion may require. In this way one of the great difficulties encountered by the Russians in 1854 is surmounted.

Regarding the Russian army we find that many improvements have been introduced into its management. Needed reforms have exercised a wholesome effect on it, and although in many respects it might be further improved, yet it is to-day in a higher state of efficiency than at any other period in its history. According to the figures furnished by the HERALD correspondent Russia could at the present time bring an effective force of eight hundred and thirty thousand men into the field. This is independent of the force in the Caucasian provinces, which foots up the respectable figure of two hundred thousand. Then the number of troops in Orenberg, Siberia and Turkistan count one hundred thousand more, so that really, from the figures thus furnished, Russia is ready to put over a million of men in arms. Referring to a special despatch to the HERALD published a few days ago, we find that by a "general order of the Russian War Office, duly approved by His Majesty the Czar, the entire and complete reorganization of the imperial army and the calling and training to arms of the whole adult male population of the country" is directed to be put in force. This will swell the figure to still larger proportions. The equipment of this immense army must not be forgotten. The most approved patterns of breech-loaders are now in the hands of Russian soldiers. The figures show that six hundred and sixty-nine thousand of the Berdan, Kruka, Carre and Brancon rifles are in use. Four hundred mitrailleuses also find a place in the service. From what we have said and from the figures given it is plain that Russia is preparing for a struggle on an enormous scale. Nearly twenty years of peace have given the empire an opportunity which evidently has not been neglected, and when the time comes—and it may not be far distant. The indications are that Russia has profited well by the lessons she has set before her both at home and abroad.

The Situation in Mexico.—A HERALD special telegram from Matamoros, which we publish to-day, reports the situation of affairs which existed in the Mexican republic on the 23d of October. Juarez's cause was more hopeful, and the current of events in favor of his government. Porfirio Diaz was not in the field. Mexico city remained quiet. Many of the State Governors—a majority of the whole—forwarded their felicitations to the chief of the nation, congratulating him on the aspect of affairs. Each one of the provincial dignitaries tendered also his services in aid of the government effort for the suppression of the Monterey pronunciamento. The assertion that Saltillo had capitulated was denied in the capital. Revolutionists were still in arms, however. The avenues of communication between the border territory and Monterey were held by the oppositionists of Juarez's rule. It may be said, indeed, that the people of Mexico still remain a divided family, although it is apparent that order is more respected in the household, and its citizen head becoming stronger in the assertion of his authority.

Prince Gortchakoff at Berlin.—President Thiers is smart, and so is Earl Granville; but Gortchakoff, as most men now know, is a match for either. Bismarck is his only real rival in Europe. At this time Bismarck and Gortchakoff must meet. It remains to be seen whether Gortchakoff can beat Bismarck as he not long since beat Granville. In any case we must soon know whether the Eastern and Salzburg Conferences mean war or peace. The presence of Gortchakoff at the Court of Berlin really means business. In a few hours we must know the result.

The Present Italian Opera Season and Its Predecessors.

After a chequered existence of many years, during which it has undergone more revolutions than the republic of Mexico, Italian opera at length has a fair chance of success and of obtaining a long lease of life. Although in the years gone by we have had the best lyric artists that Europe or America could furnish, and at times a constellation of them together, yet never before were our people so anxious and willing to lend a helping hand to the lyric drama as they are this fall. Since the present season opened the Academy of Music has been thronged with the élite of metropolitan fashion and intelligence, and each representation has had as brilliant an audience as could be brought together in any opera house in the world. Never before during the administrations of Ullmann, Grau or Maretzek, was such a warm interest in the opera manifested by the New York public as there is at present. When we look back to the various seasons during which Grisi, Sontag, Piccolomini, Bosio, Lagrange, Colson, Patti, Kellogg, Medori and Zucchi flourished, and in nearly every case met with but stinted patronage from the people of New York, the present operatic situation is encouraging in the highest sense of the word. It may be remembered that many years ago the seasons were so unprofitable that the artists had frequently to form themselves into a managerial association. Even the best Italian Opera Company that has ever appeared in this city—the Havana troupe, of which Bosio and Steffanone were members—failed to cover expenses. Therefore Mlle. Nilsson has every reason to congratulate herself on the triumph she has gained during the first season of her operatic career in New York.

The Swedish Nightingale is the main cause of this success. Although she gained laurels, and enduring ones, too, in the concert room and made herself respected in the field of oratorio, yet her genius found for the first time here full scope in opera. Her histrionic abilities have never been excelled and rarely equalled on the stage of the lyric drama. She lent new charms to the Bride of Lammermoor and invested the Lady of Camelias with a grace and tenderness that Dumas fils never dreamed of and that the traditional Violetta entirely ignores. A voice of the utmost purity of tone and susceptible of every shade of expression and a charming, naïve manner on the stage makes the Casta Diva of opera nowadays a creature of poetry and tenderness. To-night she appears in her greatest rôle, Marguerite, in Gounod's "Faust." It is the veritable Gretchen of Goethe—such an impersonation of the poor German peasant girl as has never been before presented on the stage. On Friday, the sixth subscription night, Mlle. Nilsson will essay the coquettish rôle of Zerlini in Mozart's chef d'oeuvre, "Don Giovanni," and she is now studying the great rôle of Leonora in Beethoven's "Fidelio." As for those two characters she has created—that of Mignon and that of Ophelia—in Ambroise Thomas' operas, the universal voice of the European press has been enthusiastic in its praise. We trust that the management will give our public a chance to hear this incomparable artiste in the character of Gilda, the best of Verdi's numerous heroines.

Miss Annie Louise Cary, the contralto of the troupe, has one of those lovely, sympathetic voices that are always heard with pleasure, and that give the music of each rôle she undertakes new charms. Signor Brignoli is in better voice than ever before, and the term "golden-toned" can be applied to him now in the fullest sense of the word. M. Victor Capoul achieved such a success on Monday night as Alfred Germont in "Traviata" as rarely falls to the lot of any tenor. He is a perfect lady killer in his love scenes and evidently set about the conquest of the female heart with an earnestness that is irresistible. Mlle. Leon Duval is very pretty and engaging, and as Donna Elvira on Friday night she cannot fail to make an impression on the susceptible hearts present. M. Jamet has a fine, sonorous bass voice, and as he plays one of the most important parts in opera to-night, that of Mephistopheles in "Faust," we may look for a really grand impersonation.

In the chorus and orchestra this company is particularly strong. Both of these important departments show evidence of thorough and careful training. Here we have the weak points of preceding seasons. The chorus and orchestra have been the disgrace of opera at the Academy heretofore. Now they are the most commendable features of the opera. Sixty singers represent the former and fifty instrumentalists the latter. In "Lucia," "Martha" and "Traviata" they did their duty nobly. In "Faust" we may expect still greater things from them.

It must be admitted that Italian opera is the only species of amusement that draws forth the crême de la crême of fashion in this city. Hitherto it has been a standing reproach to the metropolis of America, but now, with such a transcendent genius as Nilsson, it bids fair to become permanent and artistically respectable. At all events, our public will not be backward in giving it encouragement, and we trust that not only during this season but also in the next, when Pauline Lucca makes her début at the Academy, Italian opera will occupy the position to which it is entitled—first of all amusements.

A Lost Festival.

All Hallow Eve is a lost festival in our busy and practical world. It passed over us last night with hardly a thought of its presence. The jolly enjoyment of the snap apple, the dives in the tub of water after apples, the nut cracking, the illuminated turnips, the practical and harmless jokes, seemed to have no place in a community beset by Tammany frauds, bothered with a bewildering multiplicity of sensations, on the eve of an important election, and generally engaged in the most sternly practical duties of a busy life. It is unfortunate that it should be so. We can take no better recreation from the constant labors and anxieties that wear upon our minds and physical frames than by a night of such jollity in the home circle as a hearty celebration of All Hallow Eve represents. It refreshes far more than billiards, or the play, or a summer at fashionable watering places, or a crushing experience of grand balls. It "makes you a child again, just for to-night."

If we had more All Hallow Eves, and they were more religiously celebrated, we would have fewer jaded business men, fewer weak, narrow chested women, fewer dyspeptics, less unhappiness, less feverish haste to be rich, less unhealthy speculation, and a more general diffusion of the domestic virtues. Indeed, we might show that All Hallow Eve is a panacea for all our woes, and that Burns' two lines,—

> And many lads' and lassies' fates
> Are there that night decided,

are capable of a wider interpretation than he intended. That in boisterous and romping, but rational, enjoyment such as All Hallow Eve gives countenance to, there lies the germ of a remedy for most of the evils of our home life there is no doubt. The German element among us can teach us useful lessons in this regard, and notwithstanding the American neglect of All Hallow Eve last night we can see in many other particulars that we are fast learning these useful lessons.

The Home Rule Movement in Ireland.

The question of home rule for Ireland is agitating the people of the Green Isle at the present in a manner which calls to mind the days of O'Connell. In different parts of the country muster meetings have been held to bring the subject prominently before the people. Mr. Butt, the Member for Limerick, and Mr. John Martin, who is also a member of the British Parliament, are the prominent leaders in this movement. They have adopted a policy which commends itself to all thinking people, and one which, in the end, may prove successful in securing for Ireland some of the reforms which they seek. The old cant against England and the tyranny of British rule, so much adopted by third rate and pot-house politicians, is laid aside altogether. Moderation in speech is employed by the speakers who now harangue the home rule meetings being held throughout Ireland. A meeting was held in the old city of Drogheda some time back to advocate the home rule measure, at which it is estimated that fully thirty thousand people were present. The counties of Dublin, Meath, West Meath and Longford were all well represented on the occasion. The gathering was most orderly, the speakers indulged in little or none of the usual cant in denunciation of "bloody England," and the whiskey drinking part of the business, which usually formed a feature of such demonstrations, was noticeably smaller than on the occasions of similar importance. This is a healthy sign of a wholesome reform in Ireland. The mistake made in times gone by by the men who had the ear of the people was to abuse England and everything connected with English government. The course is now different; tactics are changed, and prominent Irishmen regard the change as beneficial and much more effective. People at this side of the Atlantic applaud the course pursued by the new leaders of the people in Ireland; and if the "ould country" is to be governed by her own people at home in their own Parliament house the policy pursued by such men as Butt, Martin and others will hasten the day when such an event can be declared accomplished.

A STRONG MAN AGAINST THE RING—O'Donovan Rossa, as the candidate of the reform democrats for the Senate in the Fourth Senatorial district. As the representative of the common cause of his race against the British despotism over Ireland, and as an honest, talented and patriotic Irishman, devoted to city reform, he ought to get the vote of every Irishman of his district, and in his bold defiance of "the Ring" he deserves an election.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE CABINET.

Chicago Asking for Government Troops to Protect the City.

Official Statement of Outstanding Currency.

Slanderous Charges Against Treasurer Spinner Disproved.

Important Cabinet Meeting—Troops for Chicago—Utah Affairs.

At the Cabinet meeting to-day a petition from Chicago was read, signed by representatives of both political parties, asking that troops be stationed in that city for the protection of property, those which were there immediately after the late fire having been withdrawn. In accordance with the petition an order has been issued by which a portion of the Eighth infantry, now at Willet's Point, will be despatched to Chicago.

The subject of the Ku Klux arrests in South Carolina was considered, Attorney General Akerman stating the result of his late visit to that State. The prisoners having asked to be released on bail, it was thought best to leave that matter to the discretion of Mr. Akerman.

The government will continue the prosecutions in Utah, and, if necessary, additional troops will be sent to that Territory. It is known that some of the federal officers have asked for troops to aid the Executive authorities in making arrests, but this is considered by the heads of military affairs here to be inexpedient unless there should be resistance to such an extent as to require the additional force. Much is left to the discretion of General Augur, who has taken measures to insure tranquillity and to further the ends of justice. With the exception of the above-named subjects no business of importance was transacted, though the meeting continued three hours.

Changes in the Military Departments.

The changes in the military departments of the country, which were announced in the Herald last July, and which were so strenuously denied upon authority, are soon to be made public. They will differ very little from the programme then announced. The expectation of this order after its announcement in the Herald, the details of which are being arranged by the President, the Secretary of War and General Sherman, created a great deal of anxiety in military circles, and the War Department was deluged with letters from army officers inquiring into its provisions. The Department of the Lakes is to be abolished and General Philip St. George Cooke will be placed upon the retired list. General Sheridan will not come East, as was at first intended, with his headquarters at New York, but will have a large territory under his command commensurate with his rank as Lieutenant General, with headquarters at St. Louis. The intention is to give him control of all the Indian tribes, as far as it can be done without encroaching too much upon the Military Division of the Pacific, commanded by General Schofield. New Mexico will be detached from the Department of the Missouri and erected into a separate department, and it is probable that either Colonel Edward Hatch, of the Ninth cavalry—now commanding a district in Texas—or Lieutenant Colonel Alfred Sully, of the Nineteenth infantry, will be designated as the commander, though Colonel David S. Stanley, of the Twenty-second infantry, now in Montana, may be appointed. These are all general officers by brevet, and their superior experience seems to make the choice of one of them a necessity.

Leaks in the Treasury—General Spinner's Defence.

Treasurer Spinner will in his annual report notice what he terms "an infamous libel" upon the Treasury Department in general and upon himself in particular, which appeared in a New York newspaper, and which was shown to him on his return from Europe. The article was headed "Leaks in the Treasury—Millions of Dollars Abstracted," &c. After a long review of the subject, fortified by extracts and references from the books of his office, the Treasurer says:—

> The charge of the destruction of six cartloads of account books, like the one that he had taken, on warrants made payable to F. E. Spinner, moneys amounting to over three millions of dollars, and for which he had not accounted, is, he hoped, sufficiently disproved by the simple statement of facts the truth of which can be verified by any one who may claim to examine the records and papers that are accessible in the various offices of the department to which they properly belong. The charge that he arrived in England on the 25th of May and proceeded to Baden, when he parted with his companions and disappeared, was in perfect keeping with all the rest. The whole article, from the beginning to the end, so far as any material fact is concerned, is, General Spinner says, an unmitigated lie, and was so known by its getters up when it was invented, penned and published. It had been said of municipal officials of a Northern city that they do not deny the charge of robbery of the public money made against them. There is reason to believe that, taking advantage of my absence in a foreign land, these false charges against the Treasury Department that originated in the organ of "the Ring" in that city, and whose editor is one of its members of the Senate of the State, were "back fire" and "stop thief" dodges, and made with a view to draw attention from themselves and their "stealings," and that they might say, "Why should we deny general charges of official dishonesty when an official of the national government, who is charged more specifically with wrongdoing, makes no denial?" These were the motives that induced me to swerve from the general rule not to give heed to slanders and libels.

Trouble with Ku Klux in Mississippi.

A letter received at the Internal Revenue Office, from A. P. Shattuck, Assessor for the Third district of Mississippi, reporting that on the night of the 23d inst. an attempt was made to burn the Assessor's office at Okolona, in that State, but the fire was extinguished before material damage was done. The day before the United States Deputy Marshal arrived at Okolona with warrants for the arrest of a party of Ku Klux. The Assessor tendered him what assistance he could, and his clerk assisted in making the arrests. Five persons were arrested and left at his house, and during the night the revenue office was fired. Assessor Shattuck thinks there is no doubt it was done by friends of the prisoners, as the town was full of strangers all night and threats were freely made against the life of Mr. Hall, the Assessor's clerk, for the part he took in the affair. Assessor Shattuck respectfully suggests that it might be advisable to have United States troops stationed there for the protection of government property, and excitement runs high over the arrests already made and to be made, and his office is liable to be burned at any time.

Ku Klux Emigration from South Carolina.

The Columbia (S. C.) Union, of Monday, says:—

> We have received information from most reliable authority to the effect that on Thursday of last week an armed band made their appearance in the village of New Pickens. The persons were all mounted and wore their arms unconcealed, and were provided with rations, &c. They inquired for United States maps and stated they were leaving South Carolina for good and were on their way to Georgia. None of the citizens of the village could recognize any of the party.

Appointments by the President.

The President made the following appointments to-day:—Hanford L. Gordon to be Register of the Land Office at St. Cloud, Minn.; George Andrews, United States Attorney for the Eastern district of Tennessee; George C. Bates, United States Attorney for Utah Territory; Hernin Rhoe, Postmaster at Norwalk, Ohio; C. H. Newell, Postmaster at Greenwood, Iowa.

Supervisor of Tennessee Appointed.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day reappointed ex-Supervisor Emery, of Tennessee, Supervisor of that State in place of Supervisor Stokes, removed.

Sympathy of the Swiss for the Chicago Sufferers.

The political agent and Consul General of Switzerland, Mr. Hitz, has received a letter from the President of that republic stating that the people express the warmest sympathy for the sufferers by the Chicago fire, and that liberal subscriptions are being made for their relief under organized arrangement.

The United States government is now paying a pension to the widow of William Tell, a lineal descendent of the Swiss hero of that name. The husband of the pensioner served in the late war in this country.

Presentation of the Colombian Minister to the President.

Señor Don Santiago Perez, who for some time past has been the Minister Resident here from the United States of Colombia, to-day delivered his credentials to the President as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the republic. He made the following remarks upon the subject:—

> MR. PRESIDENT—My government has resolved to render plenipotentiary the legation which is under my charge, and in the performance of the duties of which I have had the satisfaction to find your views entirely in harmony with mine in relation to drawing closer the friendly relations between the two countries. In the credential letter which I have the honor to place in your hands the President of Colombia states the reasons of the promotion above referred to. For my part, I feel that I cannot make a suitable return for his confidence, save by cultivating the spirit of justice with which both nations hope that such questions as may arise between them will be settled, and by endeavoring to merit a continuance of that kindness on your part which has hitherto rendered my official relations so easy and agreeable."

The President replied as follows:—

> MR. PEREZ—I congratulate you on your promotion. It may be considered as an approval by your government of your course here, which has also been quite acceptable to us. We are especially interested in preserving the good will of the United States of Colombia, partly, indeed, because they are the custodians of the only open way across the Isthmus which connects North with South America. We shall omit nothing practicable on our part towards maintaining that good will, and cannot fail if your government shall meet us in the spirit of justice to which you allude, and especially if due regard be had for antecedents, realities and prospects.

Another Defalcation.

The President to-day suspended W. F. Forbes, Invalid Pension Agent of Philadelphia, at the request of the Commissioner of Pensions. He is charged with being a defaulter to the amount of $25,000, which, it is said, he has expressed his willingness to restore to the government.

Increase of American Tonnage.

A statement furnished by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the number of vessels and tonnage of the United States on June 30, 1871, as compared with the corresponding date of 1870, shows a gain over 1870 of 76 sailing vessels with a tonnage of 32,129.87, 158 steam vessels of 34,106.51 tons and 955 unrigged vessels of 99,626.29 tons, or a total of 1,189 vessels with a tonnage of 165,262.67.

Admeasurement of German Vessels.

The Treasury Department has decided that a German vessel entering an American port for the first time, having a British certificate of admeasurement, need not be admeasured.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

THE TOTAL DESTRUCTION of the records of the United States District Court in the great fire at Chicago did not include the copyright records of Illinois, which were removed to Washington last year, and are safe in the fireproof library of Congress. Many transcripts of valuable copyrights have already been called for and furnished by the Librarian.

A NEW WEEKLY JOURNAL, entitled Public Opinion, modelled upon the London paper of that name, has been commenced at Philadelphia by Mr. G. W. Hammersley, editor of the Germantown Chronicle. Its plan is to give a selection of the best articles from all the leading newspapers, reflecting public sentiment both in the United States and England. It aims to be the Eclectic of the newspaper press.

THE TOTAL LOSS of the library and gallery of paintings of the Chicago Historical Society, by the burning of the "fireproof" building, included 18,000 bound volumes, 150,000 pamphlets and 200 paintings, comprising the entire collection of Mr. George P. A. Healy. Among the latter was Couture's original "Prodigal Son" and Healy's picture of Daniel Webster replying to Hayne in the Senate.

JOHN RUSKIN, in his last "Letter to the Workingmen of Great Britain," says of his boyhood training:—"My mother forced me, by steady daily toil, to learn long chapters of the Bible by heart, as well as to read it every syllable through from Genesis to the Apocalypse about once a year; and to that discipline I owe, not only a knowledge of the book, which I find occasionally serviceable, but much of my general power of taking pains and the best part of my taste in literature."

THE AUTHOR of that successful book of Southern humor, "Major Jones' Courtship," first published in 1844, will next year bring out a new edition. William T. Thompson is his real name.

THE MORMON TROUBLES.

Herald Special Report from Salt Lake City.

BAIL REFUSED FOR STOUT AND KIMBALL.

The Mormons Becoming Quiet—No Resistance to the Laws Expected.

A Saint with Nine Wives in the Meshes of the Law.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 31, 1871.

The United States District Court, Chief Justice McKean, adjourned to-day until the 14th of November.

In the cases of Stout and Kimball the Judge declined to admit them to bail until he had examined into the matter more fully. They are held in custody at Camp Douglas.

The decision of Judge McKean in granting bail to Mayor Wells received general approval.

The Mormons are sensibly touched by the Judge's action. The feeling generally is much better. The leaders are more quiet and sensible, and the people are growing tranquil and more amicable. There is not the slightest danger of any disturbance of the peace, although Senator Morton's editor was badly scared in his brief visit here and lost his usual presence of mind.

There is to be no rebellion or war and no extraordinary expenditure of the public funds.

A number of other arrests are likely to occur in a short time, but none of very great importance.

A Queer Case Before the Courts—A Mormon's Ninth Wife Sues for Divorce—The Saints Becoming Civil.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 30, 1871.

H. S. Eldridge, of the Bank of Deseret, and William Jennings, of the Zion's Co-operative Institution, were accepted as sureties on the bail bond of Mayor Daniel Wells. The motion for bail in the cases of Stout and Kimball is still under consideration by the Court.

The case of Clayton against Clayton, being an action for divorce and alimony instituted by the polygamous wife of William Clayton, is on the docket for to-morrow. Clayton is the Territorial Auditor. The point at present raised is a demurrer to the jurisdiction of the United States Court, the defence claiming that matters of this nature belong exclusively to the Probate Court. The plaintiff is Clayton's ninth wife, and a suit for divorce before a United States Court cannot, of course, be maintained. It is expected that the testimony on the merits of the case will be curious, and if it be admitted that the plaintiff is defendant's wife it will leave him open to a charge of bigamy. The defendant's only hope is that the demurrer will be maintained.

The man Bennett, who was found dead and shot through and through on the road near this city on Saturday last, is said to have been a horse thief. A man named Jones avows the killing and declares that he caught Bennett in the act of stealing [illegible] Jones is under arrest.

Everything is as quiet and peaceable here to-night as in a country village. Aside from what is said in the Church organs the general expression of the Mormons is that of entire submission to the law. Cannon is very bitter, but Orson Pratt says it will be all right so long as they do not fine him, for he has no money.

Wells, Fargo & Co. and the merchants received during last week $240,000 in silver bullion, mostly from Pioche.

Release of the Mormon Bishop, Aaron Johnson.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Mormon bishop, Aaron Johnson, arrested a short time since at Springville by a United States marshal for murder, was released to-day by Judge Strickland, at Provo City, on $10,000 bail.

Condition of Affairs in Laurens County.

ABSOLUTELY NO KU KLUX THERE.

NEWBERRY, S. C., Oct. 27, 1871.

NO KU KLUX IN LAURENS COUNTY.

As showing how exaggerated and often utterly false have been the reports published in the radical press of the outrages committed upon negroes, I have only to mention that, excepting in an election riot last year, there has not been a negro killed by a white man in Laurens since the war ended. There have been several cases of whipping, but in every case the victim had been guilty of some offence against the laws, and for which he had not been punished by the proper authorities. Of course mob law cannot be justified under any circumstances, but I mention the cause solely for the purpose of showing that politics had nothing whatever to do with the troubles.

SOME NEGRO OUTRAGES.

While no negroes have been murdered white men have. The most notorious one was the assassination of Dr. C. Shell by negroes in 1868. In this case one of the assassins was convicted and hung, and the others were permitted to escape. Furthermore, I have before me the story of an attack by negroes upon the residence of Mr. Harrison Scott. He was absent at the time, and his wife was most brutally treated, after doing which the negroes robbed the house and marched off. An attempt was also made on the life of a Mr. Shaw, which, however, fortunately failed. It is not my purpose to say anything harsh about the negroes of Laurens county. All the whites agree in representing the majority of them as orderly and well behaved, and certainly the negroes do not complain of any ill-treatment at the hands of the whites. I do not know that I can illustrate the object of the Ku Klux better than by giving the words of a negro to me on yesterday. "Boss," said he, "de Ku Klux no trouble me. I nebber steal anything from nobody."

AN ELECTION RIOT.

The election riot last year was reported at the time in the HERALD, but not as I have heard it. The affair occurred in this way:—A large body of negro militia, officered by negroes, had been stationed in Laurensville for some time and had carried on things pretty much their own way, to the great exasperation of the whites. A house occupied by them had been converted into a fort, with loopholes, &c. On the day of the election one of the State constables—a white man—got into a row with one of the citizens and a fight ensued between them. The row attracted numerous persons to the spot and quite a crowd had gathered around the combatants, when, suddenly the negro militia rushed into their improvised fortress, closed the doors and opened fire upon the crowd through the loopholes. Tremendous excitement followed this outrage. The whites hurried home, armed themselves and returned to the scene and a desperate conflict ensued. It was resumed on the following day and ended in the disarming of the negro militia and their withdrawal or disbandment by authority of the Governor. Some half dozen negroes were killed or wounded and two or three whites the same. Radicals have admitted to me that the conduct of the militia had been overbearingly insolent and that it required only another overt act to incense the whites beyond the power of controlling their passions. Now, whether the whites were criminal or not in this riot, it cannot possibly be tortured into a Ku Klux outrage.

BURNING OF A SCHOOL HOUSE.

Much stress is laid by the Laurens county radicals upon the burning of their school house. The negro in charge of it declares that he had previously been given notice to quit the county or he would be killed. He is living in the county to-day sound in body. However, one night the school house was burned down and instantly the Ku Klux were charged with the incendiarism. Not a living soul has ever asserted that he saw the men who did it. It is stated, however, that the members of the negro church to which the school was attached had had a row about it only a few evenings before it was burned, and the whites believe that some of them set it on fire in revenge for not having their own way about it. It is scarcely rational to suppose that white men would have destroyed it when they were fully aware that they would have to furnish the money to rebuild it. All the taxes paid by the negroes of Laurens county in a year could not have purchased the nails with which to fasten the planks together.

NO CONFIDENCE IN THE AUTHORITIES.

In Laurens county I hear the same complaint I have heard in Newberry county—namely, an utter want of confidence in the officials placed over the people by the Governor or by the votes of the negro. They run the machinery of the government in the interests of the blacks, and the whites—who own all the property—are only thought of in connection with the taxes. Governor Scott is held in supreme contempt by the whites everywhere. He is charged with duplicity and double dealing, with saying one thing to the whites and the exact opposite to the blacks, while he does everything to satisfy his political party.

GOVERNOR SCOTT'S MALADMINISTRATION.

I do not pretend to say that in all the disturbances which have taken place the whites have been wholly blameless. Undoubtedly, they have done some things which they ought not to have done. But some allowance must be made for human nature. Men are likely to become exasperated when their barns, horses, stables, &c., are burned to the ground, and after they have succeeded in getting the criminals convicted see the Governor turn them loose. I have conversed with some of the most respectable citizens of Newberry and Laurens counties—men whom to doubt would be equivalent to pronouncing the entire Southern people liars and scoundrels—and in all cases the same complaint has been made. The laws of the State are bad enough, they say, but let them be fairly enforced and there will be no Ku Klux. They declare it to be a notorious fact that any negro who possesses political influence can commit crime with impunity. If even their offence is so atrocious that the negro juries are compelled to convict Governor Scott stands ready with a pardon to set them free. Just previous to the last election (by way of illustration), several negroes in Newberry county were convicted of rioting. They were sentenced to the penitentiary. It so happened that they were influential in politics and they were turned loose.

KU KLUX CONFESSIONS.

Put together all the facts I have narrated and say whether there is any community in the Western States which would have resisted the temptation to take the law into their own hands. You will hear a great deal about what the prisoners arrested confess. As I telegraphed you, some of them undoubtedly admitted that they belonged to the Ku Klux organization, but none have said that their object was political. Reports of the character of their confession, as published in the Union, of Columbia, cannot be relied upon, for that paper is notorious for its efforts to reduce the whites into abject submission to the negroes. Its editor is a carpet-bagger, who has fattened off the plunder of the State and is interested in keeping up political agitation so that his party may remain in power. I do not attempt to lessen the force of any confession; I merely propose to state the facts. It would be folly to justify any acts of violence perpetrated by the Ku Klux; it would be criminal to ignore the provocation for them. They are the result of gross mismanagement, and martial law for the purpose of suppressing them is, under the circumstances, a virtual endorsement of such misgovernment.

POSSIBILITY OF ARMED RESISTANCE.

And now one word more before I close. It is intimated in the proclamation of the President that an insurrection exists in Newberry, Laurens, York, Union, Chesterfield, Chester, Spartanburg, Lancaster and Fairfield counties. I dare the most prejudiced radical to assert that a single armed band has been encountered by the United States soldiers. The entire federal force in the district does not exceed one thousand men, and these, in small squads, scour the country by night and make arrests with impunity. If the people were disposed to resist the government they could annihilate this little force in a single night; but thus far they have submitted quietly. True enough, apprehensions are expressed lest the young men who have been driven from their homes, or whose relatives have been arrested, become desperate and inaugurate a guerilla warfare. Such a finale to the deplorable era inaugurated is not impossible; but it must be said, in simple justice to them, that the influential citizens are counselling quiet acquiescence in everything done by the military authorities.

THE MEDLICOTT MURDER TRIAL IN KANSAS.

Review of the Case.

The jury in the case of Dr. Medlicott, after being out from half-past nine o'clock on Wednesday night until half-past eight o'clock Thursday morning, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The jury could not consistently have found a verdict for any lesser degree under the circumstances, as the laws of Kansas make killing by poison murder. One juror stated that he was in favor of murder in the second degree, but yielded to the opinions of the other twelve. A motion for a new trial was made, and as it will probably not be granted by Judge Bassett the case will go to the Supreme Court. A large number of exceptions were taken to the rulings of the Court during the progress of the trial, and it is not improbable that some of these rulings may be decided to have been erroneous. For instance, there was one rather curious piece of testimony. Johnson, the cell mate of Medlicott, was not allowed to state what Medlicott said in his sleep; but was permitted to state what he told Medlicott he had said in his sleep. These somnambulic revelations had, doubtless, their full influence upon the minds of the jurors. There are other points upon which the counsel for the defence confidently expect to obtain from the Supreme Court a reversal of the judgment.

The case, taken in all its details, is one of the most singular and interesting in the annals of criminal jurisprudence. A brief epitome of the leading facts connected with it may not be uninteresting.

Isaac M. Ruth had married, as his second wife, the divorced wife of Mr. Seymour Voullaire, of this city, at a time when Voullaire was supposed to be in a dying condition from a pistol ball fired by Ruth. Several months afterward Ruth and his wife removed to Lawrence, Kansas, where Ruth had resided before the war. Ruth obtained a situation as bookkeeper in the office of the Lawrence Tribune, and was a quiet, industrious man of business.

About the same time a young physician, named John J. Medlicott, located at Lawrence and commenced the practice of his profession. He was about thirty years of age, well educated, of good address, manners and appearance. His wife was about twenty years his senior—a quiet, patient, unassuming woman. He had married her in Maryland, against the remonstrance of her friends, who believed her little fortune of five or six thousand dollars had more to do with Medlicott's choice than affection for the woman. The young physician obtained a fair practice and was a member of the Episcopal church.

Medlicott became the family physician of Ruth, and his account book, produced in Court, showed that he made no charge for his services, although his visits were as frequent as twice a day. Indeed, so frequent were his visits to Mrs. Ruth, and so uniformly were the doors locked and the curtains drawn, that the neighbors gossiped about it, and surmised that there was a criminal intimacy between the parties.

In December last, Medlicott's wife died very suddenly, and it is remarkable that her symptoms strongly resembled those of Ruth at his death, four months later. Dark hints were thrown out at the time, but little was said, and the body was interred at Lawrence. The cause of her death was stated to be apoplexy, but a physician who was there at the time declares that no symptoms of apoplexy were observable. In the memorandum book in which Ruth wrote his last letter is a penciled note of the death of Mrs. Medlicott, from which he wrote her obituary in the newspaper, and it is there stated that she died of apoplexy. There can be no doubt that Medlicott himself furnished the dates and cause of death to Ruth.

After the death of his wife, the doctor became still more attentive to his patient, who, according to her own statement, was afflicted with multitudinous sores in various parts of her body, and spent a great part of her time in bed. Yet it appears she frequently attended dances, and sometimes rode out with the doctor in his buggy. Notwithstanding the gossip of the town, it does not appear that Ruth was jealous of the attentions of the doctor to his wife, but remained on friendly terms with him up to the hour of his death.

On the 26th of April, in the afternoon, Mrs. Ruth went to Leavenworth on a visit. That night Ruth and Medlicott played three games of chess at the house of the former, and they parted between nine and ten o'clock. The next morning Ruth was found dead in his bed, with froth and blood oozing from his mouth. Of course the family physician was the first person sent for, and his conduct in the presence of the dead excited remark.

The strongest feature of the whole case is the letter written by Ruth to his wife, just before he died, informing her that Medlicott had given him a quinine powder half an hour before, and requesting her, in case of his death, to have his body examined. In this letter he describes his symptoms with some minuteness, and states that the clock has just struck eleven. The memorandum book was found lying on his coat, on the piano, with his vest and pants lying on it. The question will at once arise, why did he not call to his assistance the physician who slept next door, within a few feet of his room? By doing so he might have saved his life. He, however, strange as it may appear, spent the last moments of consciousness in writing a letter which, on the trial, was the most convincing evidence that he was murdered.

As soon as the letter was discovered Medlicott was arrested and lodged in jail. He immediately sent for a lawyer, and the result of the conference was that the lawyer had Mrs. Ruth taken to his own house immediately on her return from Leavenworth, and before she had seen the corpse of her husband. What transpired between the lawyer and the lady has not been revealed, but the prisoner subsequently stated that the lawyer assured him "there was no danger."

In the cell in which Medlicott was confined was a young man named Henry Johnson, alias Sperry—the same man who was fined in the United States Circuit Court in this city about a year ago for defrauding the revenue department. Johnson was imprisoned on a charge of burglary and larceny. He became satisfied of Medlicott's guilt from hearing him talk in his sleep. The spirits of the dead haunted him in his dreams. The apparition of his wife hovered over him in his midnight slumbers, and he started up with glaring eyeballs and exclaimed, "O God, Sarah! are you here?" The dying agonies of Ruth were re-enacted in his dreamy imagination, and he would smooth the drapery of his couch and say, "Be quiet, Ruth! Take this, and it will do you good!"

Johnson, who is described as a professional burglar in appearance, conceived the idea of winning his own freedom by obtaining satisfactory evidences of the guilt of his fellow prisoner. He succeeded in gaining Medlicott's confidence and in obtaining from him letters that are a virtual confession of guilt. One of these letters was a glowing lovesick epistle to Mrs. Ruth, written, as he stated on the stand, to change the current of her feelings against him. To understand this expression it is necessary to know that the newspapers had published a report that Mrs. Ruth had vowed vengeance against the murderer of her husband, and had sworn her children over his coffined corpse to avenge his death. These fearful threats explain why Medlicott was so anxious to mollify her—why he wrote in one of the intercepted letters that he "could not go to trial without knowing what this woman will swear to."

The analysis of the contents of the stomach made by the chemists showed that Ruth had died of morphine poison, and from a subsequent examination of another portion of the body discovered the presence of atropine, as testified by the chemist. The body of Mrs. Medlicott was also exhumed and it is said that these two poisons were discovered. It appears that the mixture of these two poisons will have the effect of preventing the usual post mortem appearances produced by either, although the one is frequently used as an antidote for the other.

These and numerous minor facts and circumstances were carefully gathered by the prosecuting attorney, and on the trial were presented to the jury in such a clear and forcible manner that no doubt remained of the guilt of the accused, and the verdict was "murder in the first degree."

The defence attempted to account for the death of Ruth on three theories—first, that he died from the effects of the quinine, taken in the worst stage of congestive chill; second, that he took morphine by mistake for quinine; third, that he committed suicide and wrote the dying letter to save his life insurance policy. In support of the first theory they proved by several respectable physicians that quinine sometimes killed when injudiciously administered. In support of the second theory, that morphine was taken by mistake, it was shown that both quinine and morphine were in the room, in boxes resembling each other, and it was easy for one to be mistaken for the other. The theory of suicide was sustained by ingenious facts and arguments.

The defence was very ably conducted by Judge Thatcher and Mr. W. W. Nevison, of Lawrence, assisted by Mr. Johnson, of Garnett. The prosecution showed equal if not superior ability. It should have been mentioned that the trial took place at the town of Garnett, Anderson county, the accused having demanded a change of venue from Lawrence. Mr. John Hutchings, Prosecuting Attorney of Douglas county, prepared the case with a great deal of labor and ingenuity, and made a most excellent speech in opening the arguments. Mr. Thomas P. Fenlon, of Leavenworth, in his masterly speech to the jury, made it apparent to all who heard him that he is one of the best criminal lawyers in the Union. His argument, it was said, did more than anything else to convince the jury. Colonel C. B. Mason, Prosecuting Attorney of Franklin county, rendered valuable services to the State in searching authorities and giving advice in the conduct of the case. Judge Bassett, who presided, conducted the proceedings with the utmost decorum, and showed himself to be a thorough jurist and an impartial and clear-headed judge. The case, it is presumed, will go to the Supreme Court.

The trial was, as before remarked, an exceedingly interesting one, and presented features entirely new in the annals of criminal trials. No case that has occurred in this part of the country for many years has excited so much interest among the people, and for this reason the above brief review is deemed proper at the close.

THE ALLEGED MURDER IN THE NINETEENTH WARD.

In the case of John Rourke, late of 305 East Forty-sixth street, who is alleged to have been fatally beaten during a drunken quarrel on Saturday night, no investigation has yet been held, and will not till Monday next. Captain Gunner, of the Nineteenth precinct, has four or five witnesses detained in his station house, and will keep them till the inquest takes place.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET,
TUESDAY, Oct. 31—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was lower, but the decline brought in buyers and the market became active. Cotton was steady and a shade better on less favorable advices as to the crop coming to market.

MONEY IRREGULAR.

Money was easy during the usual hours for making engagements, and borrowers supplied themselves readily at six and seven per cent. Later in the afternoon there was a pressure to lend, and several transactions were reported at as low as four per cent; but before the close of banking hours the rate underwent a sharp turn and seven per cent was actively bid for money at the close. The sudden scarcity at this time was reported to be the result of a calling in of loans by the Broadway Bank, which institution will pay to-morrow (November 1) about three million dollars of interest on the city debt as well as the principal of some of the city revenue bonds. The changed condition of the market was also due, doubtless, to the reversal of the speculative position of some of the leading operators on the Stock Exchange.

Prime commercial was quoted 10 a 18 per cent discount for the several grades.

Foreign exchange was weak and lower in actual business, through a pressure of bills to obtain gold for use in the gold market, but asking rates were nominally the same.

GOLD STRONG—111⅝ A 112⅜.

The gold market was strong and advanced to 112⅜, the upward movement being only briefly interrupted by a reaction to 112. The "short" interest became alarmed at the scarcity of cash gold and took the alternative of covering, producing a rise for the day of five-eighths per cent. The stronger feeling was assisted also by the light disbursements so far on account of November interest. Borrowers paid one-eighth per cent for the use of gold in some instances this afternoon, and late this evening 3.32 was bid for the use of more to-morrow. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	111⅝	2 P. M.	112⅛
11 A. M.	111¾	3 P. M.	112
12 M.	111⅞	3:50 P. M.	112⅛
1 P. M.	112⅛	4 P. M.	112⅛
1:32 P. M.	112⅜	5:30 P. M.	112⅛ a 112¼

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from flat to ⅛ per cent for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$29,211,000
Gold balances	1,346,996
Currency balances	1,546,100

GOVERNMENTS STRONG.

The government list was strong, in sympathy with the upward turn in gold, but without important improvement or change in prices. The following were the closing street quotations:—United States currency sixes, 111¼ a 111½; do. do., 1881, registered, 115¼ a 115⅝; do. do., coupon, 116½ a 116¾; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 111 a 111¼; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 114⅝ a 114⅞; do. do., 1864, do. do., 114½ a 114¾; do. do., 1865, do. do., 114¾ a 115; do. do., registered, January and July, 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 113½ a 113⅝; do. do., 1867, do. do., 113⅝ a 113¾; do. do., 1868, do. do., 113⅝ a 113¾; do. ten-forties, registered, 108⅞ a 109⅛; do. do., coupon, 109¼ a 109⅜.

STOCKS IRREGULAR AND LOWER.

The stock market was strong up to the time the money market became active, as above noted, and the early speculation was decidedly buoyant, Lake Shore taking the lead and advancing to 100⅝. The general list improved one-half per cent as compared with the prices at the beginning of business. The first indication of weakness was given by Lake Shore, which was pressed for sale on the refusal of the Trust Company to give receipts for stock filed for the award of the 40 per cent stock dividend. The company have not been able as yet to prepare the scrip certificates, and as the first instalment of ten per cent falls due to-morrow a number of the shares of stock were offered for registration. To allow ample margin of time for the payment of subscriptions the Stock Exchange decided to call the stock "with privilege on" until Monday next, November 6. This will doubtless enable stockholders and the Trust Company to adjust their affairs. The stock, however, fell to 98¾, occasioning weakness all around, the depression being helped by the sharp inquiry for money at the close, especially as the impression gained ground that the "bear-bull" clique, yielding to constitutional instincts, had unloaded during the strong market of the past few days and were now disposed to operate according to their time-honored principles.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

TUESDAY, Oct. 31—6 P. M.

ASHES.—The market continued quiet at $7 75 a $8 25 for pots and $9 25 a $9 75 for pearls.

CANDLES under a moderate jobbing demand were steady at 28c. a 29c. for stearic, 29c. for plain sperm, 39c. for patent sperm, 13c. a 15c. for adamantine, and 24c. for paraffine.

COFFEE.—The market for all descriptions was without improvement in any respect. Buyers and sellers continued apart in their views, and the tendency of values was downward. No sales of cargo invoices were effected. Messrs. Arden & White sum up the stock of Rio and Santos coffee in the United States as follows—New York, 25,110 bags; Baltimore, 2,001 bags; New Orleans, none; Charleston, 1,000 bags; Mobile, none; Galveston, 7,000 bags; Savannah, none. Total, 35,111.

COTTON.—Under continued favorable advices from Liverpool and moderate receipts at the ports the market for cotton on the spot and to arrive was materially better, with an improved demand from both shippers and spinners. Prices ruled at least ⅛c. per lb. higher, to which advance we conform our quotations, remarking that some sales were at rather better prices. A good business was again consummated in future deliveries at ⅛c. per lb. advance, the market closing firm at the improvement. The sales reported on 'Change sum up as follows:—

BEATEN TO DEATH.

Man's Inhumanity to Woman—Horrible Atrocity at Sing Sing—A Wife Murdered by Her Husband—The Demon of Intemperance Again—More Work for the Grand Jury.

Last Monday, at Sing Sing, Coroner Smith held an inquest on the body of a woman named Julia Wise, whose death on the previous day resulted from brutal injuries inflicted upon her by her husband, Richard Wise.

It seems that the parties, who were inhabitants of what is known as "Nigger alley," were of dissipated habits, and, owing to the frequency of their drunken orgies and quarrellings, had rendered themselves obnoxious to their not over fastidious neighbors. On Thursday afternoon Wise and the deceased drank copiously, and during the inevitable fight which followed the inhuman husband took the deceased in his arms and which skirted a steep bank on the opposite side. Having staggered down to the dock some hours later Wise met J. G. Many, the village collector, and told him that his (Wise's) wife was lying dead near the house. Believing that something was wrong Many at once proceeded to the place named, and there found the wretched woman in a state of semi-intoxication lying where her husband had so heinously thrown her. Although conscious the sufferer appeared to be laboring under intense pain and frequently complained of her back. She was assisted into the squalid hovel, which for her and her family served the purpose of a home, and from which she was destined never to emerge again except as a corpse. Next day (Friday) the husband again, and while both were still under the influence of liquor, attacked the deceased, whom he dragged to the floor, and, having beaten her in an inhuman manner,

TRAMPLED UPON THE PROSTRATE WOMAN

with a pair of heavy boots. This was done in presence of their daughter, a child of ten years, who subsequently testified against the accused. The latter was arrested on Saturday evening, after the ante-mortem statement of the deceased had been taken. The woman lingered until the following morning, when she expired, after intense suffering. A post-mortem examination of the body was made by two of the village physicians, who found the internal organs

A MASS OF CLOTTED BLOOD.

After hearing the testimony adduced the jury rendered a verdict that "deceased came to her death from injuries inflicted by her husband." Wise was accordingly committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Deceased was about forty years of age and leaves three children. The prisoner is about the same age, and has always borne a bad reputation in the village. Both parties were addicted to the frequent abuse of strong drink, the prisoner especially being regarded as a pest in the neighborhood.

It is understood that in addition to his natural viciousness when under the influence of liquor Wise had a special reason for kicking his wife to death. Well authenticated report says that the unfortunate woman recently which she owned near the dock, and having obtained the proceeds, refused to hand them over to her husband. This money the deceased is said to have carried in her bosom for safety, and it is believed that the prisoner resolved on the diabolical crime of murdering her for the purpose of obtaining it. It is also asserted on good authority that Wise was compelled to leave Ireland precipitately on account of having killed a man with whom he quarrelled there. Some of the relatives of the murdered man alluded to are at present living in the village of Sing Sing.

THE CITY COMPLICATIONS.

Hagerty and Baulch in the General Sessions.

The Case of the Stolen Vouchers Adjourned Over Until Monday Next—Izzy Lazarus Indicted as a Repeater—Waiting for the Grand Jury.

The Forthcoming Report of the Committee of Seventy.

The Judiciary and Heavy-Salaried Clerks To Go Short of Funds for a Few Months.

It was expected that something of an important character would take place at the Court of General Sessions yesterday, consequently there was quite a large crowd in attendance, only a small portion of whom were, however, admitted. It was understood that the Grand Jury were expected to bring in an indictment against some one or more members of the old municipal Ring, or take action on some matter connected with the same, and this induced the public to be on the lookout for fresh developments in the drama that is at present being played about the City Hall by some of our late rulers.

Recorder Hackett was on the bench promptly at eleven o'clock, and occupying a seat beside him was the

HON. JUDGE BEDFORD.

Messrs. Fellows and Sullivan, Assistant District Attorneys, next came into Court, quickly followed by counsel for both Hagerty and Baulch, the alleged purloiners of the vouchers from Comptroller Connolly's office.

The two prisoners were placed at the bar shortly afterwards, and appeared to be in the best of spirits.

THEY LAUGHED AND CHATTED WITH THE UTMOST EASE.

Counsel for the prisoners, addressing the Court, said—If the Court please I represent Messrs. Hagerty and Baulch, the defendants in two indictments, which were presented by the Grand Jury and filed in the court yesterday. The defendants, as the Court is undoubtedly perfectly well aware, are charged with burglarious entrance into the office of the Comptroller of the city of New York in the month of September last, and with having feloniously abstracted from that office certain public papers. The indictments having only been found yesterday, and having received a notification to appear here this morning and plead on the part of the defendants, I am unable to decide now what course to pursue in reference to this indictment. They are exceedingly lengthy, and I have no doubt they are drawn with all the skill and ingenuity of the District Attorney's office—and that skill is very great—the combined skill of himself and able assistants. I desire that the matter may lay over in reference to the plea until Monday next. It will take a day to copy these indictments, and I am so pressed with business that I could not possibly read them so as to be here before Saturday, and as the next term of this Court commences on Monday, and as the public interest will not suffer by a postponement of this kind, and as my learned friends on the other side do not oppose this indulgence—it seems to me hardly to be an indulgence; it is more a right to ask the Court, with all deference, to allow the matter to PASS OVER UNTIL MONDAY NEXT.

I will then decide what course to pursue.

Recorder HACKETT—I think the request a very reasonable one, and it is ordered accordingly.

COUNSEL—Then it is understood that the defendants will not be required to be found until Monday next?

District Attorney FELLOWS—Meantime they are committed without bail.

COUNSEL—They are committed. We make no application as yet for bail. They are committed—that's all. I intend at the proper time to make a motion to admit them to bail. They are committed to bail merely.

District Attorney FELLOWS—The case stands over until Monday.

COUNSEL—That's all; they are committed in the meantime.

The prisoners were then removed.

that body came into court at ten minutes of eleven o'clock, District Attorney Garvin and General Barlow, counsel for the Committee of Seventy, arrived almost immediately afterwards. After reporting that there was no further business before them for consideration or action they were discharged for the term.

It was understood that the Grand Jury found three indictments against Israel Lazarus and three against another party (not yet arrested) for violating the Registry law.

Judge Garvin took charge of the papers, and not only

REFUSED TO ALLOW THEM TO BE PUBLISHED,

but denied the reporters even a glimpse of them. It is, therefore, reasonable to conclude they are of the highest importance.

District Attorney GARVIN stated that there was a statute which provided that those cases could be tried in the Oyer and Terminer, and he moved that they be sent there for trial.

The Recorder granted the motion, and the Court adjourned till this (Wednesday) morning.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

The Forthcoming Report—Meeting Last Evening—The Assembly List Complete—No "Gouging" or Falsifying Accounts on Tuesday Next.

To-morrow evening this committee are to meet in Cooper Institute to render an account of the stewardship committed to their care two months ago. This voluminous report is in process of compilation, but will not be ready for publication until it is presented to the town meeting on Thursday evening. It will set out with the old familiar tale of fraud and corruption, will recite the circumstances which led to the call for the meeting of September 4, out of which this Committee of Seventy sprung. It will then detail their meetings in the Chamber of Commerce and in their present quarters, the appointment of the several sub-committees and their several proceedings. It will dwell very largely on the important work of the Committee on Elections and the Law and Remedies committees and one or two others of the sub-committees, and will of course applaud themselves, and especially their vice president for putting (virtually) Andrew H. Green into the Comptroller's office. It will also dwell on the importance of John H. Keyser's transfer (?) of $600,000 to the Committee, which transfer now, by the way, seems to have dwindled down to that of against William M. Tweed. The prosecution of this suit, instituted by Mr. Jackson S. Schultz, will also be referred to briefly.

But the crowning glory of the committee's secret sessions will be set forth in the proceedings which resulted in the appointment by the Attorney General of Mr. Charles O'Conor to prosecute the "Ring" peculators. Considerable capital will be made out of this circumstance, and the sub-committee which effected it will of course receive due praise therefor. The nomination of Assemblymen and Senators practically by the committee, though nominally by conventions, will be held up for approval by the meeting, and the hearty support of every honest voter in the city will be asked for the nominees of the committee. The report is designed mainly, if not solely,

TO INFLUENCE THE ELECTIONS

on Tuesday, and will therefore be a campaign document pure and simple. On Monday night the Sub-Committee on Elections had a meeting at No. 938 Broadway, at which several political delegations presented their claims for the approval and endorsement of their Assembly nominees. There was considerable "jawing" between contesting delegations; but the committee reduced order out of chaos and appointed or endorsed eight out of the twenty-one Assemblymen, leaving but two vacancies, which were filled last evening by the committee, which met at six o'clock and continued its session until the meeting of the Seventy at eight P. M. The sub-committee then reported their list complete, as follows:—

COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY—ASSEMBLY NOMINATIONS.

Dist.	Candidate.	Dist.	Candidate.
1	James Healy.	12	Henry E. Crampton.
2	H. G. Leaske.	13	Geo. H. Mackay.
3	Henry F. West.	14	John A. Foley.
4	John Hecker.	15	Fred. Killian.
5	David S. Paige.	16	Nich. Houghton.
6	Isaac Wood.	17	Chas. A. Flammer.
7	Horatio Twombly.	18	Samuel J. Tilden.
8	Conrad Geib.	19	Horatio Seymour.
9	Stephen Pel.	20	Severn D. Moulton.
10	Wm. Kerche[illegible]s.	21	Wm. A. Whitbeck.
11	Colonel Rush C. Hawkins.

The ticket of the democratic reformers differs considerably from that of the Seventy, the two uniting on the nominees in the Second, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth and Twentieth districts. In some of the districts there are, and will be, unless the interests are harmonized before the day of election, four candidates. The Committee on Elections and the District Councils of Political Reform are trying to unite the rival associations upon some known and honest candidate.

At eight P. M. the General Committee met and received the final reports of the several sub-committees, preparatory to their incorporation in the report of the Seventy on Thursday. The committee has received over fifty thousand dollars since its starting. It is not true, however, as reported, that the Committee of Seventy will wind up their business on Thursday evening. Resolutions are to be presented, thanking them for their labors and the results attained, and the places of those who have resigned on the committee will be filled by the meeting. Action was taken last night upon

THE PRELIMINARIES FOR THAT EVENT.

Colonel Stebbins, chairman of the committee, is to preside on that occasion, and addresses will be delivered by William M. Evarts, Charles O'Conor, Samuel J. Tilden and others. The following which had been previously prepared, was referred to but not read before the Committee last evening and was ordered to be sent to the press:—

The Committee appeal to all citizens, of every business, trade and calling, to close their respective places of business on Tuesday, November 7, and to make the election itself their sole business for that day, to the end that a full and fair vote and an honest canvass at the close of the polls may be secured. The occasion, they say, is critical. The responsibility that rests upon us is momentous. The contest is a direct and open one between the great mass of honest citizens who labor for their living and an organized gang of political plunderers, whose only calling is to prey upon the City Treasury and to enrich themselves without labor at the public cost. The Committee deem it of the utmost importance that every honest citizen, whatever his occupation, should be perfectly free on election day to devote himself to the public service. They believe that by this means thousands of votes will be gained to the cause of reform, and that by the numerous and determined presence of honest voters at the polls and during the canvass, repeating, false registering and ballot-box stuffing will be checked, and the Tammany Ring will be restrained from attempting the frauds in the count, which they have threatened. The banks and other public offices which must by law be kept open are also urged to make such arrangements as will enable every employe to deposit his vote.

HENRY G. STEBBINS, Chairman.
WM. F. HAVEMEYER, Vice Chairman.
ROSWELL D. HATCH, Secretary.

THE TAMMANY NOMINATION

for the Supreme Court Judgeship, resigned his position on the Committee of Seventy last night, and his defection was the subject of comment among members. With the close of election day will cease the peculiar duties of the Committee on Elections, and any stray work which they might be required to do will devolve upon the Committee on Remedies.

AROUND THE CITY HALL

Further Demands for Money—The Judiciary and Clerks Whose Salaries Have Been Raised Not to Receive Any Money for Several Months.

The same general apathy which has marked the precincts of the City Hall Park for the past few days was to be observed yesterday in almost all the departments. True there was a little more crowding now and then. Jimmy Fitzgibbons was around large as life and as loud as life, and he insisted on the way he was going to vote to be the true way. The men who did not know him said he was crazy. Perhaps he was. He knew, however, of what he was talking.

AT THE COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

Here several delegations waited on Deputy Comptroller Green. The most important was one of the great manipulators of the reformers—viz., Ben Wood, Jimmy O'Brien, Hen Opp, of Washington Market, and another young gentleman, name unknown, as is often said of men found drowned. Another delegation waited on Mr. Green. They came from the Department of the Chief of the Inspectors of Street Improvements. They came in large force, and were much exercised, not to say excited, at the idea that they were not immediately received and treated with. They became somewhat demonstrative, and it was found necessary to send for the police to preserve order among them. Mr. Green then informed them that he would examine the accounts, and those whose accounts were found correct, as many as could, would be paid to-day, and the others in as rapid order as possible.

ANOTHER HOWL

has been raised on account of salaries for the Judiciary. Yesterday Recorder Hackett applied for his check and learned that he had been overpaid; that the Police Justices and many others whose salaries had been raised by action of the Common Council could not obtain any money for months to come. This, it appears, is done on the ground that the Common Council had raised the salaries contrary to law, and that the Legislature had never legalized the action of the City Fathers. Of course this has caused much wailing and gnashing of teeth. But the Deputy Comptroller holds firm and will not give in one inch. He has already cut off some eighty or more attachés of the Courts and secured a saving of $80,000 to the city and county.

AT THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE

there was a great deal of anxious inquiry as to whether the Sheriff had made any further arrest or levy in the now great cases, but in this regard the situation remained unchanged. Ingersoll is expected to be in town to-day, and will at once be taken possession of by the Sheriff. It is rumored that he has his bail all ready and will "face the music." Woodward and Garvey, it is now thought, have gone to stay, and cannot be caught. The Sheriff has levied on Garvey's property to satisfy a small judgment against him, but some of his friends claim that he is not far off, and will eventually return and satisfy in all particulars. George Miller and his little brother were flying around the Sheriff's office yesterday, apparently much excited, but it was not determined whether it was on their own account or somebody else's.

THE PHILADELPHIA FRAUDS.

Tammany's Rival—Latest Developments in Philadelphia's Latest Sensation—How Public Servants are "Gouged" by Means of City Warrants.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31, 1871.

The latest version of a very old story is the following. It is recommended as a consolation to brokers "who were ruined by the Chicago fire":—

This is the cow with the crumpled horn
That "waxed" Mrs. Leary out in the barn
On Dekoven street, in Chicago;
That kicked the lamp, with one fell blow,
Into the hay, and emitted a glow
That damaged the prospects of brokers.

Yes, this is the fire that reached the bell
In the Court House tower,
That tolled the knell
Of many in power;
And this is the reason so many firms went
"Up the spout" that Chicago bent.

And Yerkes was ruined, "burned out." And, according to Terkes, the "money changing" genius of Philadelphia, the Chicago fire was the only agent that brought him on his knees before creditors. This was the reason he failed to come to time when the City Treasurer called on him for the balance of $478,000 of city warrants then in Yerkes' hands for negotiation, but which, it seems, had already been negotiated and the proceeds thereof lost in stock speculations.

A HOWL FOR VENGEANCE

went up from every hearthstone and every business house in Philadelphia when it was publicly proclaimed that Marcer, the City Treasurer, had let Yerkes have the warrants to negotiate without receiving collateral or security of any kind in return. Marcer is a republican and has held the position but a year or two, and like all his predecessors entrusted all the business of the office to who has been the chief clerk in the City Treasurer's office through several administrations. When former City Treasurers found it convenient to retire from the office by reason of the expiration of their terms and "subs" were incontinently packed off to make room for political retainers of another faith Jones the blest, Jones the good, Jones the honest, was retained, because "he knew how to manage the office." Yes, he did know how to manage the office—no one knew better how it was done—as the sequel has shown, but too plainly the past week. By a time-honored arrangement Jones was allowed to run the machine. It is estimated that the office is worth to the City Treasurer—in addition to the salary, which is $2,500—about $18,000 per year. This much can be safely got out of the vast sums that pass through his hands annually. By taking bigger chances he may double this sum, and at the same time get himself in prison; but eighteen thousand is about all he can get and keep out of prison. All that is required of him in return is to have the supervision of the office, sign warrants and conduct the financial department of the business, which he does through the handy Jones.

Left to his own discretion, it is not to be wondered at that the chief clerk cast his eyes about for a chance to make an honest (?) penny. A morally and lawfully wrong system of paying public servants is in vogue in Philadelphia. Every policeman, office clerk and school teacher in the employ of the city is paid, not in cash, but in city warrants, "I O U's," which he innocently takes to the City Treasury for payment. He is met by the withering reply to his request for cash, "We have no money, sir; there is no appropriation made."

To a man of family, depending on his salary for the support of his family, it will be seen at once that this is rather rough, and he goes out, knowing the warrants to be good, with the intention of getting his warrant discounted. Possibly he goes next door, to Jay Cooke, and is told that "We do no business of the kind," and so he proceeds from Cooke's to B. K. Jamison's, Sailer's Drexel's and other banking houses in Third street, and receives the same answer everywhere, until finally he stumbles into Yerkes'. He has hit the spot at last, and succeeds in getting his money, less

A DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT.

Having found out "how it is done" he comes to Yerkes the next month, as soon as he receives his warrant. In this way Yerkes, through his friend Jones, has driven a very nice business in discounting city warrants, and "dividend day" between Jones and Yerkes must have been a very interesting occasion.

"Now, Yerkes," says Jones "you needn't return these warrants, but we (that's Jones) will let you negotiate them. The act of Assembly will not allow city warrants to be negotiated at less than par. You can get that for them, and whatever you get over par for them, why, we'll give to the poor." It frequently happened within the past year that city warrants went one and one-eighth per cent above par, which little margin on $500,000 footed up a very handsome sum "for the poor." Again, the City Treasurer receives an issue of city warrants which he is instructed to sell for cash. Yerkes hears

tap two squares distant. He appears on the scene and half a million dollars' worth of city warrants are transferred from the City Treasurer's to Yerkes' office to be negotiated. This thing runs along smoothly and successfully for a number of years, but the demon of speculation took possession of Yerkes, and, with "Reading stock on the brain," he rushed into the whirlpool that has swamped so many. All his available funds were soon gobbled by "Reading" or "Pennsylvania" fluctuations, and, the city warrants, being handy and easy to get, were put up as collateral for stock. Yerkes, in technical phrase, was "bulling the market." Stocks depreciated, the Chicago fire sent everything down with a rush, and one morning C. T. Yerkes, Jr., awakened to find himself

BANKRUPT.

The news of Yerkes' failure spread at once, and but a short time elapsed before his office was filled with anxious creditors and newspapers reporters, the HERALD representative among the latter. Yerkes was cool, and very frankly informed me that he had failed and that his affairs were in a very bad condition—how bad he did not know. The result of my interview, a brief telegram, was published in the HERALD at the time.

This failure inspired "the street," "the coast of Barbary," as it is called in slang parlance among Philadelphia brokers, with general distrust. Every one suspected his neighbor, and for two or three days it was feared a general smash would occur. The storm subsided for the time, but broke out anew when the startling rumor was noised abroad that Yerkes had lost $478,000 in city warrants entrusted to him for negotiation. Business was at a standstill for that day at least, and every one discussed the affair with flashing eyes and quivering lips, for a $478,000 "irregularity" is no common one in the Quaker City.

"A COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY"

was appointed by councils to investigate the rumor, and the arrest of Yerkes for embezzlement was the upshot of the investigation. An informal examination was had and Yerkes held in to answer the charge. The investigation proceeded and the absence of the warrants was proved beyond a doubt. Yerkes had a second examination Saturday last, which terminated in the accused being held in eighty thousand dollars bail—fifty thousand on the charge of embezzlement and thirty thousand on the charge of "larceny as bailee;" and thus ends for the time the greatest financial sensation Philadelphia has experienced for years.

Mr. Marcer, the City Treasurer, has not yet been arrested. He should have been arrested first. What has Mr. Yerkes to do with the city? Is he responsible to the city authorities for the city warrants? By no means. Mr. Marcer, the City Treasurer, is the man the city must look to for the warrants. Yerkes was Marcer's agent, nothing more, nothing less, and what reason had the Investigating Committee to order Yerkes' arrest is more than the people of Philadelphia can understand. I do not wish to be understood as trying to shield Yerkes or to condemn Marcer; both are to blame. Marcer is the city's steward; he alone is accountable to the city. Yerkes is accountable to Marcer alone, not the city. The United States government might just as well order the arrest of some broker in Wall street who had been entrusted with some government bonds to sell for a private party, simply because the bonds were issued by the government. I have twice seen Marcer, who is so overcome by the

that it is impossible to get a connected history of the affair at his hands. He could only tell me this afternoon, as the tears rolled down his cheeks and his voice was trembling from emotion, that some one "had just told him that Yerkes was making arrangements to make the warrants good. But," he continued, "it may be only a rumor, and I don't wish to say anything further about it." The city of Philadelphia will lose nothing by the operation, as Marcer's sureties are good, and it is believed that Yerkes will fix the matter rather than go to the Penitentiary, a fate that looks very probable indeed at present, as the men who are investigating the affair are, some of them, on Marcer's bond, and the tenor of public opinion is a general desire for swift punishment for the guilty parties, whoever they may be proved to be.

Philadelphia for some reason is a subject of ridicule from her more progressive neighbors. Instead of adopting measures to stay the shafts of ridicule, her citizens seem determined to afford outsiders every possible opportunity to keep up the volume of fun now aimed at the Quaker City. The system now in vogue at the Treasurer's office is an unhealthy one. There is not a bank clerk in Philadelphia that would think of allowing anything expressing cash value to pass over his employer's desk without receiving collateral therefor; but Jones, a chief clerk in the City Treasurer's office, takes it upon himself to pass over to his friend Yerkes city warrants valued at $478,000, without receiving a cent's worth of collateral as security, and Mr. Marcer, the Treasurer, excuses himself from any criminality by saying to the investigating committee,

"IT IS A CUSTOM OF THE OFFICE."

A custom of the office! Well, the sooner Philadelphia public officers are relieved of the "customs" the better it will be for the taxpayers and the officials themselves.

Another "custom" in vogue in Philadelphia may well be rescinded. I refer to the payment of public servants in city warrants. It is unjust to the recipient, unjust to the taxpayer and unworthy of the second city in America.

Philadelphia is well able to pay all her public officers in cash. It is only necessary to make the estimates, cover the amount needed and raise the money by taxation. It is an outrage that a city of the wealth and importance of Philadelphia should descend to defrauding her servants out of five per cent of their salaries, for it is to all intents and purposes defrauding. It is a fact patent to all that no one can get a warrant cashed without submitting to that discount, and the sooner it is stopped the better.

Marine Disasters.

BARK ELLA MOORE, and BRIG CAIRO, it appears from the following, were not totally destroyed by fire, as before reported by cable:—

ERITH, Oct 16—An explosion occurred yesterday, shortly after 9 o'clock, on board the Ruth, of Halifax, NS, from New York, in the river, with 2000 bbls of petroleum and 100 bbls of rosin, which had anchored alongside of two brigantines, the Cairo, of Londonderry, and the Ella Moore, also laden with petroleum. The Ruth had been obliged by severe weather to keep her hatches battened down during the voyage, and the spirit escaping from the barrels must have become ignited in some manner not at present explained, and the vessel was speedily in flames. The Cairo and the Ella Moore were removed as soon as possible, but not before they had both been severely damaged by the fire—the Cairo having her aft rigging, sails and deckhouses nearly destroyed, and the Ella Moore her sails and masts much damaged. After unsuccessfully endeavoring to scuttle the Ruth, her cable was cut, and she was towed by a government tug to a spot where she could burn herself out without danger to the traffic. Three of her crew were injured by the explosion and were removed to the hospital.

SHIP TEMPLAR, Fessenden, at San Francisco from New York, had a continuation of strong westerly gales and a very heavy sea off Cape Horn; stove bulwarks and forward hatch house, and was driven back on two occasions.

SHIP CORSICA, Havener, at San Francisco from Liverpool, had a continuation of westerly gales off Cape Horn; sprung foremast, foretopgallantmast, lower mizzen topsail yard, mizzen topgallant yard and fore royal yard.

SHIP LUCY S WILLS, Pritchard, at Liverpool Oct 10 from New York, reports experienced terrific weather during the entire passage. Sept 2, had a terrific gale from NE, changing suddenly to NW, making a fearful cross sea; was struck on the port bow by a tremendous heavy sea, starting cathead, laying the ship on her beam ends, and shifting the cargo. Sept 24, lat 49 30, lon 13, had a most terrific hurricane from N and E. Ship having so much list, and not daring to heave to, scudded before it for 300 miles, which put us many miles out of her course. On the 30th, while hove to off the Scilly Islands, in a heavy gale from NW, the sea running mountains high, was struck on the starboard bow by a tremendous sea, which knocked the figurehead on one side and split part of cutwater. The ship making such bad weather, rolling both sides in the water, decided to run for Falmouth and wait for a change of weather. Arrived there the next day. Oct 5, the weather having moderated, sailed again for this port, where we arrived on the 10th inst, having had easterly winds all the way. On Sept 23, Alexander M'Kenzie fell from the foreroyal yard and was drowned.

BARK MELBOURNE, Crosby, at Philadelphia from Troon reports Oct 12, at noon, barometer 29 30; at 12:30 PM stowed foresail and wore ship head to NE, the gale raging with great violence; stowed lower foretopsail, ship now lying to under lower maintopsail and storm main spencer; blowing so hard it was impossible to take in the main lower topsail; 1:30 PM ship heading E by N to ENE and taking the sea aft the beam, making a clean breach over her; at 2 PM, blowing a perfect hurricane, barometer 28 90, starboard mainroyal backstay parted; mainmast head broke off at the eyes of rigging; maintopmast, mizzentopmast, foretopmast head and all attached went to leeward, breaking mainyard near the slings, staving port quarter boat, damaging poop deck and rail, tearing mainmast coating, and sprung mainmast 14 feet from the deck, damaging lower main rigging, foretopmast, topmast backstays, and carrying away all the port head braces; the water was now pouring in the ship by the mast coating being damaged; decks full of water, but succeeded in getting canvas and tarpaulins around, and stopped it going in; ship then had 3 feet water in her; 2:30 PM, barometer 28.70, it blew the hardest, being impossible to stand against the wind; as soon as it could be done we cut away everything that was alongside, and deemed it prudent to clear the wreckage from the ship before dark; at 4 o'clock it moderated; got storm mizzen on her; ship's head came up to SSE, with a fearful sea on, ship rolling and tumbling tremendously. Oct 13, set reefed foresail, foretopmast staysail; blowing a fresh gale, and ship heading SW by WSW, with a sea running beyond description from S round to NW; 2 PM, barometer 30.20, shipped a sea which hove the ship nearly on her beam ends; started cargo between decks to leeward; chain out of lockers, and gave the ship two or three streaks list; one hour after a gentle breeze from NW, and sea smoother; bent the upper foretopsail; the one partly bent blew out of the gaskets; saved two ends of mainyard, with mainsail in damaged condition; cleared up the wreck, and set all possible sail; every sail bent upon the main was newly bent this voyage; from 13th up to 27th constant strong gales from W.

SCHR CHALLENGE (of St George), Bickmore, from Calais for Fall River, before reported at Vineyard Haven 28th full of water, will discharge cargo and go on marine railway for repairs.

SCHR MARIETTA SMITH, Preston, from Elizabethport for Providence, with 171 tons coal, run on the rocks at Hope Island 29th, and is full of water. Steamtug Charlotte & Isabella was to go to her assistance PM of 30th.

SCHR ROSCIUS, Holbrook, from Boston for Hartford, loaded with iron and salt, put into Nantucket morning of 29th ult with sails split and leaking a little. She will repair and proceed.

SCHR S H CADY—Alfred Gann, steward, was knocked overboard from schr S H Cady 26th, in Vineyard Sound, by the jibing over of the fore boom and immediately sank. He was a German, about 60 years of age, and belonged in Jersey City.

SCHR MARY ANNA, Adams, of and from Philadelphia for Bridgeport, Ct, with a cargo of coal collided with schr Diadem in Black Rock harbor night of 29th ult, carrying away her bowsprit.

SCHR MABEL HALL, from New York, was taken in the dry dock at Savannah yesterday (31st). Her stem was twisted, and a leak was found just below the water line; there was no other damage to the vessel. The cargo was badly damaged.

SLOOP THOS RANSOM struck a rock off Eaton's Neck, LI, 30th and sunk in 10 feet of water.

STEAMER WACCAMAW, Potter, at Wilmington, NC, reports on the 20th Oct, discovered an abandoned schooner, loaded with lumber, off Fryingpan Shoals, and as soon as possible went to her assistance. On examination found that she was waterlogged and could not be got off. The vessel is a total loss, and although an endeavor was made to ascertain her name, it failed of success, as her stern had been carried away, supposed by collision with a passing steamer. She appeared to be a New York built schooner, and had probably been floating about with no one on board for several days. No papers or other vestige to aid in her identification were picked up.

FALMOUTH, Oct 16—The Reina Detmers, Mulder, from New York (hides and rosin), arrived her yesterday, is strained, and has lost main boom, sails and bulwarks.

HAVRE, Oct 15—The Lizzie Gillespie (Am), Wilson, arrived at Bordeaux from New York, reports having been obliged during a squall to throw overboard 200 sacks of wheat.

NEWRY, Oct 16—The Solway Queen, Griffith, arrived here from New York, reports that on Oct 1, lat 48 N, lon 15 W, she shipped a heavy sea, which carried away wheel, compass, &c, stove bulwarks and did other damage.

PALERMO, Oct 12—The Mary Lauretta (Am bark), ballast, drove ashore in entering this port, and will become a total loss.

SAIGON, Oct 16, 9:15 AM—The Taeping clipper, from Amoy for New York (tea), was abandoned Sept 22 on Lodd Reef; master and 11 men here; 2 officers and 12 men not yet; H M gunboat Teaser search made (? mates) and cargo.

WRECK—A quantity of flour barrels were fallen in with Oct 22, lat 31 15, lon 71 30, by brig Echo, from Rio Janeiro, at Baltimore, which picked up three marked Quaker City Mills, Philadelphia; two marked L H in blue, and another Henry L Gill, Philadelphia, and LH in red.

Notice to Mariners.

QUARANTINE ON THE SUEZ CANAL.

LONDON, Oct 17, 1871.

Messrs. S L MERCHANT & Co., Transit Agents for the Suez Universal Ship Canal Company, 76 South street, New York:—

DEAR SIRS—Pursuant to instructions we have just received from Messrs. C & A Bazin, of Port Said, we beg again to call your attention to the necessity—now more urgently than ever existing—that the bills of health of steam or sailing ships bound for Egypt, or via the Suez Canal, should be in strict conformity with the general regulations adopted by the Sanitary Board of Egypt, especially under the circumstances which have called forth the circular of which we recently forwarded you a copy.

Messrs Bazin fear that commanders of ships may not be sufficiently alive to the imperative necessity of looking closely to this being done, the question being a most serious one, involving a quarantine of from 10 to 15 days. While they have hitherto by their exertions avoided any serious consequences they wish us to point out to their friends that they cannot undertake, if this attention is not given to the subject, that they will be equally successful in future.

We are, dear sirs, yours respectfully,

CORY BROS & CO.

We beg to annex a textual copy of a circular addressed to the various European Consuls resident in Egypt, under date of the 5th of September, 1871, by Colucci Bey, President of the Sanitary Board of Egypt, which has especial reference to the recent breaking out of the cholera on the eastern coast of the Red Sea and in Europe.

By this circular notice is given that any ships bound westward which may have visited any of the places therein mentioned as infected with cholera will, though bearing clean bills of health, have to undergo, either at Gibel Tor or Elwich, a quarantine or observation, as the case may be; but mail steamers and ships-of-war bearing clean bills of health will be excepted and allowed to pass the canal under quarantine.

But we desire especially to warn steamship owners that the Egyptian sanitary authorities will henceforth be stricter than ever in enforcing the quarantine regulations wherever the ships may come from. No ship should sail without carrying bills of health in perfect order; such documents should state very correctly the number of people composing the crew and passengers on board, and the written declaration which the commander is required to hand to the sanitary authorities before his ship can obtain free pratique should be made to correspond with the bill of health. The great majority of quarantine delays arise from non-observance of this precaution.

Further and special instructions may be had on application to us or to our London representatives, Messrs Cory Bros & Co, 150 Leadenhall street, E C, or Messrs S L Merchant & Co., New York.

C & A BAZIN, Port Said and Suez,
Steamship Agents, coal furnishers, bankers and wharfingers,
Lloyd's Agency.

PORT SAID, Sept 10, 1871.

P S—We are glad to say that since the beginning of this month the Sanitary Board of Egypt, yielding to the numerous representations made by us, has at last consented to allow ships while on transit through the Suez Canal to communicate freely with either Ismailia or the terminal port of the canal without undergoing any sanitary formalities, save getting their bills of health vised at the terminal port or taking out a new one, according to regulations. We hope this concession may prove the forerunner of other improvements in the sanitary regulations of this country.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A.—THE CAUSE AND CURE OF CONSUMPTION.—The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. This derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucus and slime which is clogging those organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out of the liver all the diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid and the appetite poor. In the bowels the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regain health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do to cure consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that while using Schenck's Medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep indoors in cool and damp weather; avoid night air and take outdoor exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the 1st of December I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

MARYLAND JOCKEY CLUB.

Closing Day of the Annual Meeting at the Pimlico Course.

Fine Attendance and Capital Racing.

Dick Jackson Winner of the Hurdle Handicap, Joe Daniels the Central Stakes, Alroy the Consolation Purse, $500, and Conductor the Handicap Purse, $1,200, Two-Mile Heats.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Maryland Jockey Club races terminated to-day most brilliantly. There was a fine attendance and everything passed off satisfactorily. The meeting, it is pleasant to mention, has been a financial success. Four races were run to-day in good time, considering the heavy state of the track, the first being a hurdle race, the second a mile dash for two-year-olds, the third a dash of a mile and a-half by beaten horses, and the fourth a two-mile-heat race.

THE FIRST RACE

was a hurdle handicap for all ages, two miles, over eight hurdles; $400 to the first horse and $100 to the second. There were two acceptors of the weights imposed, these being A. Taylor's chestnut horse Dick Jackson, by Revenue, dam Victoria, six years old, 140 pounds, and R. Shea's bay colt Astronomer, by Asteroid, dam by Sovereign, three years, 113 pounds. There was no betting on this race, as both horses belonged to the same stable, and the public did not care about investing on either of them. Dick Jackson won by half a length. The following is a summary:—

HURDLE HANDICAP—For all ages; two miles, over eight hurdles; $400 to the first and $100 to the second horse.

A. Taylor entered ch. h. Dick Jackson, by Revenue, dam Victoria, 6 years, 140 lbs. 1
Richard Shea entered b. c. Astronomer, by Asteroid, dam by Sovereign, 3 years, 113 lbs. 2

THE RACE.

Astronomer took the lead, and was three lengths in front at the first hurdle, which was stationed 100 yards from the judges' stand. The second hurdle was placed across the middle of the backstretch, and Astronomer led one length when he went over it, both horses making clean jumps. The third hurdle was near the bend into the lower turn, and when Astronomer made that jump he was three lengths in advance of Jackson. The horses ran pretty sharply around the turn and up the homestretch to the fourth hurdle, Astronomer still showing the way, three lengths ahead. As they passed the stand Astronomer was five lengths in front, and he jumped the fifth hurdle about three lengths in advance. Dick Jackson then moved up, and when they came to the sixth hurdle Astronomer led only one length. He kept his advantage over the seventh hurdle; but on the lower turn Jackson took sides with him, and they ran head and head to the eighth hurdle, and jumped it together. A very pretty race to the stand terminated the contest and gave the victory to Dick Jackson by half a lenth. Time, 3:47.

THE SECOND RACE

was for the Central Stakes, for two-year-olds, one mile, $50 entrance, play or pay, the club adding $500. For this there were thirty-one entries, three of which came to the post. These were R. W. Cameron's brown filly Inversnaid, by Leamington, dam Floride; D. McDaniel & Co.'s chestnut colt Joe Daniels, by Australian, dam Dolly Carter, and Governor Bowie's chestnut filly Rebba, by Jack Malone, dam Sally Woodward. Joe Daniels was the favorite over the field at the long odds of 100 to 20. He won in a canter.

CENTRAL STAKES—For two-year-olds, one mile, $50 entrance, play or pay, club to add $500; closed March 1, 1871, with thirty-one nominations.

D. McDaniel & Co. entered ch. c. Joe Daniels, by Australian, dam Dolly Carter........ 1
R. W. Cameron entered br. f. Inversnaid, by Leamington, dam Floride........ 2

THE RACE.

Joe Daniels jumped off with the lead, Inversnaid second, Rebba third. Going around the turn Joe Daniels led two lengths, which advantage he carried to the quarter pole, Rebba being four lengths behind Inversnaid. On the backstretch Inversnaid made an effort to pass Joe; but when she reached his saddle girth the colt was let loose, and he instantly dashed away from her, and was two lengths in front at the half-mile pole. Rebba was outpaced, and was six lengths behind at that point. On the lower turn Inversnaid made another effort to overtake Joe, but she only reached his tail. He galloped strong up the homestretch, pricking his ears all the way, and won the race by four lengths, in 1:54½. Rebba was fifteen lengths behind Inversnaid.

THE THIRD RACE

was the Consolation Purse of $500, for horses of all ages beaten during meeting, one and a half miles. There were five entries, comprising W. R. Babcock's chestnut filly Nellie Ransom, by Jack Malone, dam Vesper Light, three years old; M. H. Sanford's bay colt Preakness, by Lexington, dam Bay Leaf, four years old; Jos. Donahue's chestnut colt Alroy, by Australian, dam Nelly Gray, three years old; Stringfield & Stanhope's bay colt Frogtown, by Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington, three years old, and A. Belmont's chestnut colt By the Sea, by Thormanby, dam Bernice, three years old. Preakness was the favorite, selling in the pools for about as much as all the others together. Alroy won the race in clever style, proving himself a capital racehorse.

CONSOLATION PURSE—$500, for horses of all ages beaten during the meeting; one and a half miles:—

Alroy ran to the front around the lower turn, Frogtown second, By the Sea third, Nellie Ransom fourth, Preakness fifth. They swung into the homestretch in this way, and when passing under the wire at the stand Alroy was half a length ahead of Frogtown, who was two lengths in advance of By the Sea, Nellie Ransom and Preakness side and side. Going around the upper turn Alroy opened a gap of three lengths, Frogtown second, Nellie Ransom third, Preakness fourth, By the Sea fifth. The racing was now very exciting, as all the horses were doing their best. Going down the backstretch, Preakness ran into second place and made a desperate effort to overtake Alroy, but the latter galloped away from him and opened a gap of six lengths around the lower turn, Frogtown third, four lengths further off, By the Sea fourth, and Nellie Ransom fifth. Alroy ran under a pull up the homestretch and won the race by eight lengths, Preakness second, three lengths in front of By the Sea, who was the same distance in advance of Frogtown, Nellie Ransom being pulled up far down the stretch. Time, 3:50½—3:51¾—4:02¾.

THE RACE.

First Heat.—John Merryman took the lead, Midday second, Finesse third, the others in a bunch. When they reached the quarter pole Catina was in front, Finesse second, Midday third, John Merryman fourth, Vanda fifth, Conductor sixth, Allie Hunt seventh and Hanover eighth. They ran in this way down the backstretch, and as they went into the lower turn Catina led four lengths, Midday second, Finesse third, John Merryman fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, Vanda seventh, Hanover eighth. The horses ran sharp up the homestretch, and as they passed the stand Catina led four lengths, Midday second, John Merryman third, Finesse fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, Vanda seventh and Hanover eighth, the last two being a distance behind. There was no change around the turn, and when they passed the half-mile pole Catina still led four lengths, Midday third, two lengths in front of John Merryman, Finesse fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, Conductor sixth, the others out of the race. Going down the backstretch Allie Hunt worked up to third place and Finesse fell back. Catina continued to show the way around the lower turn, Midday second, Allie Hunt third, John Merryman fourth, Conductor fifth. The pace up the homestretch was brisk, Allie Hunt making a gallant run and taking second place. Midday fell back one hundred yards from home, when Conductor passed her and took third place. Catina went under the wire a winner by two lengths, Allie Hunt second, six lengths ahead of Conductor, John Merryman fourth, and Midday just inside the distance stand. Finesse, Vanda and Hanover were distanced. Time of heat, 3:50½.

Second Heat.—Catina cut out the work, John Merryman second, Midday third, Conductor fourth, Allie Hunt fifth. At the quarter pole Catina led two lengths, Merryman second, Midday third, Conductor fourth, Allie Hunt fifth, the last four as close together as they could possibly be. At the half-mile pole Catina still led two lengths, Midday second, one length in front of John Merryman, who was one length ahead of Allie Hunt, the latter being one length in advance of Conductor. They were the same around the lower turn, but coming up the homestretch some changes were made. As they passed under the string at the completion of the first mile, Catina led one length, John Merryman second, Conductor third, Allie Hunt fourth and Midday fifth, one length apart. Going around the upper turn Conductor made play for Catina, and took sides with her on the backstretch; then John Merryman made a dash, and as the two passed the half-mile pole they were head and head. Catina now began to quit and fell back, leaving the affair to be settled by John Merryman and Conductor. They fought a splendid battle all around the lower turn and up the homestretch, but Conductor lasted the longest and won by three lengths. Allie Hunt was third, eight lengths behind John Merryman, Catina fourth and Midday fifth. Time of heat, 3:51¾.

Third Heat.—John Merryman was first away, Conductor second, Midday third, Catina fourth, Allie Hunt fifth. They ran in this way around the turn, but when they passed the quarter pole John Merryman and Conductor had their heads together, two lengths in front of Midday, who was one length in advance of Catina, with Allie Hunt close up. At the half-mile pole John Merryman led half a length, Conductor second, two lengths in front of Allie Hunt, who was a length in advance of Catina and Midday. The horses ran around the lower turn without changing their positions, and as they passed the stand at the completion of the first mile Conductor and John Merryman were yoked, two lengths in front of Allie Hunt, who was one length in advance of Catina, the latter leading Midday four lengths. The struggle around the next mile to the three-quarter pole was between John Merryman and Conductor, but at that point Merryman began to quit and Conductor showed in front. He led nearly a length into the homestretch. Allie Hunt on the lower turn ran well and closed on the two leaders finely, and was only two lengths behind Merryman as he entered the stretch. Whip and spur were applied, to which he responded gamely, passing John Merryman and challenging Conductor for the heat; but Conductor was too much for him and won the heat and race by a length, Allie Hunt second, three lengths ahead of John Merryman, Catina and Midday distanced. Time of the heat, 4:02¾.

And this closed the meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club for the year 1871.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

First Day of the Autumn Meeting—The Gray Gelding Lottery the Winner of the 2:29 Purse.

Seven or eight hundred persons assembled at this favorite course yesterday afternoon, to witness the first day's amusement of the extra autumn meeting, which is to continue to-morrow, Friday and Saturday. The event which called them together was a purse of $1,000 for horses that had never trotted better than 2:29, divided so that the winner should receive $500, the second horse $300 and the third $200. The speculation over the contest was quite spirited, owing to the several rumors that this or the other animal was in the finest possible condition and would make a capital struggle. Entered for the trot were Dan Pfifer's gray gelding Lottery, G. P. Carpenter's bay mare Lady Ross, Alexander Patterson's chestnut gelding Dreadnaught, M. Roden's brown gelding James H. Coleman, George T. Freeman's black mare Lady Wheeler and C. Fredman's black gelding Denmark. The latter was withdrawn. In the pool sales Lottery was a great favorite, selling at the rate of $155 to $70 against the field. The horses were promptly called at the hour named, and the sport conducted in a manner that greatly pleased the spectators.

First Heat.—Lady Ross was on the inside, then Coleman, Dreadnaught, Lottery and Lady Wheeler. There were eight ineffectual attempts before the horses received the word. At last they were sent off, with Coleman in the lead, the others in Indian file. They went to the quarter in thirty-seven seconds, with Lady Ross in the advance, Lottery second, he having done excellent work from the send off, Coleman third, Dreadnaught fourth and Lady Wheeler in the rear, the latter three dancing in the air like Cheyennes on the warpath. The order was about the same at the half mile in 1:14¼, with the exception that Lady Ross led two lengths and Lottery was eight lengths in front of Coleman. Lottery put on a spurt as they went along to the three-quarter pole and entering the stretch was on the wheel of the leader, and Pfifer, finding her easy to beat, set sail in earnest at the drawgate, and, sending Lady Ross to a break, passed under the wire winner of the heat by two lengths. Lady Ross was second, Coleman third, Dreadnaught fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:31¼.

Second Heat.—Lottery was now the favorite, 100 to 20. The start was good. Coleman was first away, but as they went around the turn to the quarter Lady Ross had taken first place, with Lottery second, and Coleman, Dreadnaught and Lady Wheeler as named. They passed the quarter in thirty-eight seconds, and Lottery, making the pace hot for Ross, went to the front, and at the half mile, in 1:15, had half a length the best of it. Dreadnaught was third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler last. As they went along to the three-quarter pole Lottery opened the gap to two lengths, with Lady Ross, Lady Wheeler and Coleman dancing in the air. They could not get near the gray gelding, and he came home an easy winner of the heat by three lengths, Ross second, Dreadnaught third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:32¾.

Third Heat.—There were no pools sold. Four attempts were made ere they got away and then quite unevenly. Lottery worked himself to the front, and at the quarter, in thirty-seven seconds, was half a length in advance, Lady Ross second, Dreadnaught third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler last. Down the backstretch Lottery put on more steam and at the half mile, in 1:15, was a length in advance, and the others as named. From this point all interest in Lottery being the winner was lost in the struggle for second place. Dreadnaught came with a rush on the way to the three-quarter pole, passing Ross on the ascending ground, and at the head of the stretch was two lengths in advance of her. Lottery was now leading six lengths and came home on a steady trot, winner of the heat and race by four lengths. At the drawgate Lady Ross went all to pieces and Dreadnaught rushed under the wire second, Ross third, Coleman fourth and Lady Wheeler fifth. Time, 2:30. The first prize was awarded to Lottery, the second to Lady Ross and the third to Dreadnaught.

SMALLPOX IN NEWARK.

A Priest Stricken with It—Law-Breaking Physicians—The Authorities After them.

The demon smallpox has again put in an appearance in Newark, and this time in no less a place than the episcopal residence adjacent to St. Patrick's Roman Catholic cathedral. The victim is Rev. Father A. M. Sleets, one of the lately ordained clergymen. It seems that in the pursuance of his sacred calling he visited a poor person's house on the Hill, one of whose family was afflicted with the disease, and there caught it. One physician, Dr. James Elliot, attended both cases and failed to report either, as required by city ordinance under a penalty of $50 each. Suits to recover this amount in both cases have been commenced against the doctor. He was greatly mortified on discovering that the Health Inspector had discovered the case of Father Sleets. Rev. Father Doane was surprised that the case was not reported, and at once said that the clergy ought to set the people an example, and not otherwise, in obeying the law by placing on the house the usual notice.

Suit has also been brought against Dr. William O'Gorman for remissness in reporting a case in Prospect street. This conduct of medical men in persistently failing to comply with the law has considerably aroused public indignation, and should the disease spread this indignation would not be mollified much, of course.

THE FRIENDS OF POOR LO.

What the Indian Peace Commissioners Think of the Red Men.

The Noble Savage Does Not Want to Fight, but Would Like to Eat—No Necessity for War—The Cherokees and the Broadbrims—Friend Lang on the Situation.

The Indian Peace Commissioners, who are the special providence of Poor Lo, assembled at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday. A brace of HERALD reporters called upon the distinguished gentlemen in the afternoon and talked with them on the present aspect of Indian affairs. Mr. Vincent Collyer, who is a meek young man and fanatically reticent, told what he knew about Indian farming, and Mr. John D. Lang, a Friend, discoursed on the Cherokees and Choctaws. The latter was very communicative—for a Commissioner. The conversation had with Mr. Lang was interesting, and was as follows:—

REPORTER—I understand you are making your report of the condition of the Indians, Mr. Lang?

FRIEND LANG—Yes, we will have it ready to-night. It will show that President Grant's policy in dealing with the Indians has been quite successful. There is no occasion whatever for levying

WAR ON THE RED MEN.

Of course there are a great many people interested in getting up a war—the Indian Ring, for example. It is the business of the contractors to foment disturbances. It has been our business to prevent them from indulging in these wickednesses. Thee must know that the policy of the border people is shoot, shoot, all the time. They think no more of killing an Indian than a dog or a deer. Now we believe that it is better to conciliate the Indians than to murder them.

REPORTER—But a number of people in Arizona believe with General Crook that the only way to conciliate our mutual friend Lo is to kill him.

FRIEND LANG—No doubt. It always was the policy of the army hangers-on to make perpetual war on the tribes. They are trying the same game now, but they won't succeed.

REPORTER—But the Indians are said to be given to throat-cutting, scalping and making burnt offerings to the Great Spirit of luckless whites?

FRIEND LANG—The Indian is merciless when wronged. Most people are savage when outraged; but I am certain to war at all times. Of course there are some in the mountains very hard to control, their chiefs having but little influence over them, but even these can be reclaimed.

REPORTER—Then instead of running them down with cavalry, you would awe them into submission with Quaker guns?

FRIEND LANG—There is no occasion whatever to use force with the Indians. I travelled 20,000 miles with them last year and 15,000 this year, and I am quite satisfied that Lo, as thou named him, likes fighting as little as most men. He demands the right to live, and thou wilt admit, I think, that that is but reasonable. The Indians, as a whole, are a sorry set; ill clothed and ill fed. What they want is food and shelter and protection against lawless whites.

REPORTER—Then, Mr. Lang, you think that the Indian difficulty may be summed up in a sentence?

FRIEND LANG—Thee intended to say that——

REPORTER—Bellies and blankets summed up the entire matter.

FRIEND LANG—Thee comprehends the situation. People who are properly fed and clothed don't care to fight much; but starving wretches have sometimes

NO OTHER RESOURCE THAN MARAUDING.

It will cost several millions of dollars every year to fight the Indians. A few thousand dollars judiciously expended will suffice to feed them. A few years of a peace policy will, I think, settle the Indian difficulty.

REPORTER—So, then, it would seem that Lo has been misrepresented. He doesn't hanker after scalps any more?

FRIEND LANG—It would be rash to assert that the Indian nature can be changed at once; but thee is aware that time and patience will work wonders. Consider the case of the Cherokees. Thee is doubtless aware that after our revolutionary war the Cherokees were placed in North Carolina on a reservation. Little provision was made for their protection, and they were ultimately swindled out of their lands. The history of that unpleasant matter thou knowest. Well, the Cherokees in North Carolina were in a most wretched condition. I went down to them and selected the most wretched and transported them to the Cherokee Nation. They were received with open arms and advantageously placed. They have and will prosper. They are law-abiding and easy to govern.

THE FINEST COUNTRY IN THE WORLD,

REPORTER—Semi-civilized?

FRIEND LANG—No, the North Carolina men are not very civilized; those in the Nation are. The latter have a State House, public offices, schools, and so forth, and are most eager to advance their material interests and become good citizens. We have made arrangements for the transportation of all the North Carolina Cherokees out West as soon as possible. They will prove good and useful citizens, I have no doubt. Certainly they will have all they want in location and climate. And what has been done with the Cherokees can be accomplished with the other tribes. A merciful policy, friend, is the only policy worth following; a murderous policy is always a mistaken policy.

Mr. Vincent Collyer, who was present during the above conversation, vehemently nodded his approval of Friend Lang's remarks.

ALL SAINTS' DAY.

This is All Saints' Day, a festival during which the saints in general, and especially those for whose veneration no particular day has been set apart, are honored. Its observance is common to both the Roman and Anglican churches. It was established in the year 610, at the time of the conversion of the Pantheon at Rome into a Christian temple. This edifice, the date of whose erection is a cause of contention among antiquarians—some arguing from the inscription on its portico that it was built by Agrippa during the reign of Augustus, and others averring that the portico was alone at that time constructed, and that the body of the building was much more ancient—is still in a state of perfect preservation. The dedication of it by the Romans to all the gods and the assignment to each of a place in it were probably the causes, through the association of ideas, of the institution of the present festival. Pope Boniface IV., having consecrated the temple to the service of God under the protection of the Virgin and the martyrs, proclaimed "because we cannot particularly commemorate every one of those saints in whom God's graces have been eminent, for that would be too heavy a burden, and because, in those particular feasts which we do celebrate, we may justly be thought to have omitted some of our duty through infirmity or negligence; therefore the holy Church appoints this day in commemoration of the saints in general." Its celebration was at first upon the 1st of May, but was altered to the present date. In this country the celebration is no more than the performance of a high mass; but in Southern Europe and South America the day is kept as a public holiday.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

A Circus Chariot Toppled Over a Precipice—Two Men Killed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Oct. 31, 1871.

A terrible accident occurred in Columbia county yesterday morning, between Ham's Corners and Copake, by which two men lost their lives. The accident occurred on what is known as "Williams' Hill," a steep declivity. Just before daylight the band wagon, or chariot, attached to Howe's European Circus left Ham's Corners for Millerton, drawn by eight horses, which were driven by an experienced driver, but who did not know the road. The morning being dark he came upon the hill before he was aware of the fact. He attempted to gather up his reins and put on his brake, but he was not quick enough. His eight-in-hand got the start of him and dashed down the hill at frightful speed, when suddenly one of the wheel horses fell. He, with the chariot, was dragged to the side of the road by his now frantic mates, where the chariot upset and tumbled down a precipice. On top were five musicians, the rest having gone to Millerton by rail. The chariot made two complete somersets, the first throwing the musicians off, and, in turning the second, fell on two of them, killing them instantly. The other three and the driver escaped as if by a miracle. The names of the killed are J. A. Emlby, Jr., aged twenty years, a single man, and a native of Liverpool, and Wem Felzer, a Swiss, who leaves a wife and child behind. They were both steady, reliable men, and much esteemed by all of the company. Their remains were taken to Millerton and their friends and relatives notified of the sad occurrence by telegraph. The company were to give only one more exhibition before they went into winter quarters.

THE SCHOONER HORTON CASE.

TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Globe telegraphs that the policy of the government is not to demand the restitution of the schooner Horton, as she has not been condemned by the courts. The point of the argument seems to be that as the vessel has been taken possession of by the original owners and carried out of the jurisdiction of the Courts of the Dominion there is no case.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Several communications making donations to the Park Museum collection were received, and, having been acknowledged, were ordered on file.

From William H. Smith, Edwin Dobbs and others, requesting a change of grade on 152d street, between the Boulevard and Tenth avenue, which was referred to the Executive Committee to examine and report.

From Mr. Calvin T. Hulburt, Superintendent of United States Post Office and Court House building, requesting permission to depress the pavement on the southwest corner of Park row and New Park street, and to pave the streetway of Park row, and to construct a new receiving basin, to connect with the sewer, at the government expense, which was referred to the Treasurer, with power.

From Frederic De Peyster, calling attention to two stone balls of historic interest in the war with Tripoli and removed from the south gate of City Hall Park, stating that they were presented by Captain Nicholson, United States Navy, and desiring that they be preserved and placed in a conspicuous position. A resolution was adopted, giving permission for the erection on Printing House Square of a statue of Benjamin Franklin, the location and space being referred to the Treasurer, with power.

Resolutions were adopted calling upon the towns of Yonkers, West Farms and Westchester for moneys necessary to be raised in said towns respectively, for carrying on the surveys and mapping therein.

The Treasurer reported that work had been discontinued on the draw of Macomb's Dam Bridge, in consequence of the funds for that purpose being exhausted.

A report was received from the Auditing Committee recommending the payment of bills and claims for tools, materials, &c., furnished, which was approved.

At the request of the Trustees of the American Museum of Natural History the Board designated Monday and Tuesday of each week to be reserved for the said trustees, persons contributing or desiring to contribute to the Museum, those wishing to examine the Museum specimens for the purpose of special study, the teachers and pupils of public schools, and the inmates of charitable and benevolent institutions in the city. The admission on those days to be by tickets issued by said trustees, and to be obtained at the Department of Public Parks or of the Secretary of the Museum.

On motion the Board adjourned.

THE HOBOKEN MURDER.

Continuation of the Trial of Moses Henry for the Murder of Thomas McMahon.

The trial of Moses Henry for the murder of Thomas McMahon, at Hoboken, was resumed yesterday at Jersey City, before Judge Bedle.

The first witness called was Mrs. Moore, who testified as follows:—On the night of October 14 last I was sitting at my window, at No. 36 Adams street; the hour was about eleven and a half; within five minutes after I had gone there I saw Mr. McMahon on the sidewalk; saw no one else at that time; McMahon went on the stoop before Connor's store and said he was in there; an officer sent him into the house; he came right out again and leaned back against a coal box before Connor's store; two young men went into Connor's store, at McMahon's invitation, to get a drink; McMahon came right out; whether put out or not I don't know; he said that his money was all gone, speaking to himself; he then went to his own house, and soon came out again with a pipe in his mouth, without his coat; he sat on the stoop; Gillingham came out of Connor's store and sat by his side; Moses came out soon afterwards and stood for a few minutes leaning against a post before the store; he was eating; then he went for McMahon, who sat flat on the stoop; I saw Moses Henry pull him down on to the sidewalk; McMahon made no show of fight, but called for the police; when an officer came Moses ran up stairs into his father's room; McMahon's mouth was bleeding when the officer picked him up; they sent him into the house; ten minutes afterwards I heard some one going down stairs again, shut the front door and then walked back through the hall; then I heard a moan, then a cry of murder was raised, and then McMahon hallooed, "Henry, don't kill me!" this noise came from the back yard; when I heard these noises I went to the head of the stairs; all was quiet then; I cried "Murder!" and assistance came; I did not go into the yard; I have had some trouble with Henry's father, and had him arrested last Saturday for abusing me; his sons had had him arrested; McMahon once threatened to kill the old man Henry for bringing a bottle of wine to treat his wife.

Dr. Pendergast, the County Physician, next sworn—Testified that he had made a post-mortem examination of the remains of the deceased; what he discovered led him to the conclusion that the deceased had died in consequence of internal hemorrhage, produced by stab wounds; found two wounds one to the left of and three inches above the navel, went upwards and inwards, penetrating the covering of the intestines; this wound was the fatal one; it was necessarily fatal; his second wound was between the tenth and eleventh ribs, six inches left of spine; found in the abdomen cavity one-half to a whole gallon of blood, and clots of blood near the peritoneum; all the other organs were healthy.

The trial will be resumed this morning.

ANOTHER HOBOKEN SQUABBLE.

The Common Council Orders the Rails of the Track to Union Hill To Be Torn Up.

At the meeting of the Common Council last evening a resolution was passed over the Mayor's veto imperatively ordering Mr. J. C. O'Sullivan, Street Commissioner, to tear up the rails of the North Hudson County Railroad Company, anywhere between the ferry and Union Hill. By this time the commissioner will be at work in Washington street destroying the road, under the protection of the police authorities. The cause of the passage of the resolution is the non-payment of license by the company for the right of way through the city. The contest between the company and the corporation has been of long standing. Much excitement prevailed after the adoption of the resolution, inasmuch as traffic may be considerably impeded between Hoboken and the Hill. The difficulty will probably be settled by the issuance of an injunction against the pulling up of the rails.

CUSTOMS SEIZURES IN VERMONT.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 31, 1871.

Eighteen hundred sheep and six horses, brought through from Canada by Rugg & McFarland, were seized last night at White River Junction by Customs Officer Goff, of St. Albans, for undervaluation. The train on which they were loaded had backed over from West Lebanon and was about to start. Twelve car loads were seized at Roxbury. The work was done so quickly and quietly that none but the owners and railroad men are aware of it.

THE COURTS.

Important Counterfeiting Case—Alleged Counterfeiting of Gold Coin—Violations of the Internal Revenue Law—Question of Receivership—Interesting Will Suit—The Bonard Will Case.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oct 31, 1871.

No. 184. Sharp et al vs. Hammond et al.—Appeal from the Southern District of New York.—The libellants, owners of the schooner Brothers, brought suit per sonsen against the respondents, owners of the schooner R. H. Huntly, to recover damages suffered by the former in a collision with the latter off the Jersey shore in February, 1860. The libel alleged unskilfulness and neglect in the management of the Huntly as the cause of the collision. The captain of the Huntly was on board and had charge of her at the time of the collision, and he was part owner. The Court found that the captain had the exclusive possession and control of the Huntly, and that he manned, victualled and navigated her at his own expense, and held that such being the case he must be deemed a charterer within the meaning of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, which exempts the owner from personal liability and leaves the injured party to seek his remedy against the colliding vessel and those who carelessly and unskilfully handled her. As he was sued merely as part owner, and not as charterer, wrong-doer or an active cause of the disaster, the statute was held to be a bar to the suit and the libel was dismissed. It is here insisted that the evidence failed to show that the vessel was so much under the exclusive control of the captain as to relieve the general owners from their liability; but that if so, then under the local law of New York, under such an arrangement, the general owners were responsible for the engagement and misfeasances of the master; so under the general Admiralty law it the navigators were at fault. D. McMahon for appellants; R. H. Hunt for appellees.

No. 180. Woodsworth vs Warren—Error to the Circuit Court for the Northern District of Illinois.—This was an action of covenant on a lease brought by Woodsworth vs. Warren and another, who was not served. The defence of Warren was that he never accepted the lease. Another jury, by their verdict, found such to be the fact. This is the only question in the case as presented here, where it is contended by the plaintiff in error that the weight of evidence was the other way. The defendant in error submits that the Court very rarely disturbs the verdict of a jury where there is evidence to support, as it is insisted is the case here. Case submitted on the printed points. John Von Arman for plaintiff in error; Elliot Antony for defendant.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Alleged Counterfeiting—Charge Against Joshua D. Minor.

Before Commissioner Davenport.

The United States vs. Joshua D. Minor.—The defendant is charged with having counterfeit plates of national bank notes in his possession. The prosecution of this case has excited much interest, owing to the fact that the defendant is a prominent contractor under the city government, and, therefore, supposed to possess considerable social and political influence. Yesterday the examination was proceeded with before Commissioner Davenport. The office, though small, was pretty well filled with the friends of the accused, who was represented by his counsel, Mr. Charles S. Spencer, and Mr. Benjamin K. Phelps, General Davies, Assistant United States District Attorney, appeared on behalf of the government. Colonel Whitley, Chief of the Secret Service Department, and a number of his detectives were closely watching the proceedings. The first witness produced yesterday for the prosecution was an officer of the Secret Service. He deposed that on the evening of the 25th of October he, with other officers of the Secret Service, went in a carriage to the neighborhood of Sixty-seventh street and Ninth avenue for the purpose of arresting Minor and others, who were alleged to have been concerned with him, in the imputed crime of counterfeiting; they left the carriage some blocks off from Sixty-seventh street and walked up to the latter locality, where they stationed themselves around for the purpose of watching such developments of the affair as might transpire. The testimony of the witness at this point was to the effect that he saw Minor on this occasion, and that he also saw a man named Thomas Ballard, who is alleged to be the printer of counterfeit notes, approach Minor and hand him a package. Minor took the package, and, as the witness believes, was about to start with it across the street for the purpose of handing it to a man named Harry Cole, who was stationed at the opposite side of the way; but before he could carry out his supposed purpose he was laid hold of by the officer. Just at that moment, according to the testimony, some plates dropped from the hands of Minor. Two of them turned out to be counterfeits of national bank notes—one of the Ninth National Bank, of this city ($2), and the other of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, of Poughkeepsie ($10). There was some confusion at the time and a "muss" between the officers and the accused.

WILLIAM KENNOCK,

The witness was cross-examined at considerable length with much minuteness by counsel for the defence, with him had occupied at [illegible] and those as to the opportunities he had for seeing all that transpired. He adhered to his original statement.

Another officer of the

testified as to the manner in which the arrest had been effected. He testified, on cross-examination, that he came down some distance from Sixty-seventh street, and saw Harry Cole standing on the opposite side of the street, under a lamp, with an umbrella over his head; he was alone; witness could not see Cole's face; he could only tell him from his form and shape; Cole had not come down from Sixty-seventh street more than three or four blocks when witness saw him step under the lamp; witness had not been there since, and when he saw Cole under the lamp he (witness) was on the extreme west of the street; was on the other side of the avenue when Cole stopped; he stopped in the street opposite a pile of dirt; Minor came up, but was not in sight when witness stopped.

BAIL IN ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS DEMANDED.

Counsel for defendant said:—This is a case that will be defended, and, I believe, successfully. Mr. Minor may forfeit a contract for $40,000 if he is not admitted to bail, and the bail ought not to be oppressive. There has been a lot of sensation about this thing and a great deal of humbug in it so far as Mr. Minor is concerned.

The COMMISSIONER—The government requires $100,000 bail in all these cases, and in the present case, as advised, I am not going to make it very much less.

Counsel said that he would bring the question of bail before the Judge with a view to reduce it to $75,000 or $50,000. He guaranteed that there would be reasonable bail.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned to Thursday (to-morrow).

Indictments Against Minor.

Yesterday the Grand Jury filed in the United States Circuit Court several indictments against Minor, charging him with having been engaged in the printing of counterfeit money, in the engraving of plates for the printing of the same and with having had in his possession counterfeit money and with uttering the same. He will be called upon to plead to-day.

Alleged Counterfeiters of Gold Coin.

Before Commissioner Shields.

The United States vs. Moralez, Montenegro, et al.—The defendants are charged with having counterfeited gold coin of the United States of the denomination of $20. The leading facts of the case have appeared already in the HERALD. The evidence offered yesterday was principally that of Lewis Delemo, a detective in the Secret Service Department. His statement was that on the 24th of October he was introduced, at 76 East Fourth street, to Moralez, who, it was alleged, wanted some person who would give $1,000 for making $20 United States gold coin. Witness said to Moralez that before he could do anything he wanted to see something for making the coin, whereupon Moralez showed him some pieces of a die. Witness then said he thought he could advance the money. The officer met the defendants next day, and then, and upon subsequent occasions, they entered into arrangements for the purchase of a press and materials for the production of the coin alluded to. According to the testimony Moralez had intimated to the detective, whose character he did not, of course, then know, that he did not like to keep the dies about him, so he handed them over to Delemo, and on a subsequent occasion, in Broadway, he met Moralez, who had more dies in his handkerchief. He was thereupon arrested.

Some further testimony was taken, after which the examination was adjourned to the 2d of November.

Charge Against a Cigar Manufacturer.

The United States vs. Moses Halloran.—The defendant, who does business in Rivington street, was held in $500 bail for examination on a charge of not having given bonds for the purpose of enabling him to conduct the business of a cigar manufacturer.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Who is the Receiver?—A Question of Time.

Before Judge Cardozo.

Elisha Brooks vs. The Astor Fire Insurance Company, and Albert C. Bage vs. The Same.—On the 13th inst. Elisha Brooks commenced an injunction suit against the Astor Fire Insurance Company, and had James Yearrance, Secretary, appointed receiver. The order was made on the 28th, and the receiver's bond given to Judge Brady for approval at twenty minutes to nine on the 30th, and retained by him until ten o'clock of that day, when it was handed to Mr. Beamish, the Clerk, to be filed.

On the morning of the same day Albert C. Bage commenced a similar suit, had Francis M. Bixby appointed receiver, and entered the order and had it approved and filed with the clerk at half-past nine in the morning.

Then arose the question as to who had the priority and which receiver was entitled to the charge of the company's affairs, one party having commenced the suit first by two days, and the other having filed the receiver's bonds in advance by half an hour. The matter came up before Judge Cardozo for settlement, the point being raised that by placing the bond with Judge Brady it was filed.

OPINION OF JUDGE CARDOZO.

On this motion the only question to be determined is, who is the receiver? That depends upon the question who perfected the title as receiver first. It is perfectly plain that the receiver appointed in this action did. The order in the action of Brooks against these defendants, made on the 13th of October, provided that the receiver before entering upon his duties should execute a bond and file it with the Clerk of the City and County of New York. It is too plain to talk about, that leaving a bond with a judge is not filing it with the clerk. The importance of the bond being actually filed is too obvious to permit such a strained construction as to deem the requirement satisfied by anything except an actual filing in the clerk's office. That is what is meant by filing and nothing else will answer. The plaintiff in this case having proceeded regularly, the receiver appointed in this suit having perfected his appointment by filing his bond before the gentleman designated in the order in Brooks' suit is clearly first in point of time and is entitled to possession. I cannot say if the application were an original one to appoint a receiver, that the fact that the directors, or even a large portion of the stockholders, want an officer of the insolvent company, should have much weight. I have heretofore written an opinion showing that, in my judgment, the officers of any insurance company ought not, no matter how reputable, to be appointed receiver of it. Some disinterested person, who will represent and care for the interests of creditors and of all the stockholders, not only those who seek his appointment, but those who do not join in the request, should, in my judgment, always be selected. But that point is not material here. Motion granted, declaring Bixby receiver.

Fordham Property in Litigation—Decision.

Before Judge Brady.

Francis McMulkin and Charles Hoey, Executors of Thomas Kerr, vs. Silas C. Bates.—"If the trust to sell the Fordham property," thus the Judge concludes an elaborate opinion in this case, "was created for any legal purpose or separable from the prohibited design it could be maintained; but it is not. The object of the trust is not separable from the trust itself, and is, therefore, a part of it, mingled with it, inseparable from it, and void."

Decision.

By Judge Ingraham.

Susan T. Rice, Administratrix, vs. William B. Hollister et al.—The motion is denied, with leave to plaintiff to renew the motion within twenty days, and the inquisition to be continued for that time.

Special Notice.

All notes of issue for the November Special Term, motion calendar, must be filed on or before Thursday, November 2, 1871, at three P. M.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

One of Life's Hidden Mysteries.

Before Judge Jones.

Eliza S. Donnell vs. Ezekiel Donnell.—This is one of those peculiar cases that not unfrequently find their way into court, underlying which are life mysteries which otherwise would have remained hidden. Many years ago there lived in New Jersey two bachelor brothers, James and Ezekiel Donnell. They had accumulated wealth and were tenderly attached to each other. In 1858 the brother James went to Europe, and before leaving made a will giving his property to Ezekiel—a timely precaution to meet the contingency of his death during the trip. But James did not die then, but lived on till 1869, when he died. Meantime the brother Ezekiel hung on to the will. But in 1859 James formed the acquaintance of a young lady, the plaintiff. They were not married, but agreed to live together as man and wife; and while thus living together had three children, two of whom are still living. She now comes in as the alleged wife of James, and seeks to recover her portion of the property he left, and which the brother Ezekiel still retains under the will referred to. Her story is that they boarded at various places as man and wife; that he always introduced her to his friends as his wife, and upon this she claims to have been his wife as fully and legally as though they had gone through the formality of a marriage ceremony. On the other hand Ezekiel presents her as having been the mistress of his brother and in no way entitled to call herself his wife. The property involved is said to be about one hundred thousand dollars. The case came up on a motion to have it placed on the calendar for trial at an early day. After a brief argument the case was adjourned until next Monday.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

The Metempsychosian Miser—A French Priest's Opinion of Transmigration—Louis Bonard's Peculiarities.

The Bonard will case came up for further hearing before Surrogate Hutchings at noon yesterday. At the hour appointed the numerous counsel engaged in the case were present. A recess, however, was taken to await the arrival of a witness called by Mr. Gerry. At twenty minutes past one P. M. Rev. Father Aubril the witness in question, arrived, and the case proceeded.

took the stand and testified as [illegible] priest of the Roman Catholic Church; have been for thirty years; am now attached to the Church of St. Vincent de Paul; attended lately at the hospital of St. Vincent; recollect Mr. Bonard; cannot say what date; saw him there last winter; he was friendly and polite to me; expressed no aversion on account of my being a priest; I administered the sacrament to him before his death, also extreme unction; a man believing in metempsychosis is not a Catholic. In reply to a question of Mr. Coudert the witness stated he did not think a man believing in transmigration of souls was rational.

was the next witness called. He stated that he was a physician; has been in practice for twelve years; was a surgeon for seven years in the army; was connected with New York Hospital, and for the last year and a half had been attached to St. Vincent's Hospital; on the 3d of last February Louis Bonard was admitted there; attended him until death (the record of his case was introduced and objected to by Mr. Coudert); I recognize the record as substantially the treatment pursued.

Considerable argument took place among counsel at this point in regard to the evidence to be admitted.

The witness went on to say that the nature of Mr. Bonard's disease required a physical diagnosis, and explained the manner of making it; if had been on his back I would probably have seen it; he suffered from difficulty of breathing; there was no indication of his having been a drinking man; the immediate cause of his death was exhaustion; I did not observe any cloudiness of his intellect.

In reply to Mr. Coudert the witness testified that Bonard was a very sick man when admitted; I had but little conversation with him; he was very weak.

A question of Mr. Boyd's was overruled on account of Mr. Porter's absence.

The Court at this point adjourned the case until November 3, at twelve o'clock.

A FRACTURED SKULL.

Struck with a Belaying Pin—Brutality on Shipboard.

Coroner Young yesterday morning received information that Sebastian Junio, employed as cook on board the bark Lucy Francis, recently arrived from Matanzas, was lying in Bellevue Hospital in a delirious condition, caused by a compound fracture of the skull, the result of a blow on the head with a belaying pin in the hands of a man named Ray, mate of the Lucy Francis. The violence, it is alleged, was inflicted at Quarantine about a week ago, and subsequently Junio came up to the city and went to his residence, 23 Allen street. On Monday evening Junio, while in a deranged state of mind, beat his wife most terribly, his arrest being the result. The prisoner, on being examined by a surgeon, was found to have a fracture of the skull, and by recommendation was sent to the hospital. In case of his ability to make an intelligent statement it will be taken by Coroner Young. In the meantime a warrant has been issued for Ray's arrest. It is further stated that the mate in June or July last struck Junio on the head while the vessel was in Marseilles, France.

GENERAL SHERMAN is going to Europe on the United States steamer Wabash next week. He will be a grand old lion among the Moltkes and MacMahons.

SIXTY MILES of streets in Chicago burned and laid waste tell the tale of that city's desolation more fully than all the glowing comments in the world.

RADICAL CONSPIRATORS and explosive bombs and firearms concealed in Barcelona must tend to render Amadeus uneasy in Madrid. The Spanish officers blame the members of the International. The conspiracy may be national notwithstanding.

THE BONAPARTIST OFFICERS serving in the French army are actively engaged in shaping an expression of military sympathy for the fallen Emperor. An address, signed by those who served under the empire—men and commanders—will be forwarded to Chiselhurst. The free traders of England will not object to its presentation.

THE POLITICAL FIGHT IN JERSEY waxes warm. The Democratic State Central Committee have issued their last address, urging the party to renewed action in the approaching election. The address is not of the most cheerful character, and is about the best specimen of buncombe that has been inflicted upon the public during the canvass.

A SQUARE DEFINITION.—Without distinction of party, Mr. Evarts defines our present city and State contest to be a contest "in defence of the property and earnings of the great mass of our people against the rapine and plunder of a greedy combination of rogues in office," which is a very brief statement of the case for a long-winded lawyer.

AN IMPORTANT CABINET MEETING was held yesterday, at which the Ku Klux in the South and the Mormons in Utah were discussed. It was determined to leave the Ku Klux prisoners to the discretion of Attorney General Akerman, and to send no more troops to Salt Lake unless things looked more threatening than at present.

A MODEL PARSON.—Parson Brownlow, who says, God willing, he will stick to his place in the United States Senate to the end of his term, if he has to be carried in and out of the Senate Chamber, because, as long as he can, he is bound to keep out Andy Johnson. The Parson's one great object in life is to disappoint Johnson.

The British Press on the Financial Consequences of the Chicago Fire.

We have the comments of the British press, some of which were published in our issue of Monday, on the probable financial consequences of the Chicago fire. On the whole they do not express much fear, and take a hopeful view of the ability of the American people to overcome soon the great disaster. One journal, remarkable for its sound financial reasoning, estimates the total loss, supposing there be no material salvage from the fire, between a hundred millions and a hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Others make even a larger estimate. The impression of such a heavy loss was given, no doubt, by the first exaggerated estimates published in many of the newspapers on this side the Atlantic. We have said all along, after having made the most careful investigation and comparison of the value of the property destroyed with the total value of all the property in Chicago, that the loss, probably, would be under a hundred millions. At the best it is a fearful destruction of property and entails serious consequences.

At first the shock was seriously felt in the money and stock markets of this country, particularly in New York, which is the heart of the commercial and financial system of the American Continent. There was considerable alarm, and stocks fell rapidly. There was, in fact, for a short time some fear of a crisis. But as the facts became known and the worst realized capitalists, stock operators, banks, insurance companies and business men generally began to measure the resources at hand with the disaster, and found there was no cause for a general revulsion. Beyond the inevitable suspension of a few insurance companies and a few failures commercial and financial affairs moved on as usual. Stocks began to recover again from the first surprise, and gold, which rose only two per cent or so, has declined to the average market price previous to the fire. Our British contemporaries, in their usual cautious way, sounded a note of warning to be prepared for the worst. It was a question, they said, how far New York would be affected by the losses and the failure of Chicago to pay this city for goods received, and, again, how far Manchester, Leeds, Lyons and other manufacturing towns in Europe might be affected by the difficulties here. They apprehended a drain upon England and an unusual overflow of securities to that country to meet such difficulties. But we suppose there will be a better feeling in England as capitalists and manufacturers there learn how temporary and slight the effect has been here. By this time, no doubt, the telegraph has diffused information of the state of things here and allayed apprehension. Happily this mighty agent of our modern civilization arrests financial disasters, equalizes the burdens of any catastrophe and brings speedily aid from one commercial community to another.

The London Times in its comments concludes by saying:—"Still, in the midst of all the confusion and loss, it is necessary to bear in mind the vigor and elasticity with which the American people meet and repair every adversity. The consequences of the two fires which within the last thirty-five years have devastated the business portions of New York were encountered with a promptitude which soon effaced their traces, and at a later period a like visitation at San Francisco caused a still greater development of indomitable energy. Hence it is some satisfaction in the midst of the present disaster to predict that [illegible] there will be nothing more astonishing in connection with it than the way in which the sufferers will effect the work of restoration." How fully this flattering but just picture of the recuperative energy of the American people is exhibited to-day in the herculean efforts now being made at Chicago to restore that city, in the extraordinary subscriptions from all parts for the Chicago sufferers and in the elasticity of our financial and other resources! Old Europe begins to understand the facts of our situation, to learn that we have a vast Continent, productive in everything to sustain life and that commerce demands, with real, substantial wealth, growing beyond all precedent and faster than our rapidly increasing population, and that no people have ever been so distinguished for energy, industry and enterprise. We have attained the first position as a nation, and it will not be long before this country will become the commercial and money centre of the world.

This destiny, however, may be accelerated or retarded by the legislation and policy of the government. The way we are drifting along at present, losing the commercial advantages of the position which nature has given us, does not present as favorable a prospect as might be desired. The great future of our country, though inevitable, is seen only through the hazy atmosphere of the present state of things. Eleven years ago we could claim to be the rival of the first maritime nation in the world, if, indeed, we were not the first. Now where do we stand? See what strides England has made during that period and how far this country has fallen behind. Her tonnage has increased wonderfully, while ours has decreased in a greater ratio. Worse than that: we are going more and more behind in time of peace, and while the nation is fast recovering from all the other disastrous consequences of the war. Out of all the numerous steamship lines between Europe and America the United States has not a single vessel. The largest and most valuable portion of our commerce is done by foreigners, and, consequently, the profits go abroad. Six years after the war we are relatively in a worse position as a maritime nation than we were when peace was restored.

We call attention to this state of things because the surplus or available capital of a nation and the financial power of a nation in the world depend greatly upon commerce. A country may be rich in agriculture, may have the greatest abundance and variety of products of the soil, and yet be poor with regard to its commercial liabilities and financial standing to other countries. Yes, the richest nation in the world, as far as internal products or resources go, may be kept in debt and tributary to a flourishing maritime and commercial one with comparatively limited natural resources. This, in fact, is much about the relative position of the United States and England at the present time. While our protectionists are intent on fostering certain local and limited interests, such as those of a few manufacturers of New England and Pennsylvania, they lose sight of that which is of far greater importance and national in the broadest sense of the term. Maritime and commercial growth affects all interests. The greater the tonnage and carrying trade of a country the larger will be the balance of capital coming to it. A change of a few millions of profits from this source out of a trade aggregating hundreds of millions annually will turn the current of exchange and tend to give financial supremacy. The first thing, then, that Congress ought to turn its attention to is the depressed shipping interest. A remedy for our decayed and still declining commercial marine should be found without delay. Let smaller interests, if necessary, be sacrificed for that which is paramount to all others. If we can build ships as cheaply as foreigners by taking the duties off materials let us apply that remedy. If we cannot then let our merchants and capitalists buy vessels wherever they can get them on the best terms. We can easily recover from any internal disaster, however great, even such a fearful one as the fire at Chicago; but to recover our maritime importance and to make the United States the financial centre of commercial nations there must be a radical change in the policy of the government and wiser legislation on the subject.

The Reception of the Russian Prince.

Should the Grand Duke Alexis arrive within the period which intervenes to election day the reception ceremonies would have to omit the feature of a military display, because, under the laws of the State, no parade of the soldiery may take place during election or during the five days previous thereto. It is to be hoped, therefore, that His Imperial Highness may be so guided by the fate which has so long retarded his voyage as to defer his visit for a few days longer, in order that in our reception of him we may add the pageant of a military procession to the many honors which our people desire to show him. The law is so explicit that a parade must be dispensed with until after next Tuesday. The section of the Military Code, as enacted by the Legislature of 1870, says:—

> No parade or rendezvous of the National Guard shall be ordered on any day during which a general or special election shall be held, nor within five days previous to such election, except in case of riot, invasion or insurrection, or of imminent danger thereof, &c., &c.

In this connection it may be proper to remind the Committee of Reception that no provision has been made for the payment of the bands of music which are to accompany the regiments whenever the parade comes off. The militia, in turning out at this busy season of the year, feel that they contribute enough when they sacrifice their valuable time, without being subjected to the heavy expenses attending the provision of music for their several regiments.

Women's Rights in the Four Parties of Massachusetts.

There are four parties in the field in Massachusetts—the republican party, the democratic, the labor reform and the prohibition or teetotal temperance party. Mr. Washburn, the republican candidate for Governor, has a decided leaning towards women's rights, though he has not as yet defined exactly his position on the subject. Mr. John Quincy Adams, the democratic candidate, as to his position on "woman suffrage," says, "You may, perhaps, gather all the information which you require from a bold statement that I am, after careful [illegible] unequivocally opposed to woman suffrage, and I shall feel it my duty, in the very improbable contingency of my ever occupying any considerable public office, to stand by the old immemorial division of activities and functions which seem to me to lie at the foundation of society." Very good.

Judge Pitman, the liquor prohibition candidate, goes for woman suffrage, and is sorry it is not in his party platform; but he says to the women's rights women, "Your greatest, I might say your only serious obstacle, is the indifference of woman herself to your movement;" and this is a fact "which nobody can deny." Mr. Chamberlin, the labor reformer, says that he is "in favor of woman suffrage, which is in the platform I stand on;" and so Chamberlin, after all, is the regular out-and-out woman suffrage candidate. It is possible, moreover, with these two strings to his bow—labor reform and women's rights—that he may poll a pretty stout vote in the State election of Tuesday next, inasmuch as General Butler was strongly inclined for some time to go in with the labor reformers and women's rights women on a "new departure." At all events, we look for some curious results in this coming Massachusetts election.

LATEST FROM GREAT SALT LAKE.—Our latest advices show that the excitement and consternation among the Saints of Utah, raised by the vigorous war of the United States authorities upon Mormon polygamy and Mormon murders, has subsided, and that the spirit of entire submission to the law prevails among the Saints. The case of another polygamist, William Clayton, will come up before the Court to-day on the appeal of his ninth wife for alimony and divorce. The defence will enter a demurrer against the jurisdiction of the United States Court, and before this Court, it is contended, this divorce suit cannot be maintained. It is probable, however, that for adultery, or "lewd and lascivious conduct" the aforesaid William Clayton can and will be brought to grief by Mrs. Clayton number nine, who is doubtless so far disgusted with the saintly abominations of Clayton's harem as to be resolved to break it up. It will require only a few such examples as this in the official exposure of the reeking vices of Mormon polygamy to bring the great nuisance to a speedy dissolution.

THE HALF HAS NOT BEEN TOLD, it would appear, of the extent of the human sufferings resulting from those Western forest fires. The Chicago Tribune, in an appeal to the country and the charitable world in behalf of those sufferers, says that "probably fifty thousand persons in Northern Wisconsin and Michigan alone have been stripped of every earthly possession by these fires." This report from the ruins of Chicago is surely entitled to respect.

IT APPEARS the Canadians don't want the Horton restored to them. They see at once that the gallant Gloucester captain has tied her up tighter than their courts could have done.

The Theory of Political Reform and the Practice of Pretended Reformers.

In his letter declining the nomination of the democratic reformers for Assemblyman Charles O'Conor advises all honest citizens throughout the State to lay aside party interests and affiliations and, with singleness of purpose, to devote themselves at the ensuing election to the choice of sound lawgivers as the only peaceful remedy for existing or impending evils. "A corrupt majority in our Legislature possesses vastly more power than the English Parliament," says Mr. O'Conor; "few, feeble and utterly inefficient against robbery of the public treasure are the restraints of our fundamental law, and such a majority can render practically powerless the judiciary and the Executive." If the warning should be heeded and the advice followed we might hope for a return to the days when the Van Burens, Marcy, Wright, Bouck and Young were the leading politicians of the State; for, as Charles O'Conor truly says, "if for even a single year a majority of incorruptible men could be elected to the Legislature effectual measures of relief might be initiated, and such a beginning would be the dawn of a hope for our city and for the cherished institutions of our republic." But, unfortunately, selfishness and corruption have so eaten into our political system that the people cannot expect honest aid in reform from any existing party organization. The cry raised occasionally against official dishonesty is caught up and echoed by all the struggling cliques and factions that have their own interests to promote and their own schemes to carry out, and in the end those earnest men who have sincerely desired to effect a reformation in the government find themselves detached from one set of political knaves only to be fastened to the chariot wheels of another.

The present movement against our city peculators is a case in point. The people, startled and indignant at the conclusive evidences of the unfaithfulness of some of their public officers, were ripe for such a political revolution as might have swept the dishonest officials from power. But the popular uprising was hampered and checked by the intrigues of politicians, and soon degenerated into a mere scramble of outside cliques, ward clubs and individual adventurers for office. There was no direct honesty of purpose in the movement—no desire to bring the guilty to a speedy accounting. The object of those who managed to control it was to raise as much excitement as possible and to feed the public with sensational accounts, day after day, until after election. The only offices having any direct bearing upon the New York municipal question are the Judgeship of the Supreme Court, the Senatorships and the Members of Assembly. For the former of these the reformers overlooked the names of the many eminent jurists and distinguished citizens who were at their command, and put in nomination a respectable lawyer who had enlisted in the cause, it is alleged, in consideration of a heavy fee, and who, no doubt, hoped to be further rewarded with the prize he has obtained. For legislative offices we find the reformers trading and bargaining with all the factions notorious in the several districts; and while some good nominations have been made, enough of the vile element of the ward politician and the professional office-seeker has crept in to taint the whole batch of nominees. A party that unfurls the banner of legislative reform should not allow itself to uphold a single questionable candidate for Senate or Assembly; yet we find the Committee of Seventy the open supporters of ex-Sheriff O'Brien, the original organizer of the repeaters, and, probably, the most unscrupulous politician in the length and breadth of New York, not even excepting Tweed. The same tampering with corrupt men is found throughout the State on the part of the organization alleged to be opposed to Tammany, and the advice given by Mr. O'Conor is unheeded. At one end, in Chautauqua county, M. P. Bemus, whose record is notorious, receives the republican nomination for Assembly, and at the other end, in Queens county, L. B. Prince, an old member of the Assembly grinding committee, the most monstrous instrument of legislative corruption, is supported by republicans for Assembly, although his opponent, Edward A. Lawrence, has been known all his public life as a relentless enemy of Tammany. The truth is, there is no choice between the present political organizations; one is as corrupt, unreliable and rascally as the other. Both are under the control of dishonest men, who make politics a profession for the sake of the profits they may realize by unscrupulousness and peculation. The loudest political denouncers of Tammany to-day have their price, and would become allies of the "Ring" to-morrow if that much denounced circle would regard them as worth buying. There is only one hope for the thorough purification of our body politic and the return of parties to the integrity and pecuniary honesty that existed before the days of Fernando Wood, and that is in the entire wiping out of all the old organizations, together with the political hacks who have fastened themselves upon them, and the formation of a new party upon broad, liberal and enlightened principles, with the watchword of reform inscribed on their banners, and the determination to support none but honest men for office engraved on their hearts.

A STRANGE CASE OF MADNESS has appeared in Yonkers. Two young men, inseparable companions, have been attacked with what seems to be hydrophobia, but which a physician says is not. One of them was bitten by a man with whom he quarrelled some weeks ago, and in one of his paroxysms bit his friend, who is now afflicted like himself. The case is a remarkable one, and, notwithstanding the declaration of the physician, it hardly seems probable that it is aught else than hydrophobia.

CHANGES in the important military divisions of the Union and in the commanders thereof are known to be under discussion by the President, Secretary of War and General Sherman. It is not known just what they are, and except to the commanders themselves, they can be of little moment. The country is at such profound peace, except in Utah and the South, that the changing of the geographical definitions of military districts cannot affect its peace or security.

The Present Condition of the Russian Army.

We print in another part of this morning's issue a letter from the correspondent of the HERALD in St. Petersburg. The communication is one of considerable interest at the present time, now that rumors of army reorganizations and military changes throughout the empire of the Czar are startling and frequent. The correspondent quotes freely from a pamphlet published by General Fadejew at the close of the Austrian campaign, whose object evidently is to show that for years back Russia has been watchful and energetic, and that when the time comes it will be found that the imperial government has studied well the lessons of the past. From the general tenor of the correspondence it would seem that Russia is preparing, and preparing energetically, too, for war. How it is to be brought about is another question. It is scarcely necessary to refer to the Hohenzollern affair at Ems to call to mind the deadly conflict in which France and Germany were so recently engaged. Without any very great stretch of the imagination one can perceive how another Prince of the House of Hohenzollern might kindle a flame which would set all Europe ablaze. Be this as it may, Russia is arming to the teeth, and in a short time will be ready for any emergency.

A little reflection will call to mind that for long years previous to 1870 Prussia was quietly pursuing a peaceful policy towards all her neighbors. Under this mild garb her statesmen and her generals were close observers of the events and changes going on all over the world. The Schleswig-Holstein and Austrian affairs were but slight evidences of what Prussia would eventually undertake and successfully accomplish. The time at last arrived, France cast down the gauntlet and Prussia, accepting the challenge, took it up. How thoroughly the little kingdom was prepared the world has already ascertained. The policy of Russia since the Crimean war furnishes us with a somewhat similar parallel. When we consider the vast extent of the Czar's dominions, the immense difficulties of transporting troops from the frozen regions of the north to the shores of the Black Sea, we can readily realize the force of the assertion that the Russian soldiers were beaten long before they reached the Crimea. From that day to the present—now nearly twenty years—Russia has been quietly pursuing a vigorous policy towards the internal development of the country. An immense network of railroads, constructed in a manner to suit military operations, is spread all over the empire. These lines are run right up to the frontiers, and by these means troops can be transported as rapidly as occasion may require. In this way one of the great difficulties encountered by the Russians in 1854 is surmounted.

Regarding the Russian army we find that many improvements have been introduced into its management. Needed reforms have exercised a wholesome effect on it, and although in many respects it might be further improved, yet it is to-day in a higher state of efficiency than at any other period in its history. According to the figures furnished by the HERALD correspondent Russia could at the present time bring an effective force of eight hundred and thirty thousand men into the field. This is independent of the force in the Caucasian provinces, which foots up the respectable figure of two hundred thousand. Then the number of troops in Orenberg, Siberia and Turkistan count one hundred thousand more, so that really, from the figures thus furnished, Russia is ready to put over a million of men in arms. Referring to a special despatch to the HERALD published a few days ago, we find that by a "general order of the Russian War Office, duly approved by His Majesty the Czar, the entire and complete reorganization of the imperial army and the calling and training to arms of the whole adult male population of the country" is directed to be put in force. This will swell the figure to still larger proportions. The equipment of this immense army must not be forgotten. The most approved patterns of breech-loaders are now in the hands of Russian soldiers. The figures show that six hundred and sixty-nine thousand of the Berdan, Kruka, Carre and Brancon rifles are in use. Four hundred mitrailleuses also find a place in the service. From what we have said and from the figures given it is plain that Russia is preparing for a struggle on an enormous scale. Nearly twenty years of peace have given the empire an opportunity which evidently has not been neglected, and when the time comes—and it may not be far distant. The indications are that Russia has profited well by the lessons she has set before her both at home and abroad.

THE SITUATION IN MEXICO.—A HERALD special telegram from Matamoros, which we publish to-day, reports the situation of affairs which existed in the Mexican republic on the 23d of October. Juarez's cause was more hopeful, and the current of events in favor of his government. Porfirio Diaz was not in the field. Mexico city remained quiet. Many of the State Governors—a majority of the whole—forwarded their felicitations to the chief of the nation, congratulating him on the aspect of affairs. Each one of the provincial dignitaries tendered also his services in aid of the government effort for the suppression of the Monterey pronunciamento. The assertion that Saltillo had capitulated was denied in the capital. Revolutionists were still in arms, however. The avenues of communication between the border territory and Monterey were held by the oppositionists of Juarez's rule. It may be said, indeed, that the people of Mexico still remain a divided family, although it is apparent that order is more respected in the household, and its citizen head becoming stronger in the assertion of his authority.

PRINCE GORTCHAKOFF AT BERLIN.—President Thiers is smart, and so is Earl Granville; but Gortchakoff, as most men now know, is a match for either. Bismarck is his only real rival in Europe. At this time Bismarck and Gortchakoff must meet. It remains to be seen whether Gortchakoff can beat Bismarck as he not long since beat Granville. In any case we must soon know whether the Eastern and Salzburg Conferences mean war or peace. The presence of Gortchakoff at the Court of Berlin really means business. In a few hours we must know the result.

The Present Italian Opera Season and Its Predecessors.

After a chequered existence of many years, during which it has undergone more revolutions than the republic of Mexico, Italian opera at length has a fair chance of success and of obtaining a long lease of life. Although in the years gone by we have had the best lyric artists that Europe or America could furnish, and at times a constellation of them together, yet never before were our people so anxious and willing to lend a helping hand to the lyric drama as they are this fall. Since the present season opened the Academy of Music has been thronged with the élite of metropolitan fashion and intelligence, and each representation has had as brilliant an audience as could be brought together in any opera house in the world. Never before during the administrations of Ullmann, Grau or Maretzek, was such a warm interest in the opera manifested by the New York public as there is at present. When we look back to the various seasons during which Grisi, Sontag, Piccolomini, Bosio, Lagrange, Colson, Patti, Kellogg, Medori and Zucchi flourished, and in nearly every case met with but stinted patronage from the people of New York, the present operatic situation is encouraging in the highest sense of the word. It may be remembered that many years ago the seasons were so unprofitable that the artists had frequently to form themselves into a managerial association. Even the best Italian Opera Company that has ever appeared in this city—the Havana troupe, of which Bosio and Steffanone were members—failed to cover expenses. Therefore Mlle. Nilsson has every reason to congratulate herself on the triumph she has gained during the first season of her operatic career in New York.

The Swedish Nightingale is the main cause of this success. Although she gained laurels, and enduring ones, too, in the concert room and made herself respected in the field of oratorio, yet her genius found for the first time here full scope in opera. Her histrionic abilities have never been excelled and rarely equalled on the stage of the lyric drama. She lent new charms to the Bride of Lammermoor and invested the Lady of Camelias with a grace and tenderness that Dumas fils never dreamed of and that the traditional Violetta entirely ignores. A voice of the utmost purity of tone and susceptible of every shade of expression and a charming, naïve manner on the stage makes the Casta Diva of opera nowadays a creature of poetry and tenderness. To-night she appears in her greatest rôle, Marguerite, in Gounod's "Faust." It is the veritable Gretchen of Goethe—such an impersonation of the poor German peasant girl as has never been before presented on the stage. On Friday, the sixth subscription night, Mlle. Nilsson will essay the coquettish rôle of Zerlina in Mozart's chef d'oeuvre, "Don Giovanni," and she is now studying the great rôle of Leonora in Beethoven's "Fidelio." As for those two characters she has created—that of Mignon and that of Ophelia—in Ambroise Thomas' operas, the universal voice of the European press has been enthusiastic in its praise. We trust that the management will give our public a chance to hear this incomparable artiste in the character of Gilda, the best of Verdi's numerous heroines.

Miss Annie Louise Cary, the contralto of the troupe, has one of those lovely, sympathetic voices that are always heard with pleasure, and that give the music of each rôle she undertakes new charms. Signor Brignoli is in better voice than ever before, and the term "golden-toned" can be applied to him now in the fullest sense of the word. M. Victor Capoul achieved such a success on Monday night as Alfred Germont in "Traviata" as rarely falls to the lot of any tenor. He is a perfect lady killer in his love scenes and evidently set about the conquest of the female heart with an earnestness that is irresistible. Mlle. Leon Duval is very pretty and engaging, and as Donna Elvira on Friday night she cannot fail to make an impression on the susceptible hearts present. M. Jamet has a fine, sonorous bass voice, and as he plays one of the most important parts in opera to-night, that of Mephistopheles in "Faust," we may look for a really grand impersonation.

In the chorus and orchestra this company is particularly strong. Both of these important departments show evidence of thorough and careful training. Here we have the weak points of preceding seasons. The chorus and orchestra have been the disgrace of opera at the Academy heretofore. Now they are the most commendable features of the opera. Sixty singers represent the former and fifty instrumentalists the latter. In "Lucia," "Martha" and "Traviata" they did their duty nobly. In "Faust" we may expect still greater things from them.

It must be admitted that Italian opera is the only species of amusement that draws forth the crème de la crème of fashion in this city. Hitherto it has been a standing reproach to the metropolis of America, but now, with such a transcendent genius as Nilsson, it bids fair to become permanent and artistically respectable. At all events, our public will not be backward in giving it encouragement, and we trust that not only during this season but also in the next, when Pauline Lucca makes her début at the Academy, Italian opera will occupy the position to which it is entitled—first of all amusements.

A Lost Festival.

All Hallow Eve is a lost festival in our busy and practical world. It passed over us last night with hardly a thought of its presence. The jolly enjoyment of the snap apple, the dives in the tub of water after apples, the nut cracking, the illuminated turnips, the practical and harmless jokes, seemed to have no place in a community beset by Tammany frauds, bothered with a bewildering multiplicity of sensations, on the eve of an important election, and generally engaged in the most sternly practical duties of a busy life. It is unfortunate that it should be so. We can take no better recreation from the constant labors and anxieties that wear upon our minds and physical frames than by a night of such jollity in the home circle as a hearty celebration of All Hallow Eve represents. It refreshes far more than billiards, or the play, or a summer at fashionable watering places, or a crushing experience of grand balls. It "makes you a child again, just for to-night."

If we had more All Hallow Eves, and they were more religiously celebrated, we would have fewer jaded business men, fewer weak, narrow chested women; fewer dyspeptics, less unhappiness, less feverish haste to be rich, less unhealthy speculation, and a more general diffusion of the domestic virtues. Indeed, we might show that All Hallow Eve is a panacea for all our woes, and that Burns' two lines,

And many lads' and lasses' fates
Are there that night decided,

are capable of a wider interpretation than he intended. That in boisterous and romping, but rational, enjoyment such as All Hallow Eve gives countenance to, there lies the germ of a remedy for most of the evils of our home life there is no doubt. The German element among us can teach us useful lessons in this regard, and notwithstanding the American neglect of All Hallow Eve last night we can see in many other particulars that we are fast learning these useful lessons.

The Home Rule Movement in Ireland.

The question of home rule for Ireland is agitating the people of the Green Isle at the present in a manner which calls to mind the days of O'Connell. In different parts of the country monster meetings have been held to bring the subject prominently before the people. Mr. Butt, the Member for Limerick, and Mr. John Martin, who is also a member of the British Parliament, are the prominent leaders in this movement. They have adopted a policy which commends itself to all thinking people, and one which, in the end, may prove successful in securing for Ireland some of the reforms which they seek. The old cant against England and the tyranny of British rule, so much adopted by third rate and pot-house politicians, is laid aside altogether. Moderation in speech is employed by the speakers who now harangue the home rule meetings being held throughout Ireland. A meeting was held in the old city of Drogheda some time back to advocate the home rule measure, at which it is estimated that fully thirty thousand people were present. The counties of Dublin, Meath, West Meath and Longford were all well represented on the occasion. The gathering was most orderly, the speakers indulged in little or none of the usual cant in denunciation of "bloody England," and the whiskey drinking part of the business, which usually formed a feature of such demonstrations, was noticeably smaller than on the occasions of similar importance. This is a healthy sign of a wholesome reform in Ireland. The mistake made in times gone by by the men who had the ear of the people was to abuse England and everything connected with English government. The course is now different; tactics are changed, and prominent Irishmen regard the change as beneficial and much more effective. People at this side of the Atlantic applaud the course pursued by the new leaders of the people in Ireland; and if the "ould country" is to be governed by her own people at home in their own Parliament house the policy pursued by such men as Butt, Martin and others will hasten the day when such an event can be declared accomplished.

A STRONG MAN AGAINST THE RING—O'Donovan Rossa, as the candidate of the reform democrats for the Senate in the Fourth Senatorial district. As the representative of the common cause of his race against the British despotism over Ireland, and as an honest, talented and patriotic Irishman, devoted to city reform, he ought to get the vote of every Irishman of his district, and in his bold defiance of "the Ring" he deserves an election.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1—1 A. M.

Synopsis for the Past Twenty-four Hours.

The barometer has fallen very generally on the Atlantic coast, where southerly winds, cloudy and threatening weather now prevail. The low barometer which was Monday night in Arkansas has moved northeast into Michigan and on to Lake Erie, with brisk northerly winds in Illinois and on Lake Michigan. Rain has fallen generally west of the Apalachee Mountains. The temperature has risen on the Atlantic coast and lower lakes; it has fallen on the upper lakes.

Probabilities.

The area of lowest pressure will probably move northeastward down the St. Lawrence valley, with southwesterly winds and rain on the lower lakes; northwesterly winds with clearing weather west of Lake Huron and Ohio; fresh winds from the southeast and the southwest in the Middle and Eastern States, with rain on Wednesday; cloudy and threatening weather continues in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, and clearing away on Wednesday in the Southwest.

Cautionary signals are ordered for this morning on Lake Erie.

AFFAIRS IN CHICAGO.

Leniency of New York Creditors—Sixty Miles of Streets Laid Waste in the Great Fire.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Evening Journal learns from private business sources that the New York creditors of Chicago burned out firms are very generally satisfied with the settlements they are making with them.

An approximate measurement shows sixty miles of streets laid waste in the great fire.

Buell; Circuit Court Judge, Lambert Freer; City Treasurer, Charles H. Ham; County Treasurer, Henry Harris; City Attorney, P. McHugh; City Collector, W. J. WASHINGTON.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE CABINET.

Chicago Asking for Government Troops to Protect the City.

Official Statement of Outstanding Currency.

Slanderous Charges Against Treasurer Spinner Disproved.

Important Cabinet Meeting—Troops for Chicago—Utah Affairs.

At the Cabinet meeting to-day a petition from Chicago was read, signed by representatives of both political parties, asking that troops be stationed in that city for the protection of property, those which were there immediately after the late fire having been withdrawn. In accordance with the petition an order has been issued by which a portion of the Eighth infantry, now at Willet's Point, will be despatched to Chicago.

The subject of the Ku Klux arrests in South Carolina was considered, Attorney General Akerman stating the result of his late visit to that State. The prisoners having asked to be released on bail, it was thought best to leave that matter to the discretion of Mr. Akerman.

The government will continue the prosecutions in Utah, and, if necessary, additional troops will be sent to that Territory. It is known that some of the federal officers have asked for troops to aid the Executive authorities in making arrests, but this is considered by the heads of military affairs here to be inexpedient unless there should be resistance to such an extent as to require the additional force. Much is left to the discretion of General Augur, who has taken measures to insure tranquillity and to further the ends of justice. With the exception of the above-named subjects no business of importance was transacted, though the meeting continued three hours.

Changes in the Military Departments.

The changes in the military departments of the country, which were announced in the HERALD last July, and which were so strenuously denied upon authority, are soon to be made public. They will differ very little from the programme then announced. The expectation of this order after its announcement in the HERALD, the details of which are being arranged by the President, the Secretary of War and General Sherman, created a great deal of anxiety in military circles, and the War Department was deluged with letters from army officers inquiring into its provisions. The Department of the Lakes is to be abolished and General Philip St. George Cooke will be placed upon the retired list. General Sheridan will not come East, as was at first intended, with his headquarters at New York, but will have a large territory under his command commensurate with his rank as Lieutenant General, with headquarters at St. Louis. The intention is to give him control of all the Indian tribes, as far as it can be done without encroaching too much upon the Military Division of the Pacific, commanded by General Schofield. New Mexico will be detached from the Department of the Missouri and erected into a separate department, and it is probable that either Colonel Edward Hatch, of the Ninth cavalry—now commanding a district in Texas—or Lieutenant Colonel Alfred Sully, of the Nineteenth infantry, will be designated as the commander, though Colonel David S. Stanley, of the Twenty-second infantry, now in Montana, may be appointed. These are all general officers by brevet, and their superior experience seems to make the choice of one of them a necessity.

Leaks in the Treasury—General Spinner's Defence.

Treasurer Spinner will in his annual report notice what he terms "an infamous libel" upon the Treasury Department in general and upon himself in particular, which appeared in a New York newspaper, and which was shown to him on his return from Europe. The article was headed "Leaks in the Treasury—Millions of Dollars Abstracted," &c. After a long review of the subject, fortified by extracts and references from the books of his office, the Treasurer says:—

The charge of the destruction of six cartloads of account books, like the one that he had taken, on warrants made payable to F. E. Spinner, moneys amounting to over three millions of dollars, and for which he had not accounted, is, he hoped, sufficiently disproved by the simple statement of facts the truth of which can be verified by any one who may claim to examine the records and papers that are accessible in the various offices of the department to which they properly belong. The charge that he arrived in England on the 20th of May and proceeded to Baden when he parted with his companions and disappeared, was in perfect keeping with all the rest. The whole article, from the beginning to the end, so far as any material fact is concerned, is, as General Spinner says, an unmitigated lie, and was so known by its getters up when it was invented, penned and published. It had been said of municipal officials of a Northern city that they do not deny the charge of robbery of the public money made against them. There is reason to believe that, taking advantage of my absence in a foreign land, these false charges against the Treasury Department that originated in the organ of "the Ring" in that city, and whose editor is one of its members of the Senate of the State, were "back fire" and "stop thief" dodges, and made with a view to draw attention from themselves and their "stealings," and that they might say, "Why should we deny general charges of official dishonesty when an official of the national government, who is charged more specifically with wrongdoing, makes no denial." These were the motives that induced me to swerve from the general rule not to give heed to slanders and libels.

Trouble with Ku Klux in Mississippi.

A letter received at the Internal Revenue Office, from A. P. Shattuck, Assessor for the Third district of Mississippi, reporting that on the night of the 23d inst. an attempt was made to burn the Assessor's office at Okolona, in that State, but the fire was extinguished before material damage was done. The day before the United States Deputy Marshal arrived at Okolona with warrants for the arrest of a party of Ku Klux. The Assessor tendered him what assistance he could, and his clerk assisted in making the arrests. Five persons were arrested and left at his house, and during the night the revenue office was fired. Assessor Shattuck thinks there is no doubt it was done by friends of the prisoners, as the town was full of strangers all night and threats were freely made against the life of Mr. Hall, the Assessor's clerk, for the part he took in the affair. Assessor Shattuck respectfully suggests that it might be advisable to have United States troops stationed there for the protection of government property, and excitement runs high over the arrests already made and to be made, and his office is liable to be burned at any time.

Ku Klux Emigration from South Carolina.

The Columbia (S. C.) Union, of Monday, says:—

We have received information from most reliable authority to the effect that on Thursday of last week an armed band made their appearance in the village of New Fieldena. The persons were all mounted and were their arms unconcealed, and were provided with rations, &c. They inquired for United States maps and stated they were leaving South Carolina for good and were on their way to Georgia. None of the citizens of the village could recognize any of the party.

Appointments by the President.

The President made the following appointments to-day:—Hanford L. Gordon to be Register of the Land Office at St. Cloud, Minn.; George Andrews, United States Attorney for the Eastern district of Tennessee; George C. Bates, United States Attorney for Utah Territory; Hermin Ehee, Postmaster at Norwalk, Ohio; C. H. Newell, Postmaster at Greenwood, Iowa.

Supervisor of Tennessee Appointed.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day reappointed ex-Supervisor Emery, of Tennessee, Supervisor of that State in place of Supervisor Stokes, removed.

Sympathy of the Swiss for the Chicago Sufferers.

The political agent and Consul General of Switzerland, Mr. Hitz, has received a letter from the President of that republic stating that the people express the warmest sympathy for the sufferers by the Chicago fire, and that liberal subscriptions are being made for their relief under organized arrangement.

The United States government is now paying a pension to the widow of William Tell, a lineal descendant of the Swiss hero of that name. The husband of the pensioner served in the late war in this country.

Presentation of the Colombian Minister to the President.

Señor Don Santiago Perez, who for some time past has been the Minister Resident here from the United States of Colombia, to-day delivered his credentials to the President as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the republic. He made the following remarks upon the subject:—

MR. PRESIDENT—My government has resolved to render plenipotentiary the legation which is under my charge, and in the performance of the duties of which I have had the satisfaction to find your views entirely in harmony with mine in relation to drawing closer the friendly relations between the two countries. In the credential letter which I have the honor to place in your hands the President of Colombia states the reasons of the promotion above referred to. For my part, I feel that I cannot make a suitable return for his confidence, save by cultivating the spirit of justice with which both nations hope that such questions as may arise between them will be settled, and by endeavoring to merit a continuance of that kindness on your part which has hitherto rendered my official relations so easy and agreeable."

The President replied as follows:—

MR. PEREZ—I congratulate you on your promotion. It may be considered as an approval by your government of your course here, which has also been quite acceptable to us. We are especially interested in preserving the good will of the United States of Colombia, partly, indeed, because they are the custodians of the only open way across the Isthmus which connects North with South America. We shall omit nothing practicable on our part towards maintaining that good will, and cannot fail if your government shall meet us in the spirit of justice to which you allude, and especially if due regard be had for antecedents, realities and prospects.

Another Defalcation.

The President to-day suspended W. F. Forbes, Invalid Pension Agent of Philadelphia, at the request of the Commissioner of Pensions. He is charged with being a defaulter to the amount of $25,000, which, it is said, he has expressed his willingness to restore to the government.

Increase of American Tonnage.

A statement furnished by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the number of vessels and tonnage of the United States on June 30, 1871, as compared with the corresponding date of 1870, shows a gain over 1870 of 76 sailing vessels with a tonnage of 32,129.87, 153 steam vessels of 34,106.51 tons and 955 unrigged vessels of 99,026.29 tons, or a total of 1,169 vessels with a tonnage of 165,262.67.

Admeasurement of German Vessels.

The Treasury Department has decided that a German vessel entering an American port for the first time, having a British certificate of admeasurement, need not be admeasured.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

THE TOTAL DESTRUCTION of the records of the United States District Court in the great fire at Chicago did not include the copyright records of Illinois, which were removed to Washington last year, and are safe in the fireproof library of Congress. Many transcripts of valuable copyrights have already been called for and furnished by the Librarian.

A NEW WEEKLY JOURNAL, entitled Public Opinion, modelled upon the London paper of that name, has been commenced at Philadelphia by Mr. G. W. Hammersley, editor of the Germantown Chronicle. Its plan is to give a selection of the best articles from all the leading newspapers, reflecting public sentiment both in the United States and England. It aims to be the Eclectic of the newspaper press.

—THE TOTAL LOSS of the library and gallery of paintings of the Chicago Historical Society, by the burning of the "fireproof" building, included 18,000 bound volumes, 150,000 pamphlets and 200 paintings, comprising the entire collection of Mr. George P. A. Healy. Among the latter was Couture's original "Prodigal Son" and Healy's picture of Daniel Webster replying to Hayne in the Senate.

JOHN RUSKIN, in his last "Letter to the Workingmen of Great Britain," says of his boyhood training:—"My mother forced me, by steady daily toil, to learn long chapters of the Bible by heart as well as to read it every syllable through from Genesis to the Apocalypse about once a year; and to that discipline I owe, not only a knowledge of the book, which I find occasionally serviceable, but much of my general power of taking pains and the best part of my taste in literature."

THE AUTHOR of that successful book of Southern humor, "Major Jones' Courtship," first published in 1844 will next year bring out a new edition. William T. Thompson is his real name.

THE MORMON TROUBLES.

Herald Special Report from Salt Lake City.

BAIL REFUSED FOR STOUT AND KIMBALL.

The Mormons Becoming Quiet—No Resistance to the Laws Expected.

A Saint with Nine Wives in the Meshes of the Law.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 31, 1871.

The United States District Court, Chief Justice McKean, adjourned to-day until the 14th of November.

In the cases of Stout and Kimball the Judge declined to admit them to bail until he had examined into the matter more fully. They are held in custody at Camp Douglas.

The decision of Judge McKean in granting bail to Mayor Wells received general approval.

The Mormons are sensibly touched by the Judge's action. The feeling generally is much better. The leaders are more quiet and sensible, and the people are growing tranquil and more amicable. There is not the slightest danger of any disturbance of the peace, although Senator Morton's editor was badly scared in his brief visit here and lost his usual presence of mind.

There is to be no rebellion or war and no extraordinary expenditure of the public funds.

A number of other arrests are likely to occur in a short time, but none of very great importance.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 30, 1871.

H. S. Eldridge, of the Bank of Deseret, and William Jennings, of the Zion's Co-operative Institution, were accepted as sureties on the bail bond of Mayor Daniel Wells. The motion for bail in the cases of Stout and Kimball is still under consideration by the Court.

The case of Clayton against Clayton, being an action for divorce and alimony instituted by the polygamous wife of William Clayton, is on the docket for to-morrow. Clayton is the Territorial Auditor. The point at present raised is a demurrer to the jurisdiction of the United States Court, the defence claiming that matters of this nature belong exclusively to the Probate Court. The plaintiff is Clayton's ninth wife, and a suit for divorce before a United States Court cannot, of course, be maintained. It is expected that the testimony on the merits of the case will be curious, and if it be admitted that the plaintiff is defendant's wife it will leave him open to a charge of bigamy. The defendant's only hope is that the demurrer will be maintained.

The man Bennett, who was found dead and shot through and through on the road near this city on Saturday last, is said to have been a horse thief. A man named Jones avows the killing and declares that he caught Bennett in the act of stealing a horse. Jones is under arrest.

Everything is as quiet and peaceable here to-night as in a country village. Aside from what is said in the Church organs the general expression of the Mormons is that of entire submission to the law. Cannon is very bitter, but Orson Pratt says it will be all right so long as they do not fine him, for he has no money.

Wells, Fargo & Co. and the merchants received during last week $240,000 in silver bullion, mostly from Pioche.

Release of the Mormon Bishop, Aaron Johnson.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Mormon bishop, Aaron Johnson, arrested a short time since at Springville by a United States marshal for murder, was released to-day by Judge Strickland, at Provo City, on $10,000 bail.

Condition of Affairs in Laurens County.

ABSOLUTELY NO KU KLUX THERE.

NEWBERRY, S. C., Oct. 27, 1871.

NO KU KLUX IN LAURENS COUNTY.

As showing how exaggerated and often utterly false have been the reports published in the radical press of the outrages committed upon negroes, I have only to mention that, excepting in an election riot last year, there has not been a negro killed by a white man in Laurens since the war ended. There have been several cases of whipping, but in every case the victim had been guilty of some offence against the laws, and for which he had not been punished by the proper authorities. Of course mob law cannot be justified under any circumstances, but I mention the cause solely for the purpose of showing that politics had nothing whatever to do with the troubles.

SOME NEGRO OUTRAGES.

While no negroes have been murdered white men have. The most notorious one was the assassination of Dr. C. Shell by negroes in 1868. In this case one of the assassins was convicted and hung, and the others were permitted to escape. Furthermore, I have before me the story of an attack by negroes upon the residence of Mr. Harrison Scott. He was absent at the time, and his wife was most brutally treated, after doing which the negroes robbed the house and marched off. An attempt was also made on the life of a Mr. Shaw; which, however, fortunately failed. It is not my purpose to say anything harsh about the negroes of Laurens county. All the whites agree in representing the majority of them as orderly and well behaved, and certainly the negroes do not complain of any ill-treatment at the hands of the whites. I do not know that I can illustrate the object of the Ku Klux better than by giving the words of a negro to me on yesterday. "Boss," said he, "de Ku Klux no trouble me. I nebber steal anything from nobody."

AN ELECTION RIOT.

The election riot last year was reported at the time in the HERALD, but not as I have heard it. The affair occurred in this way:—A large body of negro militia, officered by negroes, had been stationed in Laurensville for some time and had carried on things pretty much their own way, to the great exasperation of the whites. A house occupied by them had been converted into a fort, with loopholes, &c. On the day of the election one of the State constables—a white man—got into a row with one of the citizens and a fight ensued between them. The row attracted numerous persons to the spot and quite a crowd had gathered around the combatants, when, suddenly, the negro militia rushed into their improvised fortress, closed the doors and opened fire upon the crowd through the loopholes. Tremendous excitement followed this outrage. The whites hurried home, armed themselves and returned to the scene and a desperate conflict ensued. It was resumed on the following day and ended in the disarming of the negro militia and their withdrawal or disbandment by authority of the Governor. Some half dozen negroes were killed or wounded and two or three whites the same. Radicals have admitted to me that the conduct of the militia had been overbearingly insolent and that it required only another overt act to incense the whites beyond the power of controlling their passions. Now, whether the whites were criminal or not in this riot, it cannot possibly be tortured into a Ku Klux outrage.

BURNING OF A SCHOOL HOUSE.

Much stress is laid by the Laurens county radicals upon the burning of their school house. The negro in charge of it declares that he had previously been given notice to quit the county or he would be killed. He is living in the county to-day sound in body. However, one night the school house was burned down and instantly the Ku Klux were charged with the incendiarism. Not a living soul has ever asserted that he saw the men who did it. It is stated, however, that the members of the negro church to which the school was attached had had a row about it only a few evenings before it was burned, and the whites believe that some of them set it on fire in revenge for not having their own way about it. It is scarcely rational to suppose that white men would have destroyed it when they were fully aware that they would have to furnish the money to rebuild it. All the taxes paid by the negroes of Laurens county in a year could not have purchased the nails with which to fasten the planks together.

NO CONFIDENCE IN THE AUTHORITIES.

In Laurens county I hear the same complaint I have heard in Newberry county—namely, an utter want of confidence in the officials placed over the people by the Governor or by the votes of the negro. They run the machinery of the government in the interests of the blacks, and the whites—who own all the property—are only thought of in connection with the taxes. Governor Scott is held in supreme contempt by the whites everywhere. He is charged with duplicity and double dealing, with saying one thing to the whites and the exact opposite to the blacks, while he does everything to satisfy his political party.

GOVERNOR SCOTT'S MALADMINISTRATION.

I do not pretend to say that in all the disturbances which have taken place the whites have been wholly blameless. Undoubtedly, they have done some things which they ought not to have done. But some allowance must be made for human nature. Men are likely to become exasperated when their barns, houses, stables, &c., are burned to the ground, and after they have succeeded in getting the criminals convicted see the Governor turn them loose. I have conversed with some of the most respectable citizens of Newberry and Laurens counties—men whom to doubt would be equivalent to pronouncing the entire Southern people liars and scoundrels—and in all cases the same complaint has been made. The laws of the State are bad enough, they say, but let them be fairly enforced and there will be no Ku Klux. They declare it to be a notorious fact that any negro who possesses political influence can commit crime with impunity. If even their offence is so atrocious that the negro juries are compelled to convict Governor Scott stands ready with a pardon to set them free. Just previous to the last election (by way of illustration), several negroes in Newberry county were convicted of rioting. They were sentenced to the penitentiary. It so happened that they were influential in politics and they were turned loose.

KU KLUX CONFESSIONS.

Put together all the facts I have narrated and say whether there is any community in the Western States which would have resisted the temptation to take the law into their own hands. You will hear a great deal about what the prisoners arrested confess. As I telegraphed you, some of them undoubtedly admitted that they belonged to the Ku Klux organization, but none have said that their object was political. Reports of the character of their confession, as published in the Union, of Columbia, cannot be relied upon, for that paper is notorious for its efforts to reduce the whites into abject submission to the negroes. Its editor is a carpet-bagger, who has fattened off the plunder of the State and is interested in keeping up political agitation so that his party may remain in power. I do not attempt to lessen the force of any confession; I merely propose to state the facts. It would be folly to justify any acts of violence perpetrated by the Ku Klux; it would be criminal to ignore the provocation for them. They are the result of gross mismanagement, and martial law for the purpose of suppressing them is, under the circumstances, a virtual endorsement of such misgovernment.

POSSIBILITY OF ARMED RESISTANCE.

And now one word more before I close. It is intimated in the proclamation of the President that an insurrection exists in Newberry, Laurens, York, Union, Chesterfield, Chester, Spartanburg, Lancaster and Fairfield counties. I dare the most prejudiced radical to assert that a single armed band has been encountered by the United States soldiers. The entire federal force in the district does not exceed one thousand men, and these, in small squads, scour the country by night and make arrests with impunity. If the people were disposed to resist the government they could annihilate this little force in a single night; but thus far they have submitted quietly. True enough, apprehensions are expressed lest the young men who have been driven from their homes, or whose relatives have been arrested, become desperate and inaugurate a guerilla warfare. Such a finale to the deplorable era inaugurated is not impossible; but it must be said, in simple justice to them, that the influential citizens are counselling quiet acquiescence in everything done by the military authorities.

THE MEDLICOTT MURDER TRIAL IN KANSAS.

Review of the Case.

The jury in the case of Dr. Medlicott, after being out from half-past nine o'clock on Wednesday night until half-past eight o'clock Thursday morning, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The jury could not consistently have found a verdict for any lesser degree under the circumstances, as the laws of Kansas make killing by poison murder. One juror stated that he was in favor of murder in the second degree, but yielded to the opinions of the other twelve. A motion for a new trial was made, and as it will probably not be granted by Judge Bassett the case will go to the Supreme Court. A large number of exceptions were taken to the rulings of the Court during the progress of the trial, and it is not improbable that some of these rulings may be decided to have been erroneous. For instance, there was one rather curious piece of testimony. Johnson, the cell mate of Medlicott, was not allowed to state what Medlicott said in his sleep, but was permitted to state what he told Medlicott he had said in his sleep. These somnambulic revelations had, doubtless, their full influence upon the minds of the jurors. There are other points upon which the counsel for the defence confidently expect to obtain from the Supreme Court a reversal of the judgment.

The case, taken in all its details, is one of the most singular and interesting in the annals of criminal jurisprudence. A brief epitome of the leading facts connected with it may not be uninteresting.

Isaac M. Ruth had married, as his second wife, the divorced wife of Mr. Seymour Voullaire, of this city, at a time when Voullaire was supposed to be in a dying condition from a pistol ball fired by Ruth. Several months afterward Ruth and his wife removed to Lawrence, Kansas, where Ruth had resided before the war. Ruth obtained a situation as bookkeeper in the office of the Lawrence Tribune, and was a quiet, industrious man of business.

About the same time a young physician, named John J. Medlicott, located at Lawrence and commenced the practice of his profession. He was about thirty years of age, well educated, of good address, manners and appearance. His wife was about twenty years his senior—a quiet, patient, unassuming woman. He had married her in Maryland, against the remonstrance of her friends, who believed her little fortune of five or six thousand dollars had more to do with Medlicott's choice than affection for the woman. The young physician obtained a fair practice and was a member of the Episcopal church.

Medlicott became the family physician of Ruth, and his account book, produced in Court, showed that he made no charge for his services, although his visits were as frequent as twice a day. Indeed, so frequent were his visits to Mrs. Ruth, and so uniformly were the doors locked and the curtains drawn, that the neighbors gossiped about it, and surmised that there was a criminal intimacy between the parties.

In December last, Medlicott's wife died very suddenly, and it is remarkable that her symptoms strongly resembled those of Ruth at his death, four months later. Dark hints were thrown out at the time, but little was said, and the body was interred at Lawrence. The cause of her death was stated to be apoplexy, but a physician who was there at the time declares that no symptoms of apoplexy were observable. In the memorandum book in which Ruth wrote his last letter is a penciled note of the death of Mrs. Medlicott, from which he wrote her obituary in the newspaper, and it is there stated that she died of apoplexy. There can be no doubt that Medlicott himself furnished the dates and cause of death to Ruth.

After the death of his wife, the doctor became still more attentive to his patient, who, according to her own statement, was afflicted with multitudinous sores in various parts of her body, and spent a great part of her time in bed. Yet it appears she frequently attended dances, and sometimes rode out with the doctor in his buggy. Notwithstanding the gossip of the town, it does not appear that Ruth was jealous of the attentions of the doctor to his wife, but remained on friendly terms with him up to the hour of his death.

On the 25th of April, in the afternoon, Mrs. Ruth went to Leavenworth on a visit. That night Ruth and Medlicott played three games of chess at the house of the former, and they parted between nine and ten o'clock. The next morning Ruth was found dead in his bed, with froth and blood oozing from his mouth. Of course the family physician was the first person sent for, and his conduct in the presence of the dead excited remark.

The strongest feature of the whole case is the letter written by Ruth to his wife, just before he died, informing her that Medlicott had given him a quinine powder half an hour before, and requesting her, in case of his death, to have his body examined. In this letter he describes his symptoms with some minuteness, and states that the clock has just struck eleven. The memorandum book was found lying on his coat, on the piano, with his vest and pants lying on it. The question will at once arise, why did he not call to his assistance the physician who slept next door, within a few feet of his room? By doing so he might have saved his life. He, however, strange as it may appear, spent the last moments of consciousness in writing a letter which, on the trial, was the most convincing evidence that he was murdered.

As soon as the letter was discovered Medlicott was arrested and lodged in jail. He immediately sent for a lawyer, and the result of the conference was that the lawyer had Mrs. Ruth taken to his own house immediately on her return from Leavenworth, and before she had seen the corpse of her husband. What transpired between the lawyer and the lady has not been revealed, but the prisoner subsequently stated that the lawyer assured him "there was no danger."

In the cell in which Medlicott was confined was a young man named Henry Johnson, alias Sperry—the same man who was fined in the United States Circuit Court in this city about a year ago for defrauding the revenue department. Johnson was imprisoned on a charge of burglary and larceny. He became satisfied of Medlicott's guilt from hearing him talk in his sleep. The spirits of the dead haunted him in his dreams. The apparition of his wife hovered over him in his midnight slumbers, and he started up with glaring eyeballs and exclaimed, "O God, Sarah! are you here?" The dying agonies of Ruth were re-enacted in his dreamy imagination, and he would smooth the drapery of his couch and say, "Be quiet, Ruth! Take this, and it will do you good!"

Johnson, who is described as a professional burglar in appearance, conceived the idea of winning his own freedom by obtaining satisfactory evidences of the guilt of his fellow prisoner. He succeeded in gaining Medlicott's confidence and in obtaining from him letters that are a virtual confession of guilt. One of these letters was a glowing lovesick epistle to Mrs. Ruth, written, as he stated on the stand, to change the current of her feelings against him. To understand this expression it is necessary to know that the newspapers had published a report that Mrs. Ruth had vowed vengeance against the murderer of her husband, and had sworn her children over his coffined corpse to avenge his death. These fearful threats explain why Medlicott was so anxious to mollify her—why he wrote in one of the intercepted letters that he "could not go to trial without knowing what this woman will swear to."

The analysis of the contents of the stomach made by the chemists showed that Ruth had died of morphine poison, and from a subsequent examination of another portion of the body discovered the presence of atropine, as testified by the chemist. The body of Mrs. Medlicott was also exhumed and it is said that these two poisons were discovered. It appears that the mixture of these two poisons will have the effect of preventing the usual post-mortem appearances produced by either, although the one is frequently used as an antidote for the other.

These and numerous minor facts and circumstances were carefully gathered by the prosecuting attorney, and on the trial were presented to the jury in such a clear and forcible manner that no doubt remained of the guilt of the accused, and the verdict was "murder in the first degree."

The defence attempted to account for the death of Ruth on three theories—first, that he died from the effects of the quinine, taken in the worst stage of congestive chill; second, that he took morphine by mistake for quinine; third, that he committed suicide and wrote the dying letter to save his life insurance policy. In support of the first theory they proved by several respectable physicians that quinine sometimes killed when injudiciously administered. In support of the second theory, that morphine was taken by mistake, it was shown that both quinine and morphine were in the room, in boxes resembling each other, and it was easy for one to be mistaken for the other. The theory of suicide was sustained by ingenious facts and arguments.

The defence was very ably conducted by Judge Thatcher and Mr. W. W. Nevison, of Lawrence, assisted by Mr. Johnson, of Garnett. The prosecution showed equal if not superior ability. It should have been mentioned that the trial took place at the town of Garnett, Anderson county, the accused having demanded a change of venue from Lawrence. Mr. John Hutchings, Prosecuting Attorney of Douglas county, prepared the case with a great deal of labor and ingenuity, and made a most excellent speech in opening the arguments. Mr. Thomas P. Fenlon, of Leavenworth, in his masterly speech to the jury, made it apparent to all who heard him that he is one of the best criminal lawyers in the Union. His argument, it was said, did more than anything else to convince the jury. Colonel C. E. Mason, Prosecuting Attorney of Franklin county, rendered valuable services to the State in searching authorities and giving advice in the conduct of the case. Judge Bassett, who presided, conducted the proceedings with the utmost decorum, and showed himself to be a thorough jurist and an impartial and clear-headed judge. The case, it is presumed, will go to the Supreme Court.

The trial was, as before remarked, an exceedingly interesting one, and presented features entirely new in the annals of criminal trials. No case that has occurred in this part of the country for many years has excited so much interest among the people, and for this reason the above brief review is deemed proper at the close.

THE ALLEGED MURDER IN THE NINETEENTH WARD.

In the case of John Rourke, late of 305 East Forty-sixth street, who is alleged to have been fatally beaten during a drunken quarrel on Saturday night, no investigation has yet been held, and will not till Monday next. Captain Gunner, of the Nineteenth precinct, has four or five witnesses detained in his station house, and will keep them till the inquest takes place.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET, }
TUESDAY, Oct. 31—6 P. M. }

MONEY IRREGULAR.

Money was easy during the usual hours for making engagements, and borrowers supplied themselves readily at six and seven per cent. Later in the afternoon there was a pressure to lend, and several transactions were reported at as low as four per cent; but before the close of banking hours the rate underwent a sharp turn and seven per cent was actively bid for money at the close. The sudden scarcity at this time was reported to be the result of a calling in of loans by the Broadway Bank, which institution will pay to-morrow (November 1) about three million dollars of interest on the city debt as well as the principal of some of the city revenue bonds. The changed condition of the market was also due, doubtless, to the reversal of the speculative position of some of the leading operators on the Stock Exchange.

Prime commercial was quoted 10 a 18 per cent discount for the several grades.

Foreign exchange was weak and lower in actual business, through a pressure of bills to obtain gold for use in the gold market, but asking rates were nominally the same.

GOLD STRONG—111⅝ A 112¼.

The gold market was strong and advanced to 112¼, the upward movement being only briefly interrupted by a reaction to 112. The "short" interest became alarmed at the scarcity of cash gold and took the alternative of covering, producing a rise for the day of five-eighths per cent. The stronger feeling was assisted also by the light disbursements so far on account of November interest. Borrowers paid one-eighth per cent for the use of gold in some instances this afternoon, and late this evening 3.32 was bid for the use of more to-morrow. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	111⅝	2 P. M.	112¼
11 A. M.	111¾	3 P. M.	112
12 M.	111⅞	3:50 P. M.	112¼
1 P. M.	112⅛	4 P. M.	112¼
1:32 P. M.	112¼	5:30 P. M.	112⅛ a 112¼

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from flat to ⅛ per cent for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$29,211,000
Gold balances	1,376,936
Currency balances	1,546,100

GOVERNMENTS STRONG.

The government list was strong, in sympathy with the upward turn in gold, but without important improvement or change in prices. The following were the closing street quotations:—United States currency sixes, 111⅜ a 111½; do. do., 1881, registered, 115⅛ a 115⅜; do. do., coupon, 116⅛ a 116¼; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 111 a 111⅛; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 114⅝ a 114⅞; do. do., 1864, do. do., 114⅛ a 114⅜; do. do., 1865, do. do., 114¾ a 115; do. do., registered, January and July, 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 113½ a 113⅝; do. do., 1867, do. do., 113⅝ a 113¾; do. do., 1868, do. do., 113⅝ a 113⅞; do. ten-forties, registered, 108¾ a 109⅛; do. do., coupon, 109⅛ a 109⅜.

STOCKS IRREGULAR AND LOWER.

The stock market was strong up to the time the money market became active, as above noted, and the early speculation was decidedly buoyant, Lake Shore taking the lead and advancing to 100⅜. The general list improved one-half per cent as compared with the prices at the beginning of business. The first indication of weakness was given by Lake Shore, which was pressed for sale on the refusal of the Trust Company to give receipts for stock filed for the award of the 40 per cent stock dividend. The company have not been able as yet to prepare the scrip certificates, and as the first instalment of ten per cent falls due to-morrow a number of the shares of stock were offered for registration. To allow ample margin of time for the payment of subscriptions the Stock Exchange decided to call the stock "with privilege on" until Monday next, November 6. This will doubtless enable stockholders and the Trust Company to adjust their affairs. The stock, however, fell to 98⅜, occasioning weakness all around, the depression being helped by the sharp inquiry for money at the close, especially as the impression gained ground that the "bear-bull" clique, yielding to constitutional instincts, had unloaded during the strong market of the past few days and were now disposed to operate according to their time-honored principles.

BEATEN TO DEATH.

Man's Inhumanity to Woman—Horrible Atrocity at Sing Sing—A Wife Murdered by Her Husband—The Demon of Intemperance Again—More Work for the Grand Jury.

Last Monday, at Sing Sing, Coroner Smith held an inquest on the body of a woman named Julia Wise, whose death on the previous day resulted from brutal injuries inflicted upon her by her husband, Richard Wise.

It seems that the parties, who were inhabitants of what is known as "Nigger alley," were of dissipated habits, and, owing to the frequency of their drunken orgies and quarrellings, had rendered themselves obnoxious to their not over fastidious neighbors. On Thursday afternoon Wise and the deceased drank copiously, and during the inevitable fight which followed the inhuman husband took the deceased in his arms and which skirted a steep bank on the opposite side. Having staggered down to the dock some hours later Wise met J. G. Many, the village collector, and told him that his (Wise's) wife was lying dead near the house. Believing that something was wrong Many at once proceeded to the place named, and there found the wretched woman in a state of semi-intoxication lying where her husband had so heinously thrown her. Although conscious the sufferer appeared to be laboring under intense pain and frequently complained of her back. She was assisted into the squalid hovel, which for her and her family served the purpose of a home, and from which she was destined never to emerge again except as a corpse. Next day (Friday) the husband again, and while both were still under the influence of liquor, attacked the deceased, whom he dragged to the floor, and, having beaten her in an inhuman manner, with a pair of heavy boots. This was done in presence of their daughter, a child of ten years, who subsequently testified against the accused. The latter was arrested on Saturday evening, after the ante-mortem statement of the deceased had been taken. The woman lingered until the following morning, when she expired, after intense suffering.

TRAMPLED UPON THE PROSTRATE WOMAN

A post-mortem examination of the body was made by two of the village physicians, who found the internal organs

A MASS OF CLOTTED BLOOD.

After hearing the testimony adduced the jury rendered a verdict that "deceased came to her death from injuries inflicted by her husband." Wise was accordingly committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Deceased was about forty years of age and leaves three children. The prisoner is about the same age, and has always borne a bad reputation in the village. Both parties were addicted to the frequent abuse of strong drink, the prisoner especially being regarded as a pest in the neighborhood.

It is understood that in addition to his natural viciousness when under the influence of liquor Wise had a special reason for kicking his wife to death. Well authenticated report says that the unfortunate woman recently which she owned near the dock, and having obtained the proceeds, refused to hand them over to her husband. This money the deceased is said to have carried in her bosom for safety, and it is believed that the prisoner resolved on the diabolical crime of murdering her for the purpose of obtaining it. It is also asserted on good authority that Wise was compelled to leave Ireland precipitately on account of having killed a man with whom he quarrelled there. Some of the relatives of the murdered man alluded to are at present living in the village of Sing Sing.

THE CITY COMPLICATIONS.

Hagerty and Baulch in the General Sessions.

The Case of the Stolen Vouchers Adjourned Over Until Monday Next—Izzy Lazarus Indicted as a Repeater—Waiting for the Grand Jury.

The Forthcoming Report of the Committee of Seventy.

The Judiciary and Heavy-Salaried Clerks To Go Short of Funds for a Few Months.

It was expected that something of an important character would take place at the Court of General Sessions yesterday, consequently there was quite a large crowd in attendance, only a small portion of whom were, however, admitted. It was understood that the Grand Jury were expected to bring in an indictment against some one or more members of the old municipal Ring, or take action on some matter connected with the same, and this induced the public to be on the lookout for fresh developments in the drama that is at present being played about the City Hall by some of our late rulers.

Recorder Hackett was on the bench promptly at eleven o'clock, and occupying a seat beside him was the

HON. JUDGE BEDFORD.

Messrs. Fellows and Sullivan, Assistant District Attorneys, next came into Court, quickly followed by counsel for both Hagerty and Baulch, the alleged purloiners of the vouchers from Comptroller Connolly's office.

The two prisoners were placed at the bar shortly afterwards, and appeared to be in the best of spirits.

THEY LAUGHED AND CHATTED WITH THE UTMOST EASE.

Counsel for the prisoners, addressing the Court, said—If the Court please I represent Messrs. Hagerty and Baulch, the defendants in two indictments, which were presented by the Grand Jury and filed in the court yesterday. The defendants, as the Court is undoubtedly perfectly well aware, are charged with burglarious entrance into the office of the Comptroller of the city of New York in the month of September last, and with having feloniously abstracted from that office certain public papers. The indictments having only been found yesterday, and having received a notification to appear here this morning and plead on the part of the defendants, I am unable to decide now what course to pursue in reference to this indictment. They are exceedingly lengthy, and I have no doubt they are drawn with all the skill and ingenuity of the District Attorney's office—and that skill is very great—the combined skill of himself and able assistants. I desire that the matter may lay over in reference to the plea until Monday next. It will take a day to copy these indictments, and I am so pressed with business that I could not possibly read them so as to be here before Saturday, and as the next term of this Court commences on Monday, and as the public interest will not suffer by a postponement of this kind, and as my learned friends on the other side do not oppose this indulgence—it seems to me hardly to be an indulgence; it is more a right to ask the Court, with all deference, to allow the matter to PASS OVER UNTIL MONDAY NEXT.

I will then decide what course to pursue.

Recorder HACKETT—I think the request a very reasonable one, and it is ordered accordingly.

COUNSEL—Then it is understood that the defendants will not be required to be found until Monday next?

District Attorney FELLOWS—Meantime they are committed without bail.

COUNSEL—They are committed. We make no application as yet for bail. They are committed—that's all. I intend at the proper time to make a motion to admit them to bail. They are committed to bail merely.

District Attorney FELLOWS—The case stands over until Monday.

COUNSEL—That's all; they are committed in the meantime.

The prisoners were then removed.

This finished the voucher case for the present.

After considerable

that body came into court at ten minutes of eleven o'clock, District Attorney Garvin and General Barlow, counsel for the Committee of Seventy, arrived almost immediately afterwards. After reporting that there was no further business before them for consideration or action they were discharged for the term.

It was understood that the Grand Jury found three indictments against Israel Lazarus and three against another party (not yet arrested) for violating the Registry law.

Judge Garvin took charge of the papers, and not only

REFUSED TO ALLOW THEM TO BE PUBLISHED,

but denied the reporters even a glimpse of them. It is, therefore, reasonable to conclude they are of the highest importance.

District Attorney GARVIN stated that there was a statute which provided that those cases could be tried in the Oyer and Terminer, and he moved that they be sent there for trial.

The Recorder granted the motion, and the Court adjourned till this (Wednesday) morning.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

The Forthcoming Report—Meeting Last Evening—The Assembly List Complete—No "Gouging" or Falsifying Accounts on Tuesday Next.

To-morrow evening this committee are to meet in Cooper Institute to render an account of the stewardship committed to their care two months ago. This voluminous report is in process of compilation, but will not be ready for publication until it is presented to the town meeting on Thursday evening. It will set out with the old familiar tale of fraud and corruption, will recite the circumstances which led to the call for the meeting of September 4, out of which this Committee of Seventy sprung. It will then detail their meetings in the Chamber of Commerce and in their present quarters, the appointment of the several sub-committees and their several proceedings. It will dwell very largely on the important work of the Committee on Elections and the Law and Remedies committees and one or two others of the sub-committees, and will of course applaud themselves, and especially their vice president for putting (virtually) Andrew H. Green into the Comptroller's office. It will also dwell on the importance of John H. Keyser's transfer (?) of $600,000 to the Committee, which transfer now, by the way, seems to have dwindled down to that of against William M. Tweed. The prosecution of this suit, instituted by Mr. Jackson S. Schultz, will also be referred to briefly.

TO INFLUENCE THE ELECTIONS

on Tuesday, and will therefore be a campaign document pure and simple. On Monday night the Sub-Committee on Elections had a meeting at No. [illegible] Broadway, at which several political delegations presented their claims for the approval and endorsement of their Assembly nominees. There was considerable "jawing" between contesting delegations; but the committee reduced order out of chaos and appointed or endorsed eight out of the twenty-one Assemblymen, leaving but two vacancies, which were filled last evening by the committee, which met at six o'clock and continued its session until the meeting of the Seventy at eight P. M. The sub-committee then reported their list complete, as follows:—

COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY—ASSEMBLY NOMINATIONS.

Dist.	Candidate.	Dist.	Candidate.
1	James Hayes.	12	Henry E. Crampton.
2	H. G. Leake.	13	Geo. H. Mackay.
3	Henry F. West.	14	John A. Foley.
4	John Becker.	15	Fred. [illegible]
5	David S. [illegible]	16	Nich. Haughton.
6	Isaac Wood.	17	Thos. A. [illegible]
7	Horatio [illegible]	18	Samuel J. Tilden.
8	Conrad Geib.	19	Horatio Seymour.
9	Stephen [illegible]	20	[illegible] D. [illegible]
10	Wm. [illegible]	21	Wm. A. Whitbeck.
11	Colonel Hugh C. Hawkins.

The ticket of the democratic reformers differs considerably from that of the Seventy, the two parting on the nominees in the Second, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth and Twentieth districts. In some of the districts there are, and will be, unless the interests are harmonized before the day of election, four candidates. The Committee on Elections and the District Councils of Political Reform are trying to unite the rival nominations upon some known and honest candidate.

At eight P. M. the General Committee met and received the final reports of the several sub-committees, preparatory to their incorporation in the report of the Seventy on Thursday. The committee has received over fifty thousand dollars since its starting. It is not true, however, as reported, that the Committee of Seventy will wind up their business on Thursday evening. Resolutions are to be presented, thanking them for their labors and the results attained, and the places of those who have resigned on the committee will be filled by the meeting. Action was taken last night upon

THE PRELIMINARIES FOR THAT EVENT.

Colonel Stebbins, chairman of the committee, is to preside on that occasion, and addresses will be delivered by William M. Evarts, Charles O'Conor, Samuel J. Tilden and others. The following which had been previously prepared, was referred to but not read before the Committee last evening and was ordered to be sent to the press:—

The Committee appeal to all citizens, of every business, trade and calling, to close their respective places of business on Tuesday, November 7, and to make the election itself their sole business for that day, to the end that a full and fair vote and an honest canvass at the close of the polls may be secured. The occasion, they say, is critical. The responsibility that rests upon us is momentous. The contest is a direct and open one between the great mass of honest citizens who labor for their living and an organized gang of political plunderers, whose only calling is to prey upon the City Treasury and to enrich themselves without labor at the public cost. The Committee deem it of the utmost importance that every honest citizen, whatever his occupation, should be perfectly free on election day to devote himself to the public service. They believe that by this means thousands of votes will be gained to the cause of reform, and that by the numerous and determined presence of honest voters at the polls and during the canvass, repeating, false registering and ballot-box stuffing will be checked, and the Tammany Ring will be restrained from attempting the frauds in the count, which they have threatened. The banks and other public offices which must by law be kept open are also urged to make such arrangements as will enable every employé to deposit his vote.

HENRY G. STEBBINS, Chairman.
WM. F. HAVEMEYER, Vice Chairman.
ROSWELL D. HATCH, Secretary.

for the Supreme Court Judgeship, resigned his position on the Committee of Seventy last night, and his defection was the subject of comment among members. With the close of election day will cease the peculiar duties of the Committee on Elections, and any stray work which they might be required to do will devolve upon the Committee on Remedies.

AROUND THE CITY HALL.

Further Demands for Money—The Judiciary and Clerks Whose Salaries Have Been Raised Not to Receive Any Money for Several Months.

The same general apathy which has marked the precincts of the City Hall Park for the past few days was to be observed yesterday in almost all the departments. True there was a little more crowding now and then. Jimmy Fitzgibbons was around large as life and as loud as life, and he insisted on the way he was going to vote to be the true way. The men who did not know him said he was crazy. Perhaps he was. He knew, however, of what he was talking.

AT THE COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

Here several delegations waited on Deputy Comptroller Green. The most important was one of the great manipulators of the reformers—viz., Ben Wood, Jimmy O'Brien, Hen Opp, of Washington Market, and another young gentleman, name unknown, as is often said of men found drowned. Another delegation waited on Mr. Green. They came from the Department of the Chief of the Inspectors of Street Improvements. They came in large force, and were much exercised, not to say excited, at the idea that they were not immediately received and treated with. They became somewhat demonstrative, and it was found necessary to send for the police to preserve order among them. Mr. Green then informed them that he would examine the accounts, and those whose accounts were found correct, as many as could, would be paid to-day, and the others in as rapid order as possible.

ANOTHER HOWL

has been raised on account of salaries for the Judiciary. Yesterday Recorder Hackett applied for his check and learned that he had been overpaid; that the Police Justices and many others whose salaries had been raised by action of the Common Council could not obtain any money for months to come. This, it appears, is done on the ground that the Common Council had raised the salaries contrary to law, and that the Legislature had never legalized the action of the City Fathers. Of course this has caused much wailing and gnashing of teeth. But the Deputy Comptroller holds firm and will not give in one inch. He has already cut off some eighty or more attachés of the Courts and secured a saving of $80,000 to the city and county.

AT THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE

there was a great deal of anxious inquiry as to whether the Sheriff had made any further arrest or levy in the now great cases, but in this regard the situation remained unchanged. Ingersoll is expected to be in town to-day, and will at once be taken possession of by the Sheriff. It is rumored that he has his bail all ready and will "face the music." Woodward and Garvey, it is now thought, have gone to stay, and cannot be caught. The Sheriff has levied on Garvey's property to satisfy a small judgment against him, but some of his friends claim that he is not far off, and will eventually return and satisfy in all particulars. George Miller and his little brother were flying around the Sheriff's office yesterday, apparently much excited, but it was not determined whether it was on their own account or somebody else's.

THE PHILADELPHIA FRAUDS.

Tammany's Rival—Latest Developments in Philadelphia's Latest Sensation—How Public Servants are "Gouged" by Means of City Warrants.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31, 1871.

The latest version of a very old story is the following. It is recommended as a consolation to brokers "who were ruined by the Chicago fire":—

This is the cow with the crumpled horn
That "waxed" Mrs. Leary out in the barn
On Dekoven street, in Chicago;
That kicked the lamp, with one fell blow,
Into the hay, and emitted a glow
That damaged the prospects of brokers.

Yes, this is the fire that reached the bell
In the Court House tower,
That tolled the knell
Of many in power;
And this is the reason so many firms went
"Up the spout" that Chicago bent.

And Yerkes was ruined, "burned out." And, according to Yerkes, the "money changing" genius of Philadelphia, the Chicago fire was the only agent that brought him on his knees before creditors. This was the reason he failed to come to time when the City Treasurer called on him for the balance of $478,000 of city warrants then in Yerkes' hands for negotiation, but which, it seems, had already been negotiated and the proceeds thereof lost in stock speculations.

A HOWL FOR VENGEANCE

went up from every hearthstone and every business house in Philadelphia when it was publicly proclaimed that Marcer, the City Treasurer, had let Yerkes have the warrants to negotiate without receiving collateral or security of any kind in return. Marcer is a republican and has held the position but a year or two, and like all his predecessors entrusted all the business of the office to

who has been the chief clerk in the City Treasurer's office through several administrations. When former City Treasurers found it convenient to retire from the office by reason of the expiration of their terms and "subs" were incontinently packed off to make room for political retainers of another faith Jones the blest, Jones the good, Jones the honest, was retained, because "he knew how to manage the office." Yes, he did know how to manage the office—no one knew better how it was done—as the sequel has shown but too plainly the past week. By a time-honored arrangement Jones was allowed to run the machine. It is estimated that the office is worth to the City Treasurer—in addition to the salary, which is $2,500—about $18,000 per year. This much can be safely got out of the vast sums that pass through his hands annually. By taking bigger chances he may double this sum, and at the same time get himself in prison; but eighteen thousand is about all he can get and keep out of prison. All that is required of him in return is to have the supervision of the office, sign warrants and conduct the financial department of the business, which he does through the handy Jones.

Left to his own discretion, it is not to be wondered at that the chief clerk cast his eyes about for a chance to make an honest (?) penny. A morally and lawfully wrong system of paying public servants is in vogue in Philadelphia. Every policeman, office clerk and school teacher in the employ of the city is paid, not in cash, but in city warrants, "I O U's," which he innocently takes to the City Treasury for payment. He is met by the withering reply to his request for cash, "We have no money, sir; there is no appropriation made."

To a man of family, depending on his salary for the support of his family, it will be seen at once that this is rather rough, and he goes out, knowing the warrants to be good, with the intention of getting his warrant discounted. Possibly he goes next door, to Jay Cooke, and is told that "We do no business of the kind," and so he proceeds from Cooke's to B. K. Jamison's, Sattler's Drexel's and other banking houses in Third street, and receives the same answer everywhere, until finally he stumbles into Yerkes'. He has hit the spot at last, and succeeds in getting his money, less

A DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT.

Having found out "how it is done" he comes to Yerkes the next month, as soon as he receives his warrant. In this way Yerkes, through his friend Jones, has driven a very nice business in discounting city warrants, and "dividend day" between Jones and Yerkes must have been a very interesting occasion.

"Now, Yerkes," says Jones "you needn't return these warrants, but we (that's Jones) will let you negotiate them. The act of Assembly will not allow city warrants to be negotiated at less than par. You can get that for them, and whatever you get over par for them, why, we'll give to the poor." It frequently happened within the past year that city warrants went one and one-eighth per cent above par, which little margin on $500,000 footed up a very handsome sum "for the poor." Again, the City Treasurer receives an issue of city warrants which he is instructed to sell for cash. Yerkes hears

tap two squares distant. He appears on the scene and half a million dollars' worth of city warrants are transferred from the City Treasurer's to Yerkes' office to be negotiated. This thing runs along smoothly and successfully for a number of years, but the demon of speculation took possession of Yerkes, and, with "Reading stock on the brain," he rushed into the whirlpool that has swamped so many. All his available funds were soon gobbled by "Reading" or "Pennsylvania" fluctuations, and, the city warrants, being handy and easy to get, were put up as collateral for stock, Yerkes, in technical phrase, was "bulling the market." Stocks depreciated, the Chicago fire sent everything down with a rush, and one morning C. T. Yerkes, Jr., awakened to find himself

BANKRUPT.

The news of Yerkes' failure spread at once, and but a short time elapsed before his office was filled with anxious creditors and newspapers reporters, the HERALD representative among the latter. Yerkes was cool, and very frankly informed me that he had failed and that his affairs were in a very bad condition—how bad he did not know. The result of my interview, a brief telegram, was published in the HERALD at the time.

This failure inspired "the street," "the coast of Barbary," as it is called in slang parlance among Philadelphia brokers, with general distrust. Every one suspected his neighbor, and for two or three days it was feared a general smash would occur. The storm subsided for the time, but broke out anew when the startling rumor was noised abroad that Yerkes had lost $478,000 in city warrants entrusted to him for negotiation. Business was at a standstill for that day at least, and every one discussed the affair with flashing eyes and quivering lips, for a $478,000 "irregularity" is no common one in the Quaker City.

"A COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY"

was appointed by councils to investigate the rumor, and the arrest of Yerkes for embezzlement was the upshot of the investigation. An informal examination was had and Yerkes held in to answer the charge. The investigation proceeded and the absence of the warrants was proved beyond a doubt. Yerkes had a second examination Saturday last, which terminated in the accused being held in eighty thousand dollars bail—fifty thousand on the charge of embezzlement and thirty thousand on the charge of "larceny as bailee:" and thus ends for the time the greatest financial sensation Philadelphia has experienced for years.

Mr. Marcer, the City Treasurer, has not yet been arrested. He should have been arrested first. What has Mr. Yerkes to do with the city? Is he responsible to the city authorities for the city warrants? By no means. Mr. Marcer, the City Treasurer, is the man the city must look to for the warrants. Yerkes was Marcer's agent, nothing more, nothing less, and what reason had the Investigating Committee to order Yerkes' arrest is more than the people of Philadelphia can understand. I do not wish to be understood as trying to shield Yerkes or to condemn Marcer; both are to blame. Marcer is the city's steward; he alone is accountable to the city. Yerkes is accountable to Marcer alone, not the city. The United States government might just as well order the arrest of some broker in Wall street who had been entrusted with some government bonds to sell for a private party, simply because the bonds were issued by the government. I have twice seen Marcer, who is so overcome by the

that it is impossible to get a connected history of the affair at his hands. He could only tell me this afternoon, as the tears rolled down his cheeks and his voice was trembling from emotion, that some one "had just told him that Yerkes was making arrangements to make the warrants good. But," he continued, "it may be only a rumor, and I don't wish to say anything further about it." The city of Philadelphia will lose nothing by the operation, as Marcer's sureties are good, and it is believed that Yerkes will fix the matter rather than go to the Penitentiary, a fate that looks very probable indeed at present, as the men who are investigating the affair are, some of them, on Marcer's bond, and the tenor of public opinion is a general desire for swift punishment for the guilty parties, whoever they may be proved to be.

Philadelphia for some reason is a subject of ridicule from her more progressive neighbors. Instead of adopting measures to stay the shafts of ridicule, her citizens seem determined to afford outsiders every possible opportunity to keep up the volume of fun now aimed at the Quaker City. The system now in vogue at the Treasurer's office is an unhealthy one. There is not a bank clerk in Philadelphia that would think of allowing anything expressing cash value to pass over his employer's desk without receiving collateral therefor; but Jones, a chief clerk in the City Treasurer's office, takes it upon himself to pass over to his friend Yerkes city warrants valued at $478,000, without receiving a cent's worth of collateral as security, and Mr. Marcer, the Treasurer, excuses himself from any criminality by saying to the investigating committee,

"IT IS A CUSTOM OF THE OFFICE."

A custom of the office! Well, the sooner Philadelphia public officers are relieved of the "customs" the better it will be for the taxpayers and the officials themselves.

Another "custom" in vogue in Philadelphia may well be rescinded. I refer to the payment of public servants in city warrants. It is unjust to the recipient, unjust to the taxpayer and unworthy of the second city in America.

Philadelphia is well able to pay all her public officers in cash. It is only necessary to make the estimates, cover the amount needed and raise the money by taxation. It is an outrage that a city of the wealth and importance of Philadelphia should descend to defrauding her servants out of five per cent of their salaries, for it is to all intents and purposes defrauding. It is a fact patent to all that no one can get a warrant cashed without submitting to that discount, and the sooner it is stopped the better.

Marine Disasters.

BARK ELLA MOORE, and BRIG CAIRO, it appears from the following, were not totally destroyed by fire, as before reported by cable:—

ERITH, Oct 16—An explosion occurred yesterday, shortly after 9 o'clock, on board the Ruth, of Halifax, NS, from New York, in the river, with 2600 bbls of petroleum and 100 bbls of rosin, which had anchored alongside of two brigantines, the Cairo, of Londonderry, and the Ella Moore, also laden with petroleum. The Ruth had been obliged by severe weather to keep her hatches battened down during the voyage, and the spirit escaping from the barrels must have become ignited in some manner not at present explained, and the vessel was speedily in flames. The Cairo and the Ella Moore were removed as soon as possible, but not before they had both been severely damaged by the fire—the Cairo having her aft rigging, sails and deckhouses nearly destroyed, and the Ella Moore her sails and masts much damaged. After unsuccessfully endeavoring to scuttle the Ruth, her cable was cut, and she was towed by a government tug to a spot where she could burn herself out without danger to the traffic. Three of her crew were injured by the explosion and were removed to the hospital.

SHIP TEMPLAR, Fessenden, at San Francisco from New York, had a continuation of strong westerly gales and a very heavy sea off Cape Horn; stove bulwarks and forward hatch house, and was driven back on two occasions.

SHIP CORSICA, Havener, at San Francisco from Liverpool, had a continuation of westerly gales off Cape Horn; sprung foremast, foretopgallantmast, lower mizzen topsail yard, mizzen topgallant yard and fore royal yard.

SHIP LUCY S WILLS, Pritchard, at Liverpool Oct 10 from New York, reports experienced terrific weather during the entire passage. Sept 2, had a terrific gale from NE, changing suddenly to NW, making a fearful cross sea; was struck on the port bow by a tremendous heavy sea, starting cathead, laying the ship on her beam ends, and shifting the cargo. Sept 24, lat 49 20, lon 12, had a most terrific hurricane from N and E. Ship having so much list, and not daring to heave to, scudded before it for 300 miles, which put us many miles out of her course. On the 30th, while hove to off the Scilly Islands, in a heavy gale from NW, the sea running mountains high, was struck on the starboard bow by a tremendous sea, which knocked the figurehead on one side and split part of cutwater. The ship making such bad weather, rolling both sides in the water, decided to run for Falmouth and wait for a change of weather. Arrived there the next day. Oct 5, the weather having moderated, sailed again for this port, where we arrived on the 10th inst, having had easterly winds all the way. On Sept 23, Alexander M'Kenzie fell from the foreroyal yard and was drowned.

BARK MELBOURNE, Crosby, at Philadelphia from Troon reports Oct 12, at noon, barometer 29 30; at 12:30 PM stowed foresail and wore ship head to NE, the gale raging with great violence; stowed lower foretopsail, ship bowing to under lower maintopsail and storm main spencer; blowing so hard it was impossible to take in the main lower topsail; 1:30 PM ship heading E by N to ENE and taking the sea aft the beam, making a clean breach over her; at 2 PM, blowing a perfect hurricane, barometer 28 90, starboard mainroyal backstay parted; mainmast head broke off at the eyes of rigging; maintopmast, mizzentopmast, foretopmast head and all attached went to leeward, breaking mainyard near the slings, staving port quarter boat, damaging poop deck and rail, tearing mainmast coating, and sprung mainmast 14 feet from the deck, damaging lower main rigging, foretopmast, topmast backstays, and carrying away all the port head braces; the water was now pouring in the ship by the mast coating being damaged; decks full of water, but succeeded in getting canvas and tarpaulins around, and stopped it going in; ship then had [illegible] feet water in hold; 2:30 PM, barometer 28.50, it blew the hardest, being impossible to stand against the wind; as soon as it could be done we cut away everything that was alongside, and deemed it prudent to clear the wreckage from the ship before dark; at 4 o'clock it moderated; got storm mizzen on her; ship's head came up to SSE, with a fearful sea on, ship rolling and tumbling tremendously. Oct 13, set reefed foresail, foretopmast staysail; blowing a fresh gale, and ship heading SW by WSW, with a sea running beyond description from S round to NW; 2 PM, barometer 29.20, shipped a sea which bore the ship nearly on her beam ends; started cargo between decks to leeward; chain out of lockers, and gave the ship two or three streaks list; one hour after a gentle breeze from NW, and sea smoother; bent the upper foretopsail; the one partly bent blew out of the gaskets; saved two ends of mainyard, with mainsail in damaged condition; cleared up the wreck, and set all possible sail; every sail I put upon the main was blown away this voyage; from 15th up to 27th constant strong gales from W.

SCHR CHALLENGE (of St George), Bickmore, from Calais for Fall River, before reported at Vineyard Haven 28th full of water, will discharge cargo and go on marine railway for repairs.

SCHR MARIETTA SMITH, Preston, from Elizabethport for Providence, with 177 tons coal, ran on the rocks at Hope Island 26th, and is full of water. Steamtug Charlotte & Isabella was to go to her assistance PM of 28th.

SCHR ROSCIUS, Holbrook, from Boston for Hartford, loaded with iron and salt, got into Nantucket morning of 28th ult with sails split and leaking a little. She will repair and proceed.

SCHR S H CADY—Alfred Gapp, steward, was knocked overboard from schr S H Cady 28th, in Vineyard Sound, by the gibing over of the fore boom and immediately sank. He was a German, about 30 years of age, and belonged in Jersey City.

SCHR MARY ANNA, Adams, of and from Philadelphia for Bridgeport, Ct, with a cargo of coal, collided with schr Diadem in Black Rock harbor night of 28th ult, carrying away her bowsprit.

SCHR KATEL HALL, from New York, was taken in the dry dock at Savannah yesterday (28th). Her stem was twisted, and a leak was found just below the water line; there was no other damage to the vessel. The cargo was badly damaged.

SLOOP THOS RANSOM struck a rock off Eaton's Neck, LI, 28th and sunk in 10 feet of water.

STEAMER WACCAMAW, Tucker, at Wilmington, NC, reports on the 26th Oct, discovered an abandoned schooner, loaded with lumber, off Frying-pan Shoals, and as soon as possible went to her assistance. On examination found that she was waterlogged and could not be got off. The vessel is a total loss, and although an endeavor was made to ascertain her name, it failed of success, as her stern had been carried away, supposed by collision with a passing steamer. She appeared to be a New York built schooner, and had probably been floating about with no one on board for several days. No papers or other vestige to her identification were picked up.

FALMOUTH, Oct 16—The Reina Detmers, Mulder, from New York (hides and rosin), arrived here yesterday, is leaking, and has lost main boom, sails and bulwarks.

HAVRE, Oct 15—The Lizzie Gillespie (Am), Wilson, arrived at Bordeaux from New York, reports having been obliged during a squall to throw overboard 200 sacks of wheat.

HALIFAX, Oct 30—Disasters by the gale of the 12th are still reported. William Eaton, of Yarmouth, lost the schr Volunteer off the harbor in the gale. Schr [illegible] was lost at Cape Cove, NS, and one of the crew was drowned while attempting to land.

NEWRY, Oct 16—The Solway Queen, Griffith, arrived here from New York, reports that on Oct 1, lat 43 N, lon 15 W, she shipped a heavy sea, which carried away wheel, compass, &c, stove bulwarks and did other damage.

PALERMO, Oct 13—The Mary Lucretia (Am bark), ballast, drove ashore in entering this port, and will become a total loss.

SAIGON, Oct 16, 9:15 AM. The Tsepingclipper, from Amoy for New York (dec), was abandoned Sept 22 on Dodd Reef; master and 11 men here; 2 officers and 13 men not yet; H M gunboat Teaser search made (7 masted) and cargo.

WRECK—A quantity of flour barrels were fallen in with Oct 22, lat 31 46, lon 71 30, by brig Echo, from Rio Janeiro, at Baltimore, which picked up three marked Quaker City Mills, Philadelphia; two marked L H in blue, and another Henry L Gill, Philadelphia, and LH in red.

Notice to Mariners.

QUARANTINE ON THE SUEZ CANAL.

LONDON, Oct 17, 1871.

Messrs. S L MERCHANT & CO., Transit Agents for the Suez Universal Ship Canal Company, 76 South street, New York:—

DEAR SIRS—Pursuant to instructions we have just received from Messrs. C & A Bazin, of Port Said, we beg again to call your attention to the necessity—now more urgently than ever existing—that the bills of health of steam or sailing ships bound for Egypt, or via the Suez Canal, should be in strict conformity with the general regulations adopted by the Sanitary Board of Egypt, especially under the circumstances which have called forth the circular of which we recently forwarded you a copy.

Messrs Bazin fear that commanders of ships may not be sufficiently alive to the imperative necessity of looking most closely to this being done, the question being a most serious one, involving a quarantine of from 10 to 15 days. While they have hitherto by their exertions avoided any serious consequences they wish us to point out to their friends that they cannot undertake, if this attention is not given to the subject, that they will be equally successful in future.

We are, dear sirs, yours respectfully,

CORY BROS & CO.

We beg to annex a textual copy of a circular addressed to the various European Consuls resident in Egypt, under date of the 5th of September, 1871, by Colucci Bey, President of the Sanitary Board of Egypt, which has especial reference to the recent breaking out of the cholera on the eastern coast of the Red Sea and in Europe.

By this circular notice is given that any ships bound westward which may have visited any of the places therein mentioned as infected with cholera will, though bearing clean bills of health, have to undergo, either at Gibel Tor or elsewhich, a quarantine or observation, as the case may be; but mail steamers and ships-of-war bearing clean bills of health will be excepted and allowed to pass the canal under quarantine.

But we desire especially to warn steamship owners that the Egyptian sanitary authorities will henceforth be stricter than ever in enforcing the quarantine regulations wherever the ships may come from. No ship should sail without carrying bills of health in perfect order; such documents should state very correctly the number of people composing the crew and passengers on board, and the written declaration which the commander is required to hand to the sanitary authorities before his ship can obtain free pratique should be made to correspond with the bill of health. The great majority of quarantine delays arise from non-observance of this precaution.

Further and special instructions may be had on application to us or to our London representatives, Messrs Cory Bros & Co, 150 Leadenhall street, E. C. or Messrs S L Merchant & Co., New York.

C & A BAZIN, Port Said and Suez,
Steamship Agents, coal furnishers, bankers and wharfingers,
Lloyd's Agency.

PORT SAID, Sept 18, 1871.

P S—We are glad to say that since the beginning of this month the Sanitary Board of Egypt, yielding to the numerous representations made by us has at last consented to allow ships while on transit through the Suez Canal to communicate freely with either Ismailia or the terminal port of the canal without undergoing any sanitary formalities, save getting their bills of health vised at the terminal port or taking out a new one, according to regulations. We hope this concession may prove the forerunner of other improvements in the sanitary regulations of this country.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A.—THE CAUSE AND CURE OF CONSUMPTION.—The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. This derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucus and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out of the liver all the diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid and the appetite poor. In the bowels the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regain health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do to cure consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that while using Schenck's Medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep indoors in cool and damp weather; avoid night air and take outdoor exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the 1st of December I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CITY POLITICS.

Meetings, Banner Raisings and Torchlight Displays Last Night.

FACTS CONCERNING THE REGISTRATION.

TAMMANY BANNER RAISING.

Woltman and His Friends in the Seventeenth Ward.

An enthusiastic assembling of the friends of Mr. Henry Woltman and Mr. J. Tyler Kelly—candidates respectively for the Assembly and the Senate—occurred last evening at the corner of Third avenue and Thirteenth streets. An impromptu platform was erected and was festooned with flags and illuminated with Chinese lanterns. Mr. William A. Lynch presided, and the following gentlemen were among the speakers:—Colonel John R. Fellows, Judge Coate, Judge Hartmann, Senator Creamer, Algernon S. Sullivan, William C. Gover, Henry Woltman, George M. Curtis, Captain John A. Thompson, Herman Schroeder and Dr. Philip Merkle. Before the meeting commenced rockets and colored lights were discharged, calcium lights were burned and the band played the usual soul-stirring airs. The speakers were continually cheered, and the crowd, which was large enough to fill the street about the platform, manifested a great degree of hopefulness and good feeling—hope in the future and complacency in the present, like its leaders.

After several orations, the large banner—to witness the unfurling of which the meeting occurred—was stretched across Third avenue, at the same moment that rockets ascended in plentiful showers and the music swelled anew in patriotic harmonies. The banner measures twenty-five by thirty-five feet, and displays a bust portrait of Mr. Henry Woltman, seven feet in length, and the names of Henry Woltman and J. Tyler Kelly, coupled with those of the offices for which they run. The candidates were cheered by the crowd with great enthusiasm.

GERMAN-AMERICAN REFORM MEETING.

The Nominations Ratified—What We Can Expect if Tammany Wins the Election—The Roll of Drums and the Bugle Blast.

A mass meeting of the German and American citizens of the Seventeenth ward—the former most largely represented—was held last evening in the Germania Assembly Rooms, under the auspices of the Seventeenth Ward Council of Political Reform, and having for its object the ratification of the reform nominations which had recently been promulgated. Mr. Benjamin Tatham presided and made a speech, introducing the resolutions. He gave a novel illustration of the stupendity of the municipal wrongs which have been unearthed by saying that "a sidewalk ten feet wide and forty miles long would be required to hold all the dollars, laid together, which have been stolen from the people, and on that one million and fifty-six thousand men could stand." Mr. Tatham then put the question, "What are you going to do about it?" and the audience growled good-naturedly, "Hang 'em! hang 'em! hang 'em!" The resolutions were adopted, and the Chairman then introduced Dr. Augustus Weissman, the Senatorial candidate, who was greeted with emphatic applause. He delivered an address in German, frequently interrupted by manifest approbation. He was followed by a young gentleman named Connor, whose speech aimed at eloquence of the blood-and-thunder order. The story of our troubles was another series of Arabian Nights, of which Tweed and his friends were the

CAUSEWAY OF SILVER

"ALI BABA AND THE FORTY THOUSAND THIEVES."

This original conceit pleased the speaker mightily and he accordingly reiterated and elaborated it until his hearers out of courtesy actually smiled. Recounting the history of the "Ring," he compared the dignified and estimable public to a goose, and affirmed that, setting out to merely pluck it, the aggressors had ended by wringing its neck. Such a proceeding was not to be submitted to. The orator became warm and talked after the melodramatic method, acting on King Henry's injunction—

> Disguise fair nature with hard-favored rage.

There was enough of

THE SPIRIT OF THE BOSTON TEA PARTY

left to avenge this wrong in blood. "If the elections should end in the triumph of Tammany there'll be trouble, very great trouble. On the 7th of November we shall hear the roll of the drum and the bugle blast, and the bayonet will gleam in the December sun."

Mr. J. W. Hawes and Mr. Nicholas Connor addressed the meeting in English, and Herr George Kinkel and Herr Kepf in German. Mr. Connor, who is a candidate for Alderman, indulged many bitter personalities against J. Tyler Kelly, his opponent, but was supported, however, by applause from the audience.

NINETEENTH WARD BANNER RAISING.

Harry Genet the Champion of the Eight-Hour Men.

"Sixty-four of the Committee of Seventy are candidates for office, and the remaining six have been promised situations in the Comptroller's office by Mr. Green as a reward for their labors in behalf of the republican party." So said Mr. Murphy last night at a meeting of the Nineteenth Ward Labor Reform Club held on the corner of Fifty-fifth street and Third avenue for the purpose of raising the banner of that organization.

The banner, which was neat and handsome, bore the following inscriptions:—"Nineteenth Ward Labor Reform: eight hours a day's labor. Eighth Senatorial district, H. W. Genet for Senator." Mr. Murphy, in a long address, compared the men presented to the people for their suffrages. He asked the workingmen of the district to remember that when Daniel F. Tiemann was Mayor of the city of New York he refused to raise the workingman's wages from ninety-five cents to one dollar, and said, "If you don't like the work throw it up; I can get men to do the work for ninety-five cents." Compare this action of his with that of Harry Genet in working for and obtaining the observance of this Eight-Hour law, and let your conscience dictate who is worthy of your suffrages. Owing to the non-appearance of several other speakers who were advertised to have spoken the meeting dispersed.

THE NINETEENTH WARD WORKINGMEN.

Hitchman Endorsed, and After the Endorsement Pitches Into the City Fraud Makers.

At a meeting of the Henry W. Genet Association of the Nineteenth ward, held at 826 Third avenue last evening, William Hitchman was nominated by a unanimous vote as the candidate for Assembly from the Twentieth district. This organization is made up of live men, true representatives of the workingmen, and they seek to be heard from in a practical way during the election. Mr. Hitchman appeared before the Convention and bitterly denounced the frauds practised upon the people of this city, and pledged himself to use all his efforts to give the people good government. William Cushing, the President, occupied the chair. Patrick Kennedy, Vice President; John C. Ryan, Recording Secretary; Robert Kelly, Financial Secretary; Michael Hanley, Treasurer, are the officers of the association, and are true representatives of the people.

THE TWENTIETH WARD O'BRIENITES.

A Big Talk About the Candidate of the Reformers.

A regular meeting of the Twentieth Ward Independent Democratic Club was held last night at No. 212 West Thirty-third street. The room was crowded, and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested during the proceedings. Sheriff O'Brien was lauded to the skies by the speakers of the evening, and, judging from the estimate they put upon his character, he has at times been greatly maligned by his political enemies. Not only was he a friend of the poor man, said they, but he had always considered the welfare of others before his own interest. Moreover, he had never done anything during his entire life that had called or would ever call for censure on the part of honest citizens. It was all very well for men to talk about his having once been connected with Tammany Hall. There were a great many men now in the ranks of the reformers who had once been in the Tammany army; but they had had their eyes opened to the villanies of the leaders, and had, like honest men, broken from the bad company they had unwillingly been thrown in with. The ex-Sheriff had acted as he had so far in combating the perpetrators of the city frauds solely in the interest of the people; he had no other end in view than to aid in giving the people a good form of government, and if he was elected to the Senate he would be foremost among those who would fight for the people's interests.

THE SIXTEENTH WARD REFORMERS.

Meeting in Eighth Avenue Last Night.

About two hundred of the citizens of the Sixteenth ward met last evening at Temperance Hall, corner of Eighteenth street and Eighth avenue, to organize measures to preserve the purity of the ballot box at the coming election. John Castree was chairman of the meeting, and Peter McDonald secretary. It was addressed by Messrs. J. O. Jackson, S. T. Streeter, R. Prosser and several others. The whole subject of inspectors, poll clerks, authority of policemen and other officers of the law on election were thoroughly discussed, many of the members of the meeting joining in the discussion. It was proposed that men of business should devote that day to standing around the polls and lend their moral support to those who were deputed to watch the voting by the committee of the Council.

All the nominations of the Reform Association were enthusiastically endorsed. Mr. Jackson, in his remarks, referring to the nomination of James Haley in the First Assembly district, said that he was always known as a temperate man and a steady and confirmed opponent of Tammany Hall, and that he was running in an Irish district. As for the Seventh Senatorial district, the Committee of Seventy endorsed James O'Brien, because, when in the midst of such a tough fight, any reliable ally who could bring 10,000 votes to their aid was and ought to be acceptable. After the addresses the following resolutions were offered by Mr. W. Palmer and unanimously adopted:—

> Resolved, That we, the citizens of the Sixteenth ward, irrespective of party, most heartily endorse the action of the Committee of Seventy in presenting for the suffrage of all honest voters a ticket upon which all parties opposed to Tammany Hall can enthusiastically vote, and we hereby pledge our united and earnest efforts to insure its success at the polls.
> Resolved, That we will individually attend at the polls on the 7th of November and see to it that no frauds be perpetrated even by officers of election or by fraudulent voters.

THE NINTH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT.

Republican Ratification Meeting Last Night.

A large and enthusiastic concourse of republicans filled to suffocation the spacious hall corner of Morton and Bleecker streets last evening to ratify the nominations of Erastus C. Benedict for Senator and Stephen Pell for Assembly, under the auspices of the Ninth Ward Republican Association. A set of resolutions was offered and highly welcomed by Mr. McFarren Appleton, anent the Syracuse Convention, endorsing the reunion between republicans and reform democrats, heavily slating the Ring, praising Grant for reduction of debt and taxation, Ku Klux acts, &c., advocating "pure" nominations and recognizing the republican victories in Maine, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa as incentives to struggle here. William M. Peebles, a "hemlock republican," raised in the backwoods, reviewed his ancestry and the state of affairs. He was severe on "Mike Norton, a consort of thieves," and encomiastic on Erastus C. Benedict, the nominee of the evening. Mr. Charles S. Spencer entered amid an enthusiastic outburst of patriotic voices. He gracefully acknowledged his welcome; hailed the Ninth Ward as the sole resting place for the old Knickerbockers, the "golden elements," the carmen, mechanics and honest men who had a stake; spoke of the emancipation of 4,000,000 slaves; that the republicans conquered the rebellion; sustained the "quiet, stern and able" Grant; congratulated the brains of his hearers and announced an intention to upper and nether. Every gray hair on E. C. Benedict's head was an honor. He was a half century denizen of the Ninth ward. Severities were heaped on the "straggling" republican candidate, who was promptly named from the auditory—Thomas B. Stewart—and his coquetting with the democracy exposed. Then were the city frauds handled without gloves (Tweed scarified), and the press laudatorified. The Tammany "Big Injuns" were compared with the last of the Mohicans, by which it appeared they drink of bad whiskey instead of pure springs, and smoke bad cigars instead of calumets, and instead of bringing scalps to their wigwams bring pocketbooks stuffed with greenbacks, and stuffed ballot boxes. Mr. Spencer spoke very warmly of the Twelfth of July, was a personal friend of the little girl shot by a blood-thirsty democrat for wearing a yellow ribbon, and appealed against any union between Church and State. Here solidly in, being the German republicans of the Ninth ward, with a band. Mr. Spencer proceeded to mention that the German vote made the great West, and that it was all a mistake their being democrats here; endorsed the Bible, and said that Protestants accepting State help for charitable or religious institutions—sops to Cerberus—were disgracing themselves, and mentioned that he had an angel in the shape of a wife to keep him straight. He thought adopted citizens should have equal rights with the native born, and that the latter should not be ostracised for the misfortune of having been born out of Europe. Mr. Spencer concluded with an exhortation to vote, to "squelch" repeaters, reminding his hearers of General Dix's order to "shoot down any man who pulls down the American flag," and Mr. Evarts' recommendation at the Cooper Institute, "to revolt rather than succumb to democrats." Mr. Spencer was received and parted from with the wildest enthusiasm.

TROMBONING FENIONS TRAMPED

"A young man from the Eighth ward," Mr. P. H. Shurtz, here filled up a gap with some humorous and withal earnest remarks.

Mr. Fred. H. Gedney declared the issues of the day, which were between corruption and fair dealing, too well understood to need discussion, and that arguments did no good. Referred to "Honest Old Abe," said our Aldermen were because they couldn't write their names, their cottages by the "sad sea waves" were paid for by robbery, and their delegates were cleaned up before and harried the country like locusts. Sam Tilden lost his watch, and said the State was out of joint, and every one knew the value Tammany set on a repeater. Mr. Gedney, in a manly way, excluded the "war democrats" from his strictures, and was very generally applauded for a very straightforward, inornate and tolerant speech.

Mr. Lambert, President of the Committee of Arrangements, then took the rostrum, and the séance concluded with the expected addresses of Silas B. Dutcher, the great Grant man of Brooklyn, and the Senator elect, Erastus C. Benedict.

RENOMINATION OF CHRISTOPHER FLECKE.

The Tenth Assembly District Convention met last evening at Wilberger's Hall, corner of Fifth street and Second avenue, Commissioner John J. Walsh presiding; Alderman Nicholas Segar, Vice President; William Ehehalt and John Zahn, Secretaries. Mr. Christopher Flecke was renominated and a committee appointed to proceed to his residence and notify him of the fact. The committee soon returned, accompanied by the candidate, who returned thanks to the Convention for the honor conferred on him in a graceful and eloquent speech.

THE YOUNG MEN IN COUNCIL.

Important Meeting of Judge Ledwith's Friends at Delmonico's.

One of the most influential meetings connected with the present campaign was held last evening at Delmonico's, Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue. The company present comprised a large number of prominent professional gentlemen, including lawyers, doctors, journalists, brokers, bankers and others, representing, to a great extent, the wealth and intelligence among the rising young men of the metropolis. Mr. Robert M. Waite was called to the chair, and, on accepting the position, he gave his impressions as a lawyer in regard to the nomination and elevation of Judge Ledwith to the Supreme Court bench. Dr. E. B. Murtha, Dr. John Lynch, Dr. Clark, Dr. Conway and Dr. Finnell, Mr. George Walsh, Mr. Joseph Kernan, Mr. L. M. Cohen and others endorsed the remarks of Mr. Waite, and, after the appointment of appropriate committees and the adoption of a resolution to form a permanent young men's organization, the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening.

THE FOURTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.

The Regular Reformers on Rossa's Renegades.

The members of the Reform Democracy Senatorial Convention, as originally and regularly called, under the chairmanship of Mr. James Monaghan, met last evening, and repudiated the nomination of O'Donovan Rossa as Senator. The gentlemen present claimed that the Convention had regularly nominated Mr. Anthony Miller for Senator. The name had been selected by a committee of nine, had been reported to the Convention, had been adopted by the Convention, and the Convention then adjourned sine die. They claimed, therefore, that no person had any right to reconvene the Convention without authority of the regularly elected chairman of the Convention, and that the nomination of Mr. O'Donovan Rossa was irregular, and could not be supported by the true members of the reform democracy in the district.

THE REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Duties of Inspectors—Who May Register—Votes May Be Sworn In—Penalties for False Registering or Voting.

As the day for holding the fall election draws near the public who are in the habit of exercising the elective franchise are awaking to the exigencies of the hour and arraying themselves for or against the party of so-called municipal reform. Nevertheless, on the first two days of registration, held the last week, much apathy was exhibited, and the number of names enrolled was largely below previous years. This was doubtless owing to the fact that the places of registry were not advertised as in previous years and the circumstance that on election day if they have a valid excuse for not registering.

To-day is the first for reopening the registry books and names can be entered to-day, Friday or Saturday. After Saturday next no names can be added to the books.

That the voters may clearly comprehend the law governing registration we append a summary of its main features:—

THE MEETINGS OF INSPECTORS.

The persons elected or appointed inspectors of election and registry are to meet annually on the Tuesday three weeks preceding the election and organize at the place where the poll is to be opened, and proceed to register all who are found to be qualified. In election districts where the vote last preceding was over four hundred they can in their discretion sit the following day as well. The law makes it imperative upon them to reopen the registry on the Wednesday preceding the election and continue in session Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, from nine A. M. until ten P. M., at which second meeting they shall revise, correct, add to and subtract from, and complete the lists and add to them the names of all persons who on the first Tuesday of November are entitled to exercise the right of suffrage.

THE LISTS TO BE POSTED.

The law provides that when the registry is completed one copy is to be posted in the room in which the registration and elections take place, so that any voter may examine or make copies of it. This is a provision of the law that is violated every election.

OMITTED NAMES TO BE ADDED.

In the event of the name of a qualified voter being left off the list he can appear on or before Saturday and require the register to place it upon the roll by complying with the act.

PENALTIES FOR FALSE REGISTRATION AND VOTING.

The offence registering twice, or when the voter is disqualified, or registering in another name, or assisting in such illegal act, is felony under the law, and false swearing is made perjury. A party who refuses to give his residence loses his right to register or vote. Any person whose name is upon the registry of a district from which he has removed may have it changed to the one in which he resides by proving that it has been erased from the first registry.

ABSENTING INSPECTORS.

While the law makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $101 nor less than $25, for an inspector to absent himself from his duties, leaving less than a majority of the board present, it has been in the past a common occurrence. No inspector is qualified unless he be a voter of the district in which he acts.

WHO MAY REGISTER AND VOTE.

The qualifications for a voter are—First, twenty-one years of age; second, a citizen by birth or naturalization, and, if naturalized, it must have been accomplished ten days before election; third, a resident of the election district where the vote is tendered; fourth, for the preceding four months a resident of the county; fifth, a resident of the district where he offers his vote for thirty days preceding the next election; sixth, he must not have been convicted of bribery or of an infamous crime deemed felony by the State laws, or, if so convicted, must have been pardoned and restored to citizenship; seventh, persons born out of the territory of the United States, whose fathers, having been residents of the United States were, at the time of the birth of such persons, citizens of the United States; eighth, children born out of the United States, but residing here and being under age when their fathers were naturalized are citizens by virtue of the father's naturalization, with all foreigners who have served two or more years in the army and navy of the United States and can produce an honorable discharge.

The registry opens this morning at nine, and as the inspectors must remain on duty until ten at night no citizen can have a reasonable excuse for not having his name placed upon the list.

COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY NOMINATIONS.

In addition to the nominations already announced the Committee of Seventy have now endorsed the following nominations for the Assembly in all the districts:—

Dist.	Candidates.	Dist.	Candidate.
1	James Healy.	12	Henry E. Crampton.
2	Henry G. Leaske.	13	George H. Mackay.
3	Henry P. West.	14	John A. Foley.
4	John Hecker.	15	Frederick Kulsen.
5	David S. Paige.	16	Nicholas Houghton.
6	Isaac Wood.	17	Charles A. Flammer.
7	Horatio N. Twombly.	18	Samuel J. Tilden.
8	Conrad Geib.	19	Horatio Seymour.
9	Stephen Pell.	20	Severn D. Moulton.
10	Henry H. Haight.	21	William A. Whitbeck.
11	Rush C. Hawkins.

The committee will formally present their entire list of nominations to the public at the mass meeting to be held at the Cooper Institute on Thursday evening, and will request for them the united support of all citizens who are honestly in favor of reform.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

Action of the Republican General Committee.

A special meeting of the Republican General Committee of Kings county was held last evening at the headquarters, Washington street. Supervisor S. B. Dutcher occupied the chair and the attendance was quite numerous. Two or three communications were handed in charging that fraud had been perpetrated at certain republican primaries. The complaints were, however, laid on the table, as it was declared that it was desirable to maintain harmony and concert of action in this contest. The Executive Committee reported that the arrangements for holding the grand ratification meeting at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening next had been completed, and also that the ballots for election day would be ready for delivery on Monday next. It was resolved that a number of Deputy sheriffs should be appointed to serve at the polls on Tuesday next, and that each candidate should be allowed to name a person who shall be present at the polling places on election day and watch the counting of the votes. The declination of the nomination of J. B. Smith for Coroner was accepted.

Democratic General Committee—A Vile Aspersion and an Explanation Demanded.

A meeting of the Democratic General Committee was held last evening, Tunis G. Bergen in the chair. The Aldermen and Supervisors nominated by the primaries were endorsed by the committee. Register Hugh McLaughlin remarked that certain charges had been made against the nominees of the regular organization, and thought it but proper that these should be answered. District Attorney Morris, on being called upon, addressed the meeting, advocating the claim of Samuel S. Powell, the nominee for Mayor, in the strongest terms. He then spoke of Mayor Kalbfleisch in no very laudatory language, though he knew him to be honest. The Mayor, he said, gave the world to understand that the city of Brooklyn was bankrupt, while he himself bought up the bonds to the amount of $1,400,000, giving his checks for $200,000 and over at a time. This, the speaker said, was "bearing the stocks to buy them and bulling the market to sell them." Mr. Morris then read an extract from a local paper run by the leader of the "reformers," in which it was charged that the female teachers in the public schools of Brooklyn were engaged: "not for educational advantages, but for vile purposes by the Board of Education." On motion of Mr. McLaughlin a committee of five was appointed to wait on the Mayor requesting him not to allow the author of this libel to frequent his office. The following committee was appointed:—General Dakin, W. C. Kingsley, Hugh McLaughlin, Alderman Nolan and John Pyburn.

CHEMUNG COUNTY POLITICS.

The Democracy in the Ascendant—A Reasonable Majority for Their State Ticket—A Family Quarrel Over District Attorney—Probable Election of the Republican Candidate—The Question of an Honest Legislature—The Fight for the Assembly—Expected Re-election of the Democratic Member—Close Contest for State Senator in the District—Advantages of the Respective Candidates—Both Parties Anticipate a Victory.

ELMIRA, Chemung County, Oct. 30, 1871.

Both political parties are quite active here, which increases the interest of the canvass. It is conceded that the democracy will carry their State ticket in this county, the only question being as to the majority. There is great difference of opinion on that point. The republicans take several hundred off the democratic estimate. The county was very close in 1868. It gave just one majority for Grant, the vote being 3,709 to 3,708. At the same election Hoffman had 132 majority over Griswold for Governor. Returns of subsequent elections show that the democrats have been gaining in the county. The republicans, however, claim that in reality both political parties are very evenly divided; that a light vote tells more against them than against the democrats, and that on occasions of national interest, like a Presidential canvass, when the full strength of their party is brought out, the race is about neck and neck, with the chances rather in their favor. Last year Hoffman had 550 majority over Woodford. The democrats declare that their majority this year for State officers and for members of the Legislature will be at least 500. With a single exception all the democratic candidates for local offices are pretty certain of election by greater or lesser majorities. That exception is District Attorney for the county, and the success of their candidate is a matter about which the democrats themselves are very much in doubt. In the Convention there were two prominent rival aspirants for the position, and after the proceedings opened a lively scene ensued. Finally both of them were thrown overboard, and a new man was nominated. But both the disappointed lawyers and their friends are still at loggerheads. They are displeased with the action of the delegates, and seem determined to retaliate. They seek satisfaction in some way, and are likely to find it in the defeat of the democratic candidate. Seeing that the democrats were divided and demoralized the republicans, who held their county convention afterwards, made a very judicious nomination, and they feel quite confident that their man will be elected. The republicans believe there are enough disaffected democrats [illegible] not vote at all or will vote on the other side to secure the election of their candidate. Beyond this the republicans do not expect to carry the county for any of their State or local officers. But they hope the disaffection in the democratic ranks will have some effect on the majorities. They do not think the democratic majority for the State ticket will run higher than three hundred.

The interest in this election is more especially confined, first, to District Attorney, and next, to Member of Assembly for the county and Senator for the district. The county is democratic, but the Senatorial district is republican. For four years successively the democrats have elected their Assemblyman. Their last successful candidate, David B. Hill, is up for re-election. His opponent is James McCann, who ran in 1868 and was defeated. Hill's friends say he is popular in the county, even among members of the other party. He prides himself upon having made active efforts, and with some success, to secure legislation for the local interests of the people of the county of Chemung, and especially of the city of Elmira. There is a third candidate in the field for the Assembly, Mr. Cowen, who represents a small organization known as the labor reformers. Its voting strength amounts to about two hundred. Hill and his friends hope he will get nearly all the votes of the labor reformers this year on the ground that his efforts at Albany were calculated to promote the interests of the class of persons who principally compose that little party. On the other hand the republicans set up the battle cry of integrity and honesty. They remind the electors of Chemung that Hill was a member of last year's Legislature and voted for the swindling schemes of Tweed and his co-conspirators of Tammany. The leaders of the Tammany Ring are denounced as criminals of the deepest dye, and the plan of the republicans is to show, at least by implication, that all the democratic candidates for re-election to offices at Albany were participants in their crimes, and should share their obloquy. They argue that in the absence of any important political issue having special reference to this State it is essential to the interests of the taxpayers to have in the Legislature a majority distinguished for integrity and honesty. Such majority, they say, should necessarily be republicans; for all the republican candidates are honest, if all the democratic are not otherwise. But their wholesale denunciation of the democrats are not swallowed by many outside the ranks of the republican party. Hence they will not have much effect in this election, even in the fight for member of Assembly. Hill may not run so well as he and his friends anticipate, but it is likely that he will be re-elected by a reasonable majority.

There is some excitement in the district over the contest for State Senator—not so much in Chemung, perhaps, as in Steuben, the adjoining county. Both the candidates are citizens of Steuben, and more interest is manifested there than in either Chemung or Schuyler. Each nominee has considerations in his favor. The democratic candidate has the advantage in personal popularity, and the republican has the greater advantage of a traditional majority. George B. Bradley, of Corning, is the democratic candidate. He has secured an excellent reputation in this section as a lawyer of ability, and, with many friends, and few, if any foes, he is personally popular. It is acknowledged that he will get the full democratic vote in both Chemung and Schuyler, and that, especially in Steuben, he will make more or less inroads upon his republican competitor. The democrats believe the republicans are frightened, and hence they have hopes that Bradley may possibly be elected. He will run ahead of his ticket; but the republican majority is usually about a thousand in the district. The republicans have nominated Colonel Gabriel T. Harrower. Although there is more or less objection to him on the part of individuals on account of his political antecedents, his positive character and the freedom with which he expresses his opinions about persons, there is no organized opposition to him in his party. Indeed, seeing Bradley's friends so sanguine, the republicans are displaying an activity which signifies that they intend to make Harrower's election certain. The vote for Senator in Schuyler county will be nearly even. On an important political issue the county is republican, but in the present case, while it may give a small majority for Harrower, the majority will be less than usual. So even is the vote there expected to be that by common consent both parties seem to count Schuyler out as having any practical influence in the election of Senator. This county will give four or five hundred majority for Bradley, so that the contest is principally confined to the remaining county. The republicans of Steuben claim a majority of 1,000 for Harrower, but it is more than doubtful that it will reach anything near that number. Last year the republican majority for Governor was only 768, and with the prospect of a lighter general vote this year they could not reasonably count on a larger majority than that for Senator, even if their candidate was personally more popular. As the matter now stands Bradley has a very fair prospect of success. The odds seem slightly in favor of Harrower, but, taking all the circumstances and the arguments of the democrats into account, Bradley's election does not seem to be so very difficult a matter.

GEORGIA REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31, 1871.

The Republican State Executive Committee met here to-day. Foster Blodgett, Chairman, offered resolutions, which were adopted, declaring that the republican party is the only national party, endorsing President Grant and complimenting Attorney General Akerman.

BERMUDA.

By steamship San Francisco, Captain [illegible], at this port yesterday, we received newspaper files from Bermuda, dated to the 27th of October.

The St. Georges (Bermuda) Colonist of the 27th ultimo says:—The swinging bridge at the Causeway was opened for commercial purposes for the first time on Thursday, when it was swung to admit the English brig Clara, of 187 tons burden, which vessel was brought through without accident, and entered the harbor of Bermuda amid a cloud of bunting.

The companionship of the Order of Sts. Michael and George was conferred on John Harvey Darrell, late Chief Justice of Bermuda.

The French gunboat Castor, Commander Huet, left Bermuda for France. The Castor, from Santiago de Cuba for France, arrived in Hamilton harbor to obtain a supply of coal, water, &c. One of her stewards, who had been unwell for nearly three weeks from fever and ague and greatly prostrated in strength, suddenly became very ill and died on the following evening. The man was named Louis Dutel, a native of France, aged thirty-four years.

William Mott had his skull badly fractured while getting on the Harlem cars at Forty-fifth street. He was taken up and sent to Bellevue Hospital.

A number of Germans got into a difficulty last night at No. 93 Willett street, and three of them were seriously injured. One Knopf, who is supposed to have done the most damage, was arrested.

Stephen Coughlan, of Dutch Kills, L. I., was severely injured yesterday by the falling of a wall in Thirty-second street, near Fourth avenue. He was sent to Bellevue Hospital in an ambulance.

The case of Captain McDonnell, of the Thirtieth precinct, was dismissed by the Commissioners yesterday for want of evidence. It was satisfactorily proved that the captain was not in the liquor store at the time they charged he was, and could not possibly get up the difficulty imputed to him.

At a quarter-past six o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the workshop of the establishment 97 Greene street. The tools and stock were damaged $700. Insured for $2,500 in the Kings County and Relief Insurance Company. The fire was caused by sparks from a stove which was used for drying purposes.

Coroner Herrman yesterday took charge of the investigation in the case of James Lyons, the man who was killed on Monday evening, at the corner of Tenth street and avenue A, by being run over by car No. 7 of the Forty-second and Grand street ferry line, as heretofore published in the HERALD. Permission was given to the relatives of deceased to remove his remains to his late residence, 58 Scammel street, for interment. Coroner Herrman yesterday released the driver of the car, who had been arrested, and an investigation will take place at the City Hall on Thursday morning. Deceased was attempting to jump on the front platform of the car at the time of the accident.

HEAVY SNEAK ROBBERY.

Last night the robbery of the residence of Mr. Robert Shultz, No. 132 Amity street, Brooklyn, was reported at Police Headquarters, corner Court and Livingston streets. It appears that the dwelling in question was entered by a sneak thief through the hall door, which had been left unlocked while the family were partaking of the evening meal in the basement. The rogue made his way up stairs to the apartments on the second floor, where he procured the following booty:—A lady's neck chain and locket, set with diamonds and pearls, valued at $300; two breastpins, value $150; two diamond rings, $125, and two cuff buttons, $45—total valuation $620. The chances of recovering the stolen property are exceedingly slight.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

Address of the Democratic State Executive Committee.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 31, 1871.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the State, of which ex-Governor Bragg is chairman, has issued an address to the people, in which it is denied that the recent defeat of the call for a Convention was a republican success. The committee say the election was not in favor of or against any political party, and that it turned on collateral and immaterial issues, and not upon the merits of the issue submitted to the people. After suggesting the legislative mode of amending the constitution and designating the various features—numbering ten in all—in which it should be amended the committee thus arraigns the constitution and its republican framers:—

> Under this organic law the people are subjected to an intolerable misrule at the hands of the radical party. By means of notorious fraud, force and the sword that party had absolute control of the Convention that framed the present constitution, and like control of the first Legislature that assembled under it; and, although the people were impoverished, this radical Convention and Legislature increased the public debt from $12,000,000 to near $20,000,000 in less than eighteen months. Of this $20,000,000 less than $500,000 have gone into the public works or to the benefit of the people. This party placed in office a Governor who absolutely suspended the constitution and laws of the State. He arrested scores of innocent citizens without warrant or any authority of law. He suspended the writ of habeas corpus and defied the Chief Justice of the State. He made his warrant from time to time on the treasurer for large sums of money, without the sanction of law. He raised a lawless and mercenary horde of desperadoes and armed them at the public expense to execute his despotic will. This party elected to the State Convention and the Legislature scores of men notorious for their ignorance, licentiousness, dishonesty and corruption, who, at the behests of their party and knavish speculators, increased the public debt to the enormous sum already stated. This party degraded and disgraced the judiciary by electing to high judicial stations men shamefully ignorant and corrupt and others who have not scrupled to manifest the most blatant partisan feelings while holding their offices. This party have ruined the credit of the State; they have blasted the hopes and prosperity of the people in the most shameless and decadent manner; they have made every department of the government a byword and reproach. To establish the truth of these charges we need but to point to the history of the State for the last three years and appeal to the observation of every intelligent citizen.

The address attributes most of the crime and outrage that has recently occurred in the State to the prostitution of legislative and judicial departments of the government by radical partisans, and charges these with endeavoring to fasten on the democratic party the connivance at and encouragement of such crime and outrage. This the committee unqualifiedly denounces as false and infamous in the last degree, and urges its friends to set their faces against all lawlessness and violence, and to be especially active in preventing secret outrages by disguised persons of any and all political parties. On the subject of the national politics the address says:—

> It is to be regretted that the people of this State have failed to take any very active interest in national politics since the close of the late war. In our judgment this is unwise. The people are of the Union. It is our government and to it we must look, as we have the right, for support and protection in our rights, liberties and property at home and abroad. We owe it allegiance and support and it is a patriotic duty to yield these. It is as much our duty to join our fellow countrymen in shaping and controlling the policy and destiny of this great common national government. We have all the rights that any of the American people have, and we are false to the country and ourselves if we fail to recognize, exercise and act upon them. The people have rights; let them exercise them freely and respectfully, and when need be assert them as freemen and American citizens in the councils of the nation, in political assemblages and everywhere. If we consent to be dwarfed and ignored nationally, then, indeed, we may expect to be for all time to come.

It then enumerates all the political evils and grievances of the country, which it charges to the republican party, and says:—

> It is essentially a party inimical and dangerous to the constitution and public and personal liberty. It is founded upon the despotic dogma that there is a "higher law" than the constitution; it is emphatically and essentially a higher law party. This dogma is its life and soul, and it proceeds on the Jesuitical maxim that "The end justifies the means." Hence it is the head of this party, the President, does not hesitate to send the army to New York and elsewhere at the North, to this State, Texas and all over the South, in violation of the letter and spirit of the constitution, to control the elections and prepare the way for his and his party's continued ascendancy and his own election. Hence, too, we find him for like purposes suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in a time of profound peace, arresting the citizen without warrant or lawful authority, but only by lawless force. Hence, too, we find this party in Congress avowedly, and in the most riotous manner, passing laws at one time to oust jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the Union, to prevent that great tribunal from declaring its acts and assaults on the constitution unconstitutional and void; at another time passing a similar law to "pack" that Court with partisans to alter a solemn decision already made, but distasteful to this higher law party. Hence, too, hundreds of other similar acts done by this party illustrate the principles, policy and practices which we have attributed to it, and which, if not arrested and suppressed, must result in the absolute overthrow of [illegible] handed down to us by Washington and [illegible] has been allowed to spring up on American soil is [illegible] and alarming.

The address concludes as follows:—

> There is but one other political party in the country—that is the national democratic party. In our judgment it is the patriotic duty of every lover of liberty and free government to co-operate with that great and powerful party to arrest the tremendous evils to which we have adverted, and which will, sooner or later, if not suppressed, destroy freedom and establish despotism and the sword. To accomplish this great measure of reform in our State and national governments we cordially invite the zealous co-operation of every patriot, without regard to his hitherto party affiliations. We stand in determined opposition to the crimes and evils to which we have briefly directed public attention, and we ask all good people to stand with us, trusting that such common patriotic effort, through the blessing of God, may save us and our country from impending danger and ruin.

RANDOLPH'S REMONSTRANCE.

The Executive of New Jersey in Collision with the Court of Chancery—The Railroad Monopoly at the Bottom of the Trouble.

A very important case came before the Court of Chancery of New Jersey at Trenton yesterday. At the latest session of the Legislature an act was passed incorporating the German Valley Railroad. The Governor did not sign the bill, but counsel for the company maintain that inasmuch as five days intervened before the Governor sent any notification of his objections the bill became a law. The Chancellor said that owing to the gravity of the questions raised in the case he would reserve his decision. Governor Randolph addressed a letter to Courtland Parker on the subject, in which he says that under pretext for a short local railroad in a rural and somewhat isolated part of the State this single charter gave, in consequence of its ingenious wording, all the powers hitherto wanting for the completion of a road between the cities of New York and Philadelphia, with such powers for expansion and increasing the capital that he deemed it right to veto it.

In stating the case Governor Randolph observes that persons interested in the privileges of the German Valley Railroad bill, failing to obtain his official sanction to its provisions, have instituted a suit in the Court of Chancery of the State, the whole object of which is manifestly to test the validity of the Executive action. "Twice," says the Governor, "have I declined to obey subpoenas from a Master in Chancery to appear and give evidence in the suit. The Chancellor, to whose attention these documents and my non-attendance has been called, has caused to be served upon me as a citizen a summons directing me to show cause why I should not appear and testify, and at the same time to bring the official papers referred to.

This act of the Court of Chancery presumes, therefore, to define when the Executive prerogative ceases and the liability of the citizen begins.

The Governor then desires it to be stated to the Court of Chancery—which was done—that "I deny the authority of the Court of Chancery to compel my attendance before it, to answer for any official act of mine."

It follows that no authority (save through charges of impeachment) can suspend the Executive functions; and, if this be true, preliminary steps by judicial summons are, at least, useless.

The mere attempt to exercise the power of one branch of the government against the other seems to me both unfortunate and dangerous; and, with a view of having the whole question promptly decided by our highest legal tribunal, I have deemed it desirable, for the public good, to take this course—to place the engrossed copy of the bill in the office of the Librarian of this State. Within this office the bill will be subject to the Chancellor's order and mine alone.

If the Chancellor holds to the opinion that the paper is a proper one to be considered by this Court his order will now obtain it from the librarian.

The Chancellor evidently does think so, as the argument yesterday testifies, but the Governor intimates that he deems it right to employ counsel to test the constitutionality of the interference here attempted. Those who know the Chancellor are well aware that he is categorical to an extreme in his judicial opinions, and very sensitive at every encroachment of the Court of Errors on what he considers his domain. A remarkable probate case, two years ago, provoked a collision between the Court of Chancery and the Court of Errors. The Chancellor resisted the assumption that his decision could be reviewed by the Tribunal of Errors, but the latter nevertheless overruled his judgment in the case and settled the question of co-ordinate jurisdiction. It is very probable that the issue now raised by the Governor will come before the Court of Errors whether the Chancellor decides it to be purely a question of equity or not.

Will Not the Autumn Winds Hurry Him Along or Carry the Murmurs of the Fair Citizens to Him?

Alexis, the long looked for imperial scion of the House of Alexandrovitch, is still hidden from the eyes of the anxious belles of New York. If he could only realize the extent of the preparations made and see in his mind's eye the fair faces and elegant forms engaged for the reception and the hearty and enthusiastic welcome these will extend to him he would surely send to the engineers of the clumsy old hulls, and bid them pile up the coal in the furnaces and hasten forward to this city. If he cannot give such an order himself perhaps the respected old Vice Admiral would for once dispense with the customary red tape and say, "Certainly, pile it up."

Everything being completed so far as the Executive Committee is concerned, the delay now seems monotonous and intolerable. Their office yesterday, contrary to the general rule, seemed quite deserted and the surroundings appeared to partake of the dulness of the day. There were a good many inquirers. Paterfamilias says his wife and daughter are quite vexed with the Prince, and that if he does not soon come along the new costumes will be packed away and the young Muscovite forgotten. The most annoying part of the affair is for Jullien, who has to keep his band in waiting until one o'clock every day; but if they have to wait much longer on their present stipend it is doubtful if they will have wind enough left in them for a blast on the day of the arrival of the Grand Duke. The military are getting impatient and want to have their parade over before election day. By the way, this is another consideration. The election law prohibits any parades in the city on the day of election, and custom has made that clause almost obligatory also on the day previous to the meeting at the polls. Thus, if many salt water prophets are correct in their judgment that the Russian fleet will not be here for a week yet, the Prince would be just in time to be too late, as the saying goes, as he would not be landed on either the 7th or 8th of November. If he should arrive here on or about the 6th he would most certainly have to wait on the ship until the 9th or "waive" the reception, to employ legal phraseology. Madeira is a long way off and the Atlantic is extremely treacherous; hence the probabilities are that the fleet will not be here until a week has elapsed.

COMMODORE ASHBURY'S DEPARTURE.

The British Yachtsman Homeward Bound—The Livonia Fitting Out for Her Ocean Voyage.

Mr. James Ashbury, Commodore of the Royal Harwich Yacht Club, leaves for Old England to-day in the steamship China. His new clipper yacht Livonia, which has attracted so much attention here within the past two or three weeks, will follow him in a day or two, although, of course, with no sanguine hopes of overhauling the China on the way. Mr. Ashbury was, as usual, seated in his room at the Brevoort House last evening, up to his eyes in newspapers, mails and carpet-bags, having a considerable amount of packing to do prior to clearing for Brighton. He was visited by a HERALD representative, who, appreciating the pressing condition of affairs, forbore entering into any lengthened conversation upon yachting matters. In reply to a question as to whether the Commodore was satisfied with the result of the series of international contests for the possession of the "Queen's Cup," the gentleman briefly stated that he was disappointed. He had, he said, come over in hopes of winning the cup, but was dissatisfied at the manner in which the arrangements had been carried out. "What I complain of," continued Mr. Ashbury, "is the fact that the committee completely disregarded my protest. Moreover, I objected to the course, when it was in the power of the committee to have all the races outside. Again, I protested against the committee's naming the vessel against which the Livonia was to contend on the morning of the race. With these exceptions, I do not complain of any unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the committee."

"Well, Mr. Asbury, do you intend to claim the cup when you return to England?"

"Oh, certainly not: the cup has been sailed for by me and lost, and, of course, that's the end of it, so far as I am concerned. What I shall simply do when I return is to set forth the facts as they stand."

"What was your idea in 'going it alone' over the course?"

"Merely to show that I was entitled to sail again according to my protest. You see that I might have won the other race. But as it was ruled by the committee that my protest was useless so the matter ends."

Mr. Ashbury then added that he had nothing further to say in connection with the races. When the Livonia returned to England she would be overhauled prior to a trip to the West Indies. Mr. Ashbury intends building a cutter for racing purposes, but will not come back to America next year, having already made arrangements for a trip to India, by the regular mail steamer.

THE EIGHTEENTH WARD MARKET.

Stand and Stall Holders Resolve to Resume Business—The City Authorities to be Asked for Help.

A number of stand and stall holders of the Eighteenth Ward Market, located at the foot of East Sixteenth street, met last evening in the market building to consider how business might be resumed by them. Mr. George Moore presided and explained the object of the meeting. From his remarks and those made by others it appears that the market proved an utter failure within a very few months after it was opened; so much so that about June last—eight months after the opening—nearly every stand and stall holder had to desert it. This, it was said, was due to the combined influences of the small traders in the neighborhood, who continued to circulate damaging reports concerning it. It was determined last evening that another trial should now be had, and for this purpose a committee of five was appointed to wait to-day on the Comptroller and City Chamberlain for the purpose of getting all back rents wiped out and a promise of free use of the building until such time as business would begin to pay. The sums of $3 and $5 are charged for stands and stalls, and such rent, it was said, is more than is charged in any other market in the city. The stand and stall holders are prepared to lose money for a time now, with the hope of being ultimately the gainers.

YOU SEE DAT WOMAN DAR?

The Thunderbolt's Constituents—Marriage of One of "Mike's" Sable Friends at the City Hall.

Yesterday afternoon the attachés of the offices of the Board of Aldermen were somewhat amused by the entry of a sable citizen, accompanied by a somewhat lighter colored female. He walked with a proud step into Mr. Hardy's room and asked:—

"Am Mr. Norton in dar?"

"No, sir, he is not," said Mr. John Hardy.

"What kin I fine um?"

"He does not come here now, except very seldom. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"You see dat woman dar? Wot you tink she's dar for? We's agwine fur to get morrid; dat's it."

"All right, sir. I tink you can be obliged."

Hereupon Alderman Plunkitt was called. He went through the form in most solemn style and with his most weighty tones. When the usual formula had been concluded the sable groom said:—

"Well, sar, how much am dat?"

"Oh, that's all right, sir. Mr. Norton will settle all the necessary charges for you."

The hero then tucked his bride's arm under his own and strutted out of the room, regardless of the smiles of the loungers whom he was obliged to pass.

TODD'S TROUBLES TERMINATED.

In the United States District Court, at Trenton, yesterday, Lewis L. Todd, who has been in prison some time in connection with the charges associated with the Fireman's Insurance Company, of Jersey City, was liberated on his own recognizance of $1,000 to appear and answer at any time he may be needed questions which counsel for the creditors may wish to put concerning the late fire company in Jersey City.

EUROPE.

The King of Spain and His New Ministerial Advisers.

A DIFFICULTY BRIDGED OVER

The Meaning of the Recent Elections Throughout France.

BONAPARTISM AND BOURBONISM.

The following letters from the HERALD correspondents in the Spanish and French capitals will enable our readers to form a just conception of the political unrest at the present time prevailing throughout Spain and France.

SPAIN.

The Ministerial Crisis—The New Cabinet will Carry Out Zorrilla's Programme—Excitement in the Capital—Demonstrations in the Streets and Before the Palace—The King Receives a Delegation.

MADRID, Oct. 10, 1871.

After an immense amount of unsuccessful effort in other quarters, including many denials from Señor Zorrilla, His Majesty, at the instance of Señor Sagasta, entrusted the formation of the new Cabinet to Vice Admiral Malcampo, whose best qualification, perhaps, is that he has mixed almost less than any one in politics. He is a Senator in the present Cortes. He was commandant of the frigate Zaragoza on the day of the rising of the fleet at Cadiz. Since then he has spent the most of his time on service in Cuban waters. As might be expected, the Ministry he has formed, is entirely of adherents of Señor Sagasta. He made many overtures to friends of Señor Zorrilla, but in every case received the cold shoulder.

THE NEW CABINET.

War—General Bassols.
Gobernacion—Señor Candau.
Grace and Justice—Señor Alonso Colmenares.
Fomento—Señor Telesforo Montejo.
Ultramar—Señor Victor Balaguer.
Finance—Señor Santiago Angulo.
State—Señor Cantalapiedra.

The new Ministry are all professedly of the progresista party, and all equally unused to the life of the Banco Azul. Their deeds must prove them. At present they give it to be understood they purpose carrying out Señor Zorrilla's programme in all its integrity. In political circles it is hinted that they are only formed as a bridge to pass over the two months wanting to complete the minimum of legal Parliamentary life, at the end of which time a dissolution, and then new elections will take place.

THE SITUATION.

When I last wrote you the King had telegraphed an offer of the Premiership to Espartero. As I expected, the old hero telegraphed a refusal on the ground of his age and infirmities. Immediately he received this answer His Majesty sent for Señor Sagasta. Sagasta again urged the calling on Señor Zorrilla to continue with the same Cabinet, in the assurance that to carry out his policy he could count on all, or the greater portion, of that part of the progresista body which had voted in his (Sagasta's) favor. If this was not deemed sufficient guarantee by Señor Zorrilla, let him, said he, reorganize his Cabinet, giving place in it to some of the dissident progresistas, by which means union would be re-established and a governing majority formed. Accepting these indications the King sent again for Señor Zorrilla and begged him to continue at the head of the government in one of the forms indicated by the President elect of the Congress. Señor Zorrilla replied in terms very affectionate to His Majesty that having been defeated in Parliament he could not return to power with the same Ministry and the same policy without experiencing a defeat at every step. After what had passed he had no faith in the power of Señor Sagasta to control the votes of those who had elevated him to the Chair, while, as respected the modification of his Ministry, that would signify a modification of title.

A DILEMMA.

His Majesty then sent for Señor Sagasta and Señor Santa Cruz, President of the Senate. They suggested Zorrilla's Minister of War, General Cordova, who had accompanied the King in his journey, as a suitable person to form a Ministry. Cordova was accordingly sent for. He lost no time in presenting himself at the Palace, and declined the honor, giving as his reasons that, apart from all other difficulties he might experience in forming a Ministry, he was determined to represent no other policy than that of the Ministry of which he had formed a part, and he would not expose himself to be defeated by those who had defeated himself and his friends in the Congress on Tuesday.

ANOTHER APPEAL TO SAGASTA.

Sagasta was then called a third time, and suggested Vice Admiral Malcampo, to whom he said his friends would lend all their support. Malcampo, summoned, accepted the task conditionally, and at once set to work, of course under Señor Sagasta's inspiration, to form his Cabinet. At four this afternoon Admiral Malcampo reported to His Majesty the names I have given you, with the exception of Señor Cantalapiedra, who, being in the provinces, had been telegraphed to with the offer of the Ministry of State, and whose answer had not been received. Since then he has accepted, and to-morrow the new Cabinet present themselves to the Cortes.

HOW MADRID FEELS ABOUT IT.

I must give you an idea of the ferment created in Madrid by the upset of the Zorrilla Ministry. Let me take things in their order. The Tertulia Progresista, or Progresista Club, had arranged for a meeting on Tuesday night, at the instance of the Vice President, the Deputy Señor Llano y Persi, who, with another of its members, the Deputy Señor Salmeron, had made the tour of the provinces with the King. The meeting had been summoned merely to hear from those gentlemen an account of the principal events of the royal journey; but, in view of the turn of political matters, they agreed to discuss the attitude they ought to take in view of the crisis. Señor Llano y Persi remarked that he thought the Tertulia ought to express its sympathies with the Zorrilla Ministry, as it had fulfilled the programme it presented to the country the day it took office. They ought to respect and uphold a Ministry which had revived the national credit, regulated the finances, levelled the estimates, made public administration moral, and sustained public order. The Tertulia accorded to go en masse to felicitate Señor Zorrilla "for his glorious fall." All present, about two hundred, started off immediately. About two hundred others joined them in the streets. In due time they reached the house. Señor Llano y Persi made an eloquent, or, as one of the papers calls it, an "inspired" speech, in which he felicitated him on his fall, remarking that in his conception a fall so honorable was of greater worth than rebellious triumphs due to declared enemies of the constitution and of liberty. Señor Zorrilla was deeply moved. He thanked them for their visit and for the words they had addressed. He said his policy ever would be the same; that he would ever be with the liberal party, and that he left office with the satisfaction of an honest man, who believed he had done his duty. He passed eulogies on the King, and expressed his confidence that His Majesty would resolve all the crises which might occur in a constitutional manner. He ended giving a "Viva el Rey!"

MOVEMENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS.

Early yesterday morning the greater part of the University students turned out to make a demonstration against Sagasta and in favor of Zorrilla. They paraded the streets for some time, passing the houses of both, and giving the vivas of "Life" and "Death," respectively, before each. The most important manifestation was the one held in the Prado in the afternoon, under the shadow of the Dos de Mayo Monument. Invited by handbills, posted early in the morning on the walls, a multitude of some ten to fifteen thousand persons gathered there at three o'clock—most of them of what we should call the middle class. They carried many a banner with a strange device, but all bore some reference to the politics of the hour. One of these was, "Viva el Gobierno radical, economico y moral!" A long interval elapsed ere any one attempted to address them. Vivas to "Zorrilla and his Cabinet" and vivas to the "King and Constitution" kept the crowd alive until the Señor Sanchez opened the ball by addressing them. He is a republican. He made a fierce attack on the conservative party, whom he accused of being at the bottom of Señor Sagasta's schemes. He declared that their history was written with "our blood and that of our fathers and grandfathers." He eulogized Zorrilla and his policy, and declared that, though a republican, he would support any monarchical government that was as liberal, as tolerant and as reformist as that of Señor Zorrilla. He concluded with "Viva la Soberania nacional!" "Viva el Gobierno radical!"

RADICALS TO THE DEFENCE.

Señor Garcia remarked on the necessity of union between progresista radicals and republicans at periods like these. The crowd was now joined by a deputation from the Tertulia Progresista, who brought with them, exhibited from an open car, adorned with national flags, &c., a large portrait of General Prim, surmounted by the words I once [illegible] in the Cortes when attacked by the unionists, "Radicales á Defenderse!" (Radicals, to the defence!). Señor Martos was the next speaker. He said the government presided over by his worthy friend Señor Zorrilla, honorably fulfilling its radical programme, demonstrating to the country and to the world that in Spain liberty and order were compatible things and raising the national credit to an altitude nobody believed possible, had conquered for itself the support of public opinion. In proof of which the people of Madrid had spontaneously met together and given an initiative which doubtless would be seconded by the provinces. Their object was in no way to coerce the King or to interfere with his faculty to resolve the crisis, but simply to show the popular desires. He recommended the greatest order, and concluded with vivas to the King and to the national sovereignty. Cries were then raised of

"AL PALACIO!" "AL PALACIO!"

(To the Palace! to the Palace!) and in the most orderly procession ever seen in Madrid the crowd moved toward the Royal Palace. When they passed the house of Señor Sagasta, in Calle Alcala, they gave vivas to "Zorrilla," to the "Radical Ministry," &c., while some few cried out, "Abajo Sagasta!" "Muera los traidores!" (Down with Sagasta! Death to the traitors!) In front of the Puerto del Sol, at the Principal or Ministry de la Gobernacion they repeated the vivas to Zorrilla. The manifestation by this time having attained great proportions, part took the Calle Mayor and part took the Calle Arenal, uniting again in the Plaza Oriente, under the windows of the palace. There they gave repeated vivas to the King and Queen, to Zorrilla, to the Ministry of Economy and Morality, &c., and delegated a commission to seek an interview with His Majesty. Señor Chacon, a deputy to the Cortes, presided over this commission. Without any difficulty the commission were instantly for Amadeus has already proved himself the King of the people. Señor Chacon briefly explained that their object was to present to His Majesty the sentiments of respect of the people of Madrid, and at the same time the lively sympathies the nation felt for the Ministry presided over by Señor Zorrilla, and how deeply they regretted its disappearance from power. His Majesty answered with expressions of his appreciation towards the Spanish people, and the regret he felt at not being able to go out on the balcony to salute them. Their own sense, however, would show them the necessity of depriving himself, in this instance, of that pleasure, as theirs was a political demonstration. They might depend on his acting constitutionally in the solution of the crisis.

RECEIVED BY THE KING,

THE MEETING DISBAND.

The deputation then reported the result to the meeting, which immediately retired from the palace and proceeded in the greatest order to the Plaza de la Villa, in front of the house once occupied by the famous Cardinal Ximenes. Here they peacefully dissolved, after a neat speech from Señor Llano y Persi, who closed by "saluting the respectable and imposing majesty of the people of Madrid."

MORE MANIFESTATIONS.

A little before this manifestation assembled some of the University students set off in procession to the house of Señor Zorrilla, in front of which they gave many vivas. They sent a deputation to express their sympathies with him and to ask him to address them. He thanked the deputation, but declined to make a speech in the present phase of affairs, though, in response to their salutations, he said he would show himself to them from the balcony, which he did, and was loudly cheered. Off the students then marched to the palace, where they sought an interview with the King. This was very properly, but very courteously, denied them by General Rossells, the Chief of the Cuarto Militar del Palacio, who told them that His Majesty was occupied, but that any document they prepared in writing would be instantly presented to him. They retired and broke up their procession in the greatest order. There has been no breach of the peace, but the greatest possible excitement in Madrid by day and by night ever since Tuesday.

FRANCE.

The Present Condition of the Country—Meaning of the Late Elections—A Reign of Terror—Fears and Surmises—The Agents of Bonapartism and Bourbonism Active.

PARIS, Oct. 9, 1871.

No commentary upon the condition of things in France could be more eloquent and instructive than the result of the elections to the Conseils Généraux. The features which have marked all the elections—and they have been numerous—since September 4, 1870, have been successfully reproduced, with a more heightened color and deeper effect. The triumph of the worst elements in the country has been each time more decided, because each time the abstention from the polls of the honest and order-loving classes has been more and more marked. The proof that terrorism exists is found in the fact that it is precisely in places most seriously threatened by revolutionary violence that this abstention is most observable. Thus in the city of Marseilles, where over seventy-five thousand voters are inscribed, the total of votes polled yesterday was less than thirty-five thousand. The consequence was that the "red" ticket was elected by a majority of two-thirds of the votes polled; and among the elected for the department is Baragnon, fresh from his trial before a court martial. [illegible] helpless is government authority and the profound contempt entertained for it by the radicals, the very lists condemned as dishonest, only two weeks ago, by the Ministry of the Interior, were the lists used yesterday. The conservatives in the meantime expend their energies in mere protests, which are as harmless to the victorious enemy as the paper they are printed on.

GIVING AN ACCOUNT OF THEIR STEWARDSHIP.

Last week the newspapers of Lyons amused their readers by an account of what occurred on the return home of the Deputies of the second city in France. Messieurs Millaud and Ordinaire are the elect of the radicals, and as such had to go before the Revolutionary Committee of the Rue Grolée to render an account of their stewardship. Millaud, while giving certain explanations, appeared to protest against the mandat impératif, or imperative orders, of his masters. His violent denunciation of the Assembly could not save him. In vain he called his legislative colleagues "old fools," "idiots," "tyrants," "drivellers," &c., in order to appease the wrath of the friends and brothers.

The president of the club, one Favier, a bookbinder, stopped him in the middle of his speech, and, referring to his remarks on the mandat impératif, said, majestically, "We are accustomed to see our will obeyed and respected; do not forget it." The other Deputy, Ordinaire, took warning and said nothing about the obnoxious mandat, the precise meaning of which is that the Deputies shall vote upon no question without first consulting, by telegraph, the will of the revolutionary club.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

There is a dread upon men's minds. All the cities and towns are patrolled all night long by cavalry and infantry. The constraint is so irksome that it must produce reaction. In fact, a beginning of reaction is plainly perceptible in certain quarters. The Figaro is not perhaps a double-turreted monitor, throwing very heavy metal, but such metal as it does throw, when in a serious mood, can make its mark. In its issue of last Friday, the 6th, it makes an appeal on behalf of the legitimate monarchy under Henri V. in a two column article, written with considerable power. It has been extensively copied and commented on, and in these comments the monarchical party show that they are reflecting on their moral and material strength. The London Times falls into error when supposing the monarchists are completely paralyzed and idle. There have been, it must be admitted, ample grounds for such a supposition; but within a month, even, things have assumed new features. All honest men are anxious to have done forever with the present state of affairs, and even the Bonapartists would accept the old Bourbon monarchy with pleasure rather than see themselves threatened in their persons, families and property by the great tidal wave of anarchy which every one fears is gathering strength to submerge society in France.

FEARS FOR THE FUTURE.

The following article from La Patrie will better illustrate the meaning of the preceding sentence, while it conveys an admirably correct idea of the state of men's minds in France and the general condition of affairs.

The Liberté of the 6th having said, "The Patrie is a prey to a political misanthropy, whereas personal regrets too complacently magnify the shadows of the picture," that ex-semi-official imperialist paper thus defends itself:—

> "If by personal regrets," the Liberté means a bitter or [illegible] chagrin in recalling what is no more, and a craving desire for a return of the past, the Liberté runs a risk of deceiving itself.
> Our regrets are of another nature, and they are so complaint and so ardent that we could not, even if we would, tone down our expression of them. We regret, and bitterly, the time lost since the defeat of the insurrection to the repairing of our social disasters, and bringing back and strengthening order in the country. We regret and bitterly to see a government appointed by conservatives repel both their aid and their friendship in order to ally itself with those to combat and reduce whom to nothingness was its mission. When we see M. Jules Simon, a member of the International, keep the [illegible] of the Ministerial track we cannot mitigate the bitterness of our regrets; when M. Dufaure followed, or rather preceded, at any rate guided, by M. [illegible], carries into the councils his correcting ways, protects the members of the Commune and allows the revolutionists of Paris to load M. Ranc with honors, our regrets become still more acute; when we know that liberty is granted or given to the insurgents of March our regrets redouble; when the prefects of M. Gambetta are caressed, when one fears to disturb a fold in the robe of Crémieux' attorney generals (procureurs), our regrets cannot become [illegible] at rest; when we are told on all sides that in the election the government favors the radicals rather than the conservatives, and that an official propagandism is made in favor of the former, our regrets are boundless; but not so without just and righteous reason. What regrets are ours at seeing a whole situation capriciously lost by [illegible] and [illegible] academicians! What regrets when we see clearly that through apathy and a strange error of appreciation
> FRANCE IS BEING BROUGHT STRAIGHT BACK TO GAMBETTAISM,
> and that there is found neither in the government nor in the Chamber a man of sufficient vigor, of sufficient energy to throw under our feet, once and for all, anarchy and Jacobin dictatorships, there to be immolated and prevented forevermore from reuniting their fragments! You say that we magnify the shadows of the picture. Alas! no; we do not magnify them; we no more magnify them to-day than in those dolorous hours of gloom when we foresaw, together with you, both the insurrection of March and the triumph of the wretches already even facilitated by the weakness of a Picard, a Favre and a Ferry. * * * The 18th of March came, then the Commune, then the civil war, then the assassinations and conflagrations. Then those who had the conduct of affairs experienced regrets—personal regrets—alas! more than regrets—inextinguishable grief; but their tears have been powerless to wash out the bloody traces of our misfortunes and our shame. Well, at this moment, with their amiability, which is a lull—with their hesitations, which are so many dangers—with their compromises, which are sources of peril—our Ministers are preparing another false yarn, brought on in a different manner, but inevitable. Well, once more, we have gloomy regrets—the regrets which the plebiscite, the declaration of war, the 4th of September, the dictatorship of Gambetta, the softness of a Picard and the incapacity of a Ferry in February and March have by turns inspired us with. And now, if you do not take care, you, government and you, conservatives, those regrets will again change into profoundest sorrow, and your uneasiness into pain undying and irremediable.

Yes, it is quite true, and it is not for Bonapartism that La Patrie is alarmed, but for France. There is not an honest man in the country who does not feel that the question of the hour is not a party question in any form, but one wherein even his own insignificant personality is involved. The time has come for a reaction, and that reaction has begun.

FOREIGN TOPICS.

Confiscations of the Convents at Rome—Driving the Nuns into the Open Streets.

The Rome correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD, writing under date of October 8, gives the following account of the expulsion of the nuns from their convents in the Eternal City:—

There is a general law of the kingdom suppressing all religious orders. This law so far has remained a dead letter in Rome, where convents, religious institutions and orders pullulate only through the deference which Minister Lanza wishes to show for the Holy Father and the Holy See. There have been exceptions to this general indulgence. The authorities appropriated the Quirinal Palace and all the other buildings which were absolutely needed to run the new machine here and to the great disgust of the monks and nuns, although they were indemnified by certain moneys to be drawn and paid out of the national treasury. The fraternities looked upon Italy as a bad payer and protested; but nevertheless the strong arm of power turned them out of their property and they were forced to make the best of their surroundings. Day before yesterday expropriation fell upon the two convents already mentioned; their buildings were wanted for military hospital purposes, and so the public force went to take possession of them. As early as half-past six in the morning the slumbers of the nuns were disturbed at the Convent of Santa Teresa by loud knocks at its door, and upon its opening by the pastor of the establishment the government commissioners, accompanied by a posse of royal carabineers and a notary, were ushered in. In all these operations the government sends a notary, on the idea that the thing must be done in accordance with all the forms of law, although it strongly smacks of a piece of irony to the ousted parties, who declare that confiscation law is no law, but mere might. The invaders of other people's houses being introduced in the parlor, a priest asks their business and informs them that he has been charged with the direction and the keeping of the convent by no less a personage than His Holiness himself by positive and direct orders from the Vatican. Those orders are for the occupants to be put out of doors only by force, and not to consent to any more calm walking away. In this we have an inkling of that strong, uncompromising will which animated the old temporal sway over the city and which animates still the spiritual sway over the faithful. Three nuns, completely veiled, are visible. The first solemnly and impressively enjoins upon them to retire into their private rooms, where the balance of the sisters are, and this they immediately proceed to do, after piously kissing the hand of the Pope's agent. They are to go and wait to be shoved out of the house; nor do they have to wait long, for the mere inspection of the apartments by the royal carabineers effectually drives the pious ladies into banishment into the outer world of the streets, the priests following at their heels. The notary, by order, makes a process-verbal of the operation, and to Victor Emmanuel has another convent, but without any nuns. No one can tell where they went, or who took them in, weary and abandoned; but it is generally believed that they scattered and took refuge in other convents which have not yet been "expropriated." A similar operation was gone through with at the monastery of St. Antonio Abate.

Another Great Tunnel in Prospect—Switzerland and Germany Hand in Hand.

The correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD in Frankfort, writing under date of October 12, has the following:—

The convention between Switzerland and a combination of German banks and firms for the construction of the Gotbard line was perfected the day before yesterday. The various governments grant a subsidy of 85,000,000f.; the company to find the remaining 104,000,000f. It is a momentous risk, for there is a tunnel to be dug twice as large as the Mont Cenis Tunnel, and there is a very dangerous point with regard to the water at the height of Andermatt. Rich people may risk it, but those of small means must keep aloof. The promoters rely on the subsidy of 85,000,000f. and the opponents [illegible] saying the risk must be fearful if Prussia and other governments prefer risking their money altogether than doing the work themselves. It reminds me of [illegible] Mme. von Staël and Recamier, when both exiles at London; the first liking English life, the second longing for the Parisian saloons. "What a miserable place London is where there are 40,000 pickpockets!" said Mme. de Recamier. Mme. von Staël retorted, "What a place London is, where 40,000 pickpockets are enabled to get a living!" All depends on the view taken of such an undertaking; still the experience made with regard to costs at the Suez Canal and the Mont Cenis Tunnel ought to deter from investments therein.

FOREIGN PERSONAL GOSSIP.

——The ex-Empress of the French while in Spain led a very quiet life at her mother's house in the neighboring village of Carabouchel.

——Babick, the illustrious "prophet of the fusionist god" and ex-member of the Paris Commune, has reappeared in the streets of Berne, Switzerland, on a donkey decked in red trappings. He proclaims he is the "prophet of the Eternal" on earth.

——Some of the Continental journals say that the betrothal of the Princess Mary Elizabeth of Prussia to the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia will ere long be officially announced. The Grand Duke is twenty-two years of age; the Princess is the eldest daughter of Prince Frederick Charles and the Princess Mary of Anhalt. She was born in 1855.

——Gambetta is the hero of the following story:—"It is asserted by some, who say they know what they are talking about, that at Le Mans, during the war, Gambetta and six others held a council of war, at which it was decided to arrest and shoot the Prince de Joinville, then a volunteer doing good service against the invaders. Among the six persons at the council were the notorious Ranc and Spuller."

——The Gazette de France, having erroneously announced the arrest of Mme. or Mlle. Rose Lacomte, a streak-lightning lady and late Presidentess of the Club of Revolutionary Women, she thus informs the editor of his errors:—"I will let you know, citizen editor, that my arm is as free as my body, for they will give themselves a holiday treat in distributing over you a volley of blows from a cane if in to-morrow's number you do not retract. You know that I keep my word." No harm has come of it that we know of.

——An old lady who, at the mature age of eighty-seven, has not got done sowing her wild oats, is among the latest arrests in Paris. She is charged with having petrolized the church of St. Augustine on the night of May 23. So long ago as 1823 she was sent to prison for five years, and again in 1839 for ten years. In 1855 she and her husband were tried for murder. She escaped for want of sufficient proof, but her worthy spouse was guillotined. She acquired her education as a child among the dreadful scenes of 1792 and '93, when her mother was in all probability one of the famous tricoteuses of the period. She has not forgotten her early lessons.

FOREIGN MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The tri-color of France still flies from the spire of the cathedral at Metz.

It is rumored that the French government insists to free the Roman funds of the income tax.

The whole of the shipwrights on the Clyde who have been on strike for an advance of wages during the past six weeks were formally locked out by the masters.

There are in Paris 2,350 streets, 113 avenues, 54 boulevards, 44 quays, 135 places, 25 principal churches, 72 theatres, 33 hospitals, 6 railway termini and 27 bridges.

The colonels of the various regiments garrisoned in Paris have informed the officers that any one of them seen walking in the streets with women of bad character will be put under arrest.

The French Treasury bonds, endorsed by the leading bankers, which are to be handed to the German government in payment of the fourth half milliard of the war indemnity, will be payable in London in April and May next.

It is said that a considerable number of Communist prisoners on the hulks at Lorient died of dysentery and typhus fever last month, the average mortality being seven per week out of 1,200 prisoners. Much fear is entertained that the first cold weather will cause many deaths from inflammation of the lungs.

The committee of the International Society of Workmen at St. Gall, Switzerland, have just published a declaration ending with a rather remarkable confession:—"After reflection and the experience of the past we have come to the conclusion that all these strikes of the workmen rarely obtain the end proposed by those who engage in them."

The Avenir Liberal announces a project to found an Imperialist Club, for which already 7,000 signatures have been received in Paris. In an article of the new Bonapartist journal, edited by M. Clement Duvernois, the latter says that the welfare of France can only be assured by the restoration of the empire, and he tries to show that no government has done more for the people nor given greater security to property.

DIFFICULTIES OF INVASION.

The Network of Strategical Railroads Throughout the Czar's Dominions.

AMERICA ALWAYS FRIENDLY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 20, 1871.

General Fadejew, an officer who has grown gray in the service of his country, published, soon after the close of the Austrian campaign, a book, purporting to expose several errors in the fundamental system of the organization of the Russian army, and suggesting suitable reforms. The book, as may be imagined, created great surprise and brought down quite an avalanche of opposition. The General, nothing daunted, has further exposed his opinion and replied to his critics in a series of pamphlets, which serve at the same time as supplements to his first work. Both the book and these pamphlets were originally printed in the Russian language, consequently General Fadejew has failed to attract much attention beyond the limits of the Russian empire. One of the pamphlets, entitled "THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ORIENTAL QUESTION," deserves especially to be mentioned, as nothing seems better calculated to convey an idea how far this interesting question dominates the popular mind. I have extracted therefrom a few of the more salient points and transmit them herewith. The General says that his object had not been to treat the mere abstract question touching the number of soldiers that Russia can send into the field, but that he desired to expose the more practical portion of the question, namely, what forces are required or necessary to take the field, and then he goes on to expose the popular error which led to the belief that the western borders of Russia needed not to be taken into account whenever the Czar should be called upon to make an end of this Eastern question. In refuting the assertion that the campaign of 1854 afforded sufficient evidence to prove the absence of all danger in the west the General advances the following

POINTS.

First—A coalition was proposed by the Emperor Napoleon—Austria hesitated during a few days only. It required, however, but little additional pressure at that time and we should have seen France, Austria and Italy united against us, not to speak of Prussia, whose government was at that period in a state of unconsciousness on the Eastern question.

Second—England alone was determined to keep the Polish question separated from the conflict in the East; if, therefore, the seat of war has been transferred to our Eastern borders, that change was not solely due to the resolve of the great Powers in the West. It depended on Austria to open the gates, since the road lay through her territory, where alone the allied forces could reach us.

Third—We desisted from opening hostilities in the West from the moment when we accepted the ultimatum proposed by Austria. We submitted to a sacrifice; otherwise the main battles would have been fought on our western frontiers.

CALCULATIONS.

"In making my calculations," continues General Fadejew, "I did not consider what has been done, but what ought to have been done provided we had not waived the hold we had on Austria and therewith withdrawn our demands."

The General says:—"No barometer so plainly determines the state of the weather as the position of the Oriental question can determine the degree of [illegible] To England and to France it is a mere question of political import, but to Austria the East presents a question of actual existence so it is to us, but in an opposite sense."

HISTORICAL EVENTS.

He then refers to the alliance made in 1786 between Joseph II. and the Empress Catherine II., for the purpose of conquering, dividing and regenerating Turkey. Following historical events up to the year 1851, he says that to all appearances—at least outwardly—no change had taken place in the position which the old alliances so clearly depicted. Prussia, although disposed to be dissatisfied with the provisions of the Treaty of 1851, did not forsake her old ally. But it is more than questionable whether Napoleon would have dared to come forward in the bold manner he did unless he had possessed the certainty of being backed up by Austria. The incendiary demonstrations made by the French Emperor, which tended to incite other great Powers, would have been answered by a march on Chalons; but Napoleon knew full well that the "Holy Alliance" would offer no opposition, and that the Vienna Convention would be trampled upon. If at that period a word in season had fallen from the parties adhering to the Holy Alliance, England would have instantly withdrawn from the contest. "In the absence of a guarantee, the French demonstrations in 1853 would have appeared senseless, and, taking all into consideration, it is not difficult to come to the conclusion that on Austria alone and not on France the blame attaches of having brought about the coalition of 1854. Whatever may be said to the contrary, the facts, unless frauds introduced, cannot be changed. Austria deemed it prudent to keep her own fingers out of the fire; she released the allied Powers from their obligations towards her, and by doing so compelled the Russian forces to retire behind the line of the Pruth."

The Austrian government, General Fadejew says, showed the greatest amount of opposition at the conclusion of peace. But he asks, "What if it should now come to a decisive blow and end forever that everlasting question in the East? It may be permissible to deceive us twice, but no more than twice in the same manner, and it is for the second time that Austria has made attempts in that direction."

THE FATE OF TURKEY.

"To decide conclusively the fate of Turkey it suffices, irrespective of what may be done by the maritime Powers, to march with 150,000 men straight to the Bosphorus, and to place 250,000 men along the line of the Danube. There would be no difficulty in executing these operations, provided we have a force large enough to co-operate on the Baltic, on the borders of the Black Sea and in the Caucasus. We can steal a march on the armies of the Western Powers in reaching not only the Balkan, but even Constantinople, before they are aware of it. Suppose it were possible—and it seems very difficult to believe it possible—to meet us under the walls of Constantinople with a force such as they assembled in 1854—namely, 63,000 men—they could not defeat 150,000 Russians, no matter how large the Turkish army, for at such a juncture no regiments of Turkish regulars would exist. Long before the European allies could arrive the Turks would be scattered to the winds." * * * * *

PUBLIC OPINION IN RUSSIA.

I need not extract more than the foregoing to show plainly the spirit of General Fadejew's argument. The language he holds is a fair sample of public opinion among Russians. A certain portion of the press follows in the same strain, while others are using every endeavor to gloss matters over. No one knows the resolve of the Emperor, nor does any one know whether, in a military point of view, the country is prepared to wage war. Sooner or later it must come to blows. General Fadejew, you perceive, lays all the blame on the shoulders of Austria, while he exonerates France. And what of Germany, it may be asked?

HOW GERMANY MIGHT ACT.

The answer is simple. Prussia—the late Prussia—in her limited sphere of action was compelled to side with Russia, but, acting as she does now, in behalf of Germany and as a great Power, there is necessarily a change of front. The great German empire will claim a right to put her veto on record. Prince Bismarck, it is generally believed, has the greatest ambition to meddle with the Eastern question, and likewise to show his authority as the German Chancellor in the religious ultramontane movement, which is so closely connected with the solution of matters concerning the East. One of the most alarming symptoms, it strikes me, consists in the conciliatory (?) tone of the Berlin press. The other day a regiment of Guards, bearing the name of the late King of Prussia, Frederick William IV., celebrated an anniversary. The German Emperor sent a telegram from Gastein to St. Petersburg congratulating the officers of the regiment, adding that he was pleased to observe that the anniversary happened to fall on the same day when he, a year ago, chastised the French at Gravelotte on the 18th of August. To use the Emperor's own words, "when I gained a victory with my army."

The incident is, I perceive, much commented on by the Berlin press as a sure sign of the complete entente cordiale which exists between the two countries. All these matters look so farcical that I cannot help thinking they are only intended to throw dust into the eyes of the people. Another feature, one of the many to which the German public is freely treated, is a report that the Czar, immediately on his return to St. Petersburg, had given orders that the German language should henceforth replace in public schools that of the French. That incident also furnished the means of assuring the people of the friendly relations which existed between Prussia and the Court of St. Petersburg. It is just possible that a different construction could be placed on the order given by the Czar, if, indeed, it was given, which is very doubtful. It recalled to my recollection that I have often heard Prussian officers make mention that it might soon be necessary to take lessons in the Russian language. Time will show what we have to expect from this Eastern question. In the meantime it will be interesting for you to receive a summary of our military position, which I endeavor to convey in the following:—

THE MILITARY POSITION OF RUSSIA.

The War Department absorbs nearly one-third annually of the national income. In round numbers the receipts of the Treasury Department for the year 1871 were estimated at about three hundred and eighty million dollars; of that sum $121,000,000 are expected to be required for military purposes, while the navy absorbs a further sum of $14,000,000. During the last decade the number of persons employed in the war office has been nearly doubled. At present there are upward of eleven thousand employes, including 2,700 officers of all grades, and 120 generals. But General Miliutin, the Minister of War, is firmly resolved to introduce a thorough reform in the prevailing system, and to reduce red-tape to the smallest possible minimum. Much has been done already in the way of ameliorating the condition of the common soldier. Schools have been established for the men, and praiseworthy efforts are being made in various directions to raise the soldier to a proper standard of self-respect. Bribery and corruption, which hitherto have deprived the soldier of much comfort—nay, even of the common necessaries of life—have not disappeared, but the pernicious system has been greatly reduced. The soldier is now protected in his rights, and the influence on his moral and physical condition is plainly visible throughout the whole army. The red-tape system involves another great evil which is now greatly on the increase. Formerly each regiment formed, so to speak, one large family. Officers and men became attached to each other, and the former felt a just pride to be in course of time at the head of the regiment. At present officers are subject to arbitrary removals, which, without looking into the case, are suddenly and irrespective of any necessity decreed from the bureaus. It follows that the esprit de corps suffers; there is nothing, now, so they contend, to bind officers to the regiment, and consequently moral influence is lessened, and, with it, a certain degree of discipline.

Moreover, there is a great scarcity of officers. While there ought to be, at the very least, a staff of 21,000 officers, there are at this moment no more than 15,000. The scarcity is explained by the miserably low salary and the low-lived existence in small garrisons. On the other hand, there is a large surplus of officers of high rank. There are upwards of one thousand generals in Russia, and almost daily fresh appointments are made, while from two hundred to three hundred would meet all and every requirement of the army. How far these complaints are justified we have no means of ascertaining; the country is so large, so vast, that you cannot possibly learn the truth of all you hear. And, unless you have an opportunity of investigating matters personally, there is every chance of your being deceived, inasmuch as the grievance of a single individual is made applicable to a host of cases.

THE GERMAN ELEMENT IN THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

Much has been said about the preponderance of the German element which prevails in the Russian army. From a statement on which I believe every reliance can be placed I have ascertained that in the ranks the proportion does not exceed two in a hundred. There is, however, a much larger proportion among the officers. Among the generals, I am told, the percentage is seventy-four—that is to say, of one hundred generals there are no less than seventy-four of German origin. Among other grades the percentage is stated to be fifty-eight, and in the ranks of subalterns there are twenty-four per cent. It is difficult to foresee what influence the German element can exercise in the event of a war with Prussia or Austria. It seems more than probable that a large number of officers would retire from the service.

OBLIGATORY MILITARY SERVICE.

An imperial ukase, dated November 4-16, 1870, authorizes obligatory military service throughout Russia. The proposed measure has not given universal satisfaction. It is argued, among other objections, that the number of intelligent and educated men in Russia is proportionately very small when compared with the great mass of the people and that the withdrawal for military purposes of a certain number of educated men would press heavily on the middle classes and their vocations, while the number of those young men would, on the other hand, prove too insignificant for purposes of exercising any degree of moral influence on their less gifted brethren. The gulf, it is contended, which separates the working from the middle classes is so broad as to render it possible that while under arms they could fraternize with each other. Arguments of a similar nature are brought forward, but, I confess, they seem altogether of a weak character. The system works well in Prussia, and there is no reason to believe that it would be otherwise in Russia. However that may be, the obligatory service is not, as yet, the law of the land. A commission, under the presidency of the Minister of War, has the matter under deliberation. The draft of a [illegible] to be submitted to the Emperor, and it will, as a matter of course, take some time before the new system comes into operation. In the meantime matters remain much in a state of transition. It does not, however, it appears, prevent Minister Miliutin from steadily persevering in his resolve thoroughly to reform the army and prepare for any emergency that may arise.

GREAT MILITARY ACTIVITY.

The greatest activity prevails in every branch of the department. People living outside of Russia are little aware of the enormous preparations now in progress. Even those living in the country have a very imperfect knowledge of what is going on under their very noses. The fact is the government desires no controversy, no discussion, in order to avoid an unnecessary show of their actual strength, nor to expose their weak points. The vast resources of the Russian empire are little known abroad, and still less are they appreciated by foreigners. If, therefore, the military strength is undervalued outside of Russia, it is not for the government to take active steps with the view of making foreigners any wiser. I should not at all be surprised to learn that false reports are disseminated abroad for purposes of leading people into a belief of military weakness in the Russian army. The foreigner, says the Russian, may be my friend to-day and he may be fighting me on the morrow; why should I lead him into the secret of my arsenals? When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise. That is about the argument held by many Russians, and in the meantime they continue spending money and are improving their condition every day.

THE STRENGTH OF THE ARMY

which Russia could bring into the field under present arrangements is estimated at 830,000 men, independent of the troops in the Caucasian provinces, which number an effective force of about 200,000. Add to this the troops stationed in Turkestan, Orenberg and Siberia, which, in round numbers, give 100,000 more, and it will be found that the aggregate grand total of which the Czar can dispose in time of war foots up 1,130,000 men of all arms, with 1,600 cannon and 400 mitrailleuses.

That figure comprises the following details:—

Guards and grenadiers		82,909

TROOPS FOR LOCAL PURPOSES.

It is unnecessary to say that from these forces must be deducted the troops required for local purposes; again, from seventy to one hundred thousand are necessary for the protection of the Baltic provinces, and an equal force must remain on the line of the Vistula. Still it is safe to assume that, under present arrangements, Russia has a force of 5[illegible],000 men ready to face the enemy at any given moment.

HOW THE ARMY IS ARMED.

The Russian is armed mostly with a breech-loader known as the Krnka rifle; several divisions, however, have the Carle rifle, likewise breech-loader, and the marines are armed with the Baranoff rifle, while for the rifle corps the Berdan (American) gun has been chosen. The total aggregate of breech-loaders possessed by Russia is given in the following figures, viz.:—

Berdan	30,000
Krnka	400,000
Carle	200,000
Baranoff	30,000
Total	660,000

The Berdan rifle has a calibre of 4.35 millemetres; the Krnka rifle, [illegible] millimetres. The length of the latter, with bayonet, is [illegible], length of cannon, [illegible]; the weight, without bayonet, 7 pounds 12 ounces; with bayonet, 8 pounds 6 ounces. The Russian infantry always carry fixed bayonets. All breech-loaders are calculated for a distance of 1,200 yards.

RUSSIAN FORTIFIED PLACES.

There are twenty-six fortified places in the Russian empire which are kept in a state of defence. They are divided into three classes, as follows, namely:—Sixteen first class, seven of the second and three third class.

FIRST CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

St. Petersburg, Cronstadt, Sveaborg, Wyborg, harbor defences; Dunaborg, Bobrinsk; Warsaw, Nowogeorgewisk, Brzesk-Litewski, Kiew, Bender, Nikolajew, Kertsch, Alexandropol, Tiflis, Nikolajew (Amoor).

SECOND CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

Dunamünde, Ivangorod, Terek, Dageshan, Tuschkend, Wiernoge, Ghaz.

THIRD CLASS STRONGHOLDS.

Perowski, Achalcech, Kuban.

NAVAL STATIONS OF THE EMPIRE.

The following is a list of the various naval stations:—

BALTIC.

St. Petersburg, Cronstadt, Sveaborg, Reval.

ARCTIC SEA.

Archangel.

BLACK SEA.

Nocolajew, Sebastopol, Noworossijsk, Suchum Kale.

CASPIAN SEA.

Astrakhan, Baku, Astrabad.

PACIFIC.

Nicolajewsk, Wladiwostok.

RUSSIAN FLEET.

The fleet in the Baltic numbers 62 ships, 65 steam gunboats and 52 yachts, schooners, river steamers, &c. The details of the first named are enumerated as follows:—8 frigates, iron-clad; 12 monitors, 6 turret ships, 6 liners, screws; 6 frigates, screws; 5 frigates, side wheel; 10 corvettes, screws; 9 clippers, screws. The aggregate total of guns carried by the fleet is stated at 1,570 of various calibre.

THE RAILROAD SYSTEM.

In the event of war it is important to consider our new railroad system. At the close of the year 1870 Russia possessed a network comprising 6,400 miles of road, and upwards of 2,300 miles were in course of construction. The railroad mania may be measured by the fact that in the course of the year 1869 the government accorded grants for constructing new roads to no less than 160 different persons or corporations. A glance at the map will show that all our roads are constructed in a manner to suit the strategy of military operations. This will enable us to move large masses of troops from one point to another with rapidity, while, in case of invasion, we have the advantage over the enemy thus far, that he cannot run his own trains over our track. In the late Franco-German war troops and horses were carried from the eastern frontiers of Prussia right into the heart of France. Our enemies will be compelled to leave their cars behind when they reach the frontiers of the Russian empire, owing to the fact that the gauge of our roads differs from the German roads. The Russian track measures five feet (English), while the Austrian and most of the Prussian lines are four feet eight and a half inches.

ENEMIES AND FRIENDS.

Before I conclude my letter I must again revert to the pamphlet of General Fadejew and extract the following passage:—He says, "We have but two enemies in the world, with whom it is impossible to agree; these enemies are Hungarian Austria and Turkey. On the other hand it depends on us to have at least one strong friend, a friend with whom we have thus far gone hand in hand in all matters where our interests have been nearest to our hearts—we mean America."

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Defeat of the White Stockings by the Mutuals—Score 11 to 3.

The White Stockings, of Chicago, and the Mutuals, of this city, played an exhibition game on the Union Grounds, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon, the result of which was an easy victory for the New York club, the score standing at the close 11 to 3 in their favor. Martin pitched for the "Mutes," as will be seen by the score, and in the absence of Start Pike played second and Hatfield first. The "Whites" were short-handed, too, besides which they had to play Hodes in centre field, owing to his having hurt his hand and Foley behind the bat. The Chicagos were unable to hit Martin's peculiar delivery for more than six first bases, and to this fact alone must be attributed their defeat, for they played a fine fielding game.

At the bat Hatfield led the score for the Mutuals by making four first and six total bases. Ferguson also did well in the batting line, but was peculiarly unfortunate in throwing to first base. In fielding Eggler led off and clearly sustained his reputation as being without an equal in his position. Of the six flies he caught two were as brilliant as one would care to see. Pearce also made several fine plays at short, and Charley Mills "picked up the ball behind the bat" in his usual excellent manner.

Treacy, on the part of the Whites, made one beautiful catch of a short fly ball, and Pinkham attended to his position most admirably. The following is the score:—

MARVELLOUS MADNESS.

Shocking Results of a Bite in Westchester County—The Bitten Party Attacks His Companion—Both are Simultaneously Affected—Awful Condition of the Sufferers.

At Yonkers, Westchester county, considerable excitement and alarm have been experienced during the past forty-eight hours, owing to a shocking and almost unaccountable form of madness which has simultaneously seized two young men who have been companions for some years past. The names of the apparently doomed youths are respectively Albert Jones and Augustus Howard, each of them being about eighteen years old. It is said that, although living some four or five blocks apart, the youths appeared to be inseparable on or off the streets.

The first intimation received by the authorities regarding the truly unfortunate young men was on last Sunday evening, when a physician having proceeded to the house occupied by the parents of Jones, found him in violent spasms,

BARKING LIKE A DOG

as he wildly tossed his head from side to side, occasionally snapping at some of those who were holding him on the floor by dint of force. Having administered an opiate, which in a brief time produced sound sleep on the part of the patient, the physician was invited to another apartment of the house, where Howard was suffering from symptoms precisely similar. The same treatment was adopted, followed by like results, and quiet again reigned in the neighborhood. Most singular to relate, Howard was on a friendly visit to his friend Jones, and although in an adjoining room both were struck down in

at the same instant. The attending physician stated that the symptoms indicated were not those of hydrophobia, but were rather superinduced by nervousness. He also gave strict orders that the patients should not be allowed to see or speak to each other. Both men felt very much debilitated during the following day, until Monday evening, when they were again attacked more violently than before at their separate homes. Those who witnessed their rabid actions and terrible contortions were in the latter's malady is that immediately on recovering consciousness after one of his agonizing fits of madness he eagerly asks, "Where's Gus?" and then adds, "Gus is in a fit now." The patients, although greatly weakened, felt tolerably comfortable yesterday, but it is on the approach of night the malady seems only to develop itself.

SHOCKED BEYOND UTTERANCE.

It is asserted in the village that Jones was bitten by some man with whom he was quarrelling a few weeks ago, and that the untoward circumstance has taken a tenacious hold of his mind. When he was first seized with one of those terrible paroxysms, last week, he, it is said, inflicted a savage bite on his companion (Howard) while the latter was endeavoring to aid him. The parents of both young men are in humble circumstances and the condition of the unfortunates was kept concealed for some days after Jones was first attacked.

A STRANGE FEATURE

A POSTMASTER ARRESTED FOR DEALING IN COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Spurious Twenty Dollar Bills on the Bank of Utica, N. Y.

[From the St. Paul Dispatch, Oct. 28.]

Charles Lamb, a prominent citizen of Mower county, formerly postmaster of Franklin and Justice of the Peace, and at present a large wheat buyer on the line of the Southern Minnesota Railroad, was arrested yesterday by Major McIlrath at Grand Meadow, in that county, on two charges—one of passing counterfeit money; the other of selling it. He was brought up on a preliminary examination before Commissioner Cordozo to-day.

Mr. Benjamin Hicks testified to having had various dealings with the defendant in the buying and selling of wheat, and exhibited five or six $20 bills on the Bank of Utica, New York, which he had received from him in the way of business, which were pronounced to be undoubtedly forgeries.

A boy named George L. Clarke, about eighteen years old, states that he was engaged by the defendant to receive packages of money from him as his agent and pay them over to Hicks for the purchase of wheat, and that all of these packages contained counterfeit money.
